TENSION GROWS IN ETHIOPIA FOREIGNERS LOOK FOR INVASION LEAGUE MAKING FINAL COMPROMISE EFFORT

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1984. Received Sept. 16, 8.30 a.m.)

Addis Ababa, Sept. 15.

With the end of the rainy season less than a fortnight away, public uneasiness is brewing, especially in foreign commercial services, at the prospect of an Italian invasion.

An air raid on Addis Ababa, directly hostilities begin, is feared, in the event of failure of peace efforts. Precautions have already been taken to protect the population, foreigners and natives alike preparing trenches and shelters in their gardens.

The tone of Sir Samuel Hoare's and M. Laval's speeches at the League Assembly is welcomed here, but it is considered that the time for speeches and negotiations is over, and that the best thing to do is to prepare thoroughly for the "inevitable" war.

The Emperor of Ethiopia is unwilling to do anything which might embarrass Britain or France, but it is learned that the coming week will most likely see an important decision taken by the Negus and his advisers.

Tribesmen to the number of 2,500 demonstrated in front of the Palace this morning, declaring their readiness to fight. Many Government employees are being replaced in the Army, women replacing them in their civilian jobs. Mobilisation is also continuing steadily. —Reuter Special.

LEAGUE EFFORTS

Geneva, Sept. 15.

The sub-committee of the Committee of Five has been working upon its report during the weekend and has practically finished its task. The report is expected to be ready to-morrow night or Tuesday morning and falls into two parts.

The first part deals with the Italian memorandum, and possibly with the Ethiopian reply.

The second part makes a detailed recommendation based on the Paris proposals for compromise, originally offered by Britain and France, filling in detail to the Paris suggestions, including the question of collective economic assistance to Ethiopia.

COUNCIL TO DECIDE

If this report is not accepted by either side, the League Council will have to decide whether to adopt the report under Article XV of the League Covenant. If this is done, the juridical position will be that according to Article XII of the Covenant, in which both sides are pledged not to resort to war within a period of three months.

Should Ethiopia accept the report within that period and if Italy makes war upon Ethiopia, she will be acting in defiance of and without respect for her obligations under the Covenant of the League. —Reuter.

ULSTER'S SUPPORT

London, Sept. 15.

"We approve of everything the British Government has done, and if you call upon the people of Ulster they will be with you to a man in any steps necessary to fulfil their obligations under the League."

This declaration was made by Viscount Craigavon, Prime Minister of Northern Ireland, in the course of a speech at Bessbrook, County Armagh, to-day. —Reuter Special.

U.S. COAL STRIKE DANGER

TEMPORARY STAY OF WALK-OUT

FIFTH IN SIX MONTHS

Washington, Sept. 15.

The threatened strike of American soft coal workers, timed to commence to-morrow, has been postponed for at least a week as a result of last-minute peace efforts by the Assistant Secretary for Labour, Mr. Edward F. McGrady. All day long President Roosevelt was besieged with telephone calls by officials seeking to prevent the tie-up of this great industry and to avoid what must almost certainly lead to violence and bloodshed if the strike develops as anticipated.

An agreement was reached in the early morning between the local miners and the owners. It entails the continuation of the present wage and hour contract, which was due to expire at midnight, for one week further.

The workers have abandoned their demands for the continuance of the old contract basis for a fortnight and that any agreement reached in the future should be retro-active.

This is the fifth time a threatened strike has been postponed within six months. The position is still tense, however. —Reuter.

SIR T. SOUTHOORN'S CONDITION

The following bulletin regarding Sir Thomas Southorn's condition was issued this morning:—"The Director of Medical and Sanitary Services and Government Consultants report that Sir Thomas Southorn's progress is maintained, but that he is suffering from slight bronchitis."

SPEED RECORD

Detroit, Sept. 15.

Major Alexander de Seversky broke the world's record for amphibious planes when he travelled at 230.03 miles per hour to-day. The previous record was 191 miles per hour, held by Lieut. Stone of the U. S. Coast Guard. —Reuter.

Gloomy View Of Europe's Complication

ITALY EXPECTED TO QUIT LEAGUE

FEW PAPERS HOPEFUL

Paris, Sept. 15.
Press opinion over Signor Mussolini's latest step, the communique declaring that the Italo-Ethiopian position allowed no compromise, is divided. There are various interpretations of the Italian statement.

Le Temps, for instance, while admitting that the situation is grave, insists that the Italian communique does not shut the door on all hopes of peace, but is rather a sop to the Italian public.

Le Journal des Debats and Le Temps both warn Signor Mussolini that he will alienate his best friend if he does not accept the solution offered him, which would not only strengthen his prestige but would satisfy Italy's legitimate claims for expansion.

Most other papers take a gloomy view. L'Echo de Paris believes that a rupture between Italy and the League is only a matter of days. —Reuter.

FAMOUS NOVELIST PASSES

REVEREND SILAS K. HOCKING

London, Sept. 15.

The death is announced of the Rev. Silas K. Hocking, the veteran novelist, at the age of 83 years.

The late Mr. Hocking, who was born at St. Stephen's, in Cornwall, became a candidate for the Methodist ministry at the age of 19 and was ordained in 1870, holding pastorates at Pontypool, Spalding, Liverpool, Manchester and Southport. He began to write homely stories of an "improving" type in 1878, his first efforts being "Alice Green" and "Her Benny". So successful were his novels that after thirteen years as a minister at Southport he resigned in 1896 to devote himself entirely to writing.

An ardent Liberal, he unsuccessfully contested Mid-Bucks in 1906 and Coventry in 1910. His 78th birthday in 1928 was celebrated by a dinner at the National Liberal Club, at which he was the guest of honour. (Continued on Page 7.)

LOCAL BANK CLOSES

FEAR OF SECOND RUN TO-DAY

ALL NIGHT MEETING

A surprise was created in banking and business circles this morning, when the National and Commercial Savings Bank, Ltd., of 8A Des Voeux Road Central, failed to open its doors. Posted on the door of the Bank was the following notice, in English and Chinese:—"By order of the Board of Directors, this Bank suspends business, pending reorganisation."

The notice attracted much attention, large crowds soon gathering outside the Bank.

The closing of the Bank follows a large-scale run which was experienced on September 4, immediately after the Bank of Canton had suspended business. So marked was the run that the Bank officials then took steps restricting withdrawals, issuing a notice to the effect that the Bank would pay 20 per cent. of savings bank deposits every ten days.

The Bank has an authorised capital of 500,000 shares of $10 each, of which 257,410 have been issued, fully-paid. The Bank's profit for 1934 was $70,713, and a sum of $80,254 was carried forward to this year.

ASSISTANCE LACKING

Interviewed by a representative of the Telegraph, one of the directors of the Bank stated that the step taken was due to the heavy run experienced by the institution during the past week, following the suspension of payments by the Bank of Canton. Furthermore, the Bank did not receive the assistance which it expected.

When the run was first started, the Bank put up the following notice: "Only 1/5 of the total amount of deposits can be withdrawn at any one time, and subsequent withdrawals shall be at an interval of ten days." This morning, the second period for withdrawal was due, and it is believed that the Bank was unable to meet further demands.

The Board of Directors held a meeting at 7 o'clock last night (Continued on Page 7.)

Anti-Jewish Laws Given To Germany

MIXED MARRIAGES FORBIDDEN

PRISON FOR OFFENDERS

Nuremberg, Sept. 15.

The new laws promulgated by Chancellor Hitler and read to the Nazi rally here to-day by General Herman Goerring, the Chancellor's first lieutenant, were received with frantic cheers to-night.

The first law says that the colours of the Reich are black, white and red. The Reich and the national flag will be the swastika flag, which will also serve for the commercial ensign. The Chancellor will determine the future battle flag and the Reich service flag for the use of the German army and navy. This law comes into force to-morrow.

The second law says that a citizen of the Reich can only be a state citizen of German or kindred blood, who by his or her behaviour has shown willingness and suitability to serve the German people and the Reich loyally. Reich citizenship shall be acquired by the bestowal of a letter of patent. A Reich citizen is the sole bearer of full political rights.

PURITY OF BLOOD

The preamble of the third law says: "Fitted with the conviction that the purity of the German blood is the basis of the future German people, and filled with the unyielding will to safeguard the German nation for all future, the Reichstag has unanimously accepted the following law:

Article 1.—Marriages between Jews and citizens of the nation of German or kindred blood are forbidden; marriages solemnised despite this decree will be invalid, even if solemnised abroad for the purpose of circumventing this law.

Article 2.—Sexual intercourse outside the marriage covenant between Jews and Germans or those of kindred blood is forbidden.

Article 3.—Jews are forbidden to employ female Germans or those of kindred blood in their homes.

Article 4.—Jews are forbidden to hoist the national flag or display the national colours, but may display the Jewish colours.

Penalties for the violation of this law are penal servitude or prison for the first two articles, which will be enforced immediately; and up to one year's imprisonment for a breach of Article 3, which will be enforced as from January 1, 1936.

TOLERABLE RELATIONSHIP

Her Hitler, amplifying the attitude towards the Jews, declared:

"The Government will try to create a basis to enable Germans to find a tolerable relationship with the Jews. If this new, a frustrated and agitation continues, the situation must be re-examined." —Reuter.

GERMANS FOLLOW PEACE PATH

NAZI DECLARATION OF POLICY

WARNING TO LITHUANIA GIVEN BY HITLER

Nuremberg, Sept. 15.

Chancellor Adolf Hitler, before the greatest rally of the Nazi party ever achieved, to-night reiterated Germany's love of peace; but in the same breath declared that Memel had been robbed by Lithuania and that Germany must pay attention to the situation there. He appealed to the League of Nations to prevent things which might be regretted by all concerned, and the tribunes cheered with one thunderous voice.

A storm of cheering greeted Der Fuehrer as he entered the temporary Reichstag Building, which was decorated with masses of flowers and swastika flags. Thousands of red and white carnations, gladioli, ferns and shrubs adorned the building. The chairs were covered with red plush and the wooden tribunes and the gallery were smothered in red bunting. The swastika was everywhere.

Two searchlights picked out the platform where the party of leaders, Herr Hitler and his chief lieutenants, sat at a long red-draped table, with two microphones facing them.

BRITAIN'S RYDER CUP CHALLENGE

THREE WHITCOMBES ON TEAM

CONFIDENT OF SUCCESS

(Special to "Telegraph")

London, Sept. 15.
The British Ryder Cup team of golfers left for the United States to-day, and expressed confidence of its ability to retain the trophy. The captain of the team, Charles Whitcombe, interviewed by Reuter, said: "I am sure we shall win; the cup is already insured for the return journey."

The team comprises Charles Whitcombe, Reginald Whitcombe, Ernest Whitcombe, Percy Alliss, A. H. Pugham, R. Burton, E. W. Jarman, L. J. Cox and A. Perry.

The match for the Cup is being played at the Ridgewood Country Club on September 28 and 29. —Reuter Special.

Violent Critic

NOTED CONDUCTOR USES HIS STICK

BRIGHTON BLASTED

London, Sept. 15.
"I put my stick through three windows in the dressing rooms. Before I go I intend to put it through the rest," declared Sir Thomas Beecham, the noted impresario, conductor and composer, in a speech at the end of a concert at Brighton Dome, recently reconstructed at a cost of £40,000.

He said he had been asked his opinion of the new building. "I had to walk up three flights of stairs to the dressing rooms with their hermetically sealed windows which won't open. In Aberdeen a few years ago I was greeted with red carpets and cigars and champagne and an orchestra not half as good as this one; but here

The Chancellor broadcast his declaration of policy to all of Germany.

"For us there can only be one course: our great and unthinkable love of peace."

"The purpose of the creation of our army is not to deprive other nations of their freedom, but to defend our own freedom. We do not want to concern ourselves with matters which are not our business, and we do not want to be drawn into them," he declared.

MEMEL DANGER

Referring to the situation existing in Memel, amid wild cheers, Der Fuehrer said that peaceful territory had been robbed by Lithuania. The people of Memel had been oppressed for years. Germany must pay attention to that.

The representations of the foreign Powers had been fruitless.

GERMAN THREAT OF WAR?

Kaunase, Sept. 16.

Herr Hitler's attack on Lithuania is considered here as a threat of war, which endangers the peace of Eastern Europe.

The Government intends to apply to the signatory Powers of the Memel Convention, asking them to give a warning to Germany. It emphasises that the elections in Memel are being held in a legal manner under the eye of representatives of the Powers. —Reuter.

and the citizens of Memel had been treated worse than criminals. Every appeal to the Lithuanian Government had been in vain. The preparations for the coming Memel elections were a mockery. Herr Hitler appealed to the League to prevent things which might be regretted by all concerned.

SLAP AT MOSCOW

Herr Hitler ironically said that the recent Congress of the Comintern in Moscow had clearly underlined the statement of the Bolsheviks that they were not (Continued on Page 7.)

"If those grand old war-horses of song, Melba and Tetzi zini went up those stairs, they wouldn't come down again. I congratulate you on this magnificent structure and hope it will be of some use to you. It is no earthly use to me." —Reuter.

LEGALLY
FOR 27 YEARSMAN THEY CANNOT ELECTROCUTE

New York, Sept. 1.

A few feet from the cell occupied by Bruno Richard Hauptmann, convicted kidnapper of the Lindbergh baby, in "Death Row" of Trenton's State prison, there lives a man who has been legally dead for many years.

His name is Archibald Herron. He has been in the prison for twenty-seven years.

Herron was sentenced to die in 1908 for the "grudge" murder of a justice of the peace.

Twice stays of execution were granted. Then the governor of the State refused to continue postponing the execution.

Herron was prepared for death in the electric chair. But later the same day Justice Bergen overrode the governor and issued another stay pending an inquiry into Herron's sanity.

Just Waiting

Two months later Justice Bergen issued a further order staying all proceedings until further orders of the court. Those further orders were never made because the judge died.

Under a clause of New Jersey law, Herron is therefore presumed dead. He was a blacksmith before he committed the crime. When he entered prison he was tall and powerful.

To-day he is a wreck. His eyes are so weak from years of dim light that he is unable to read. He does not smoke. He has no one to write to. He just sits in his cell—waiting.

He does not know that Hauptmann is one of his neighbors. He does not even know who Lindbergh is.

He heard wireless for the first time a few days ago during a visit to the prison hospital. He was frightened.

Son's One Visit

Herron's only recreation is a daily walk, during which he is guided by other prisoners. He cannot properly converse with them because he is almost stone deaf.

Only once during his twenty-seven years in prison has he received a visitor—his son, who never came back to see him.

Lawyers have suggested to the old man: "Why don't you get your son to bring a suit claiming your corpse as you are legally dead?"

But the man who is dead in the eyes of the law replies: "Oh, he wouldn't want it."

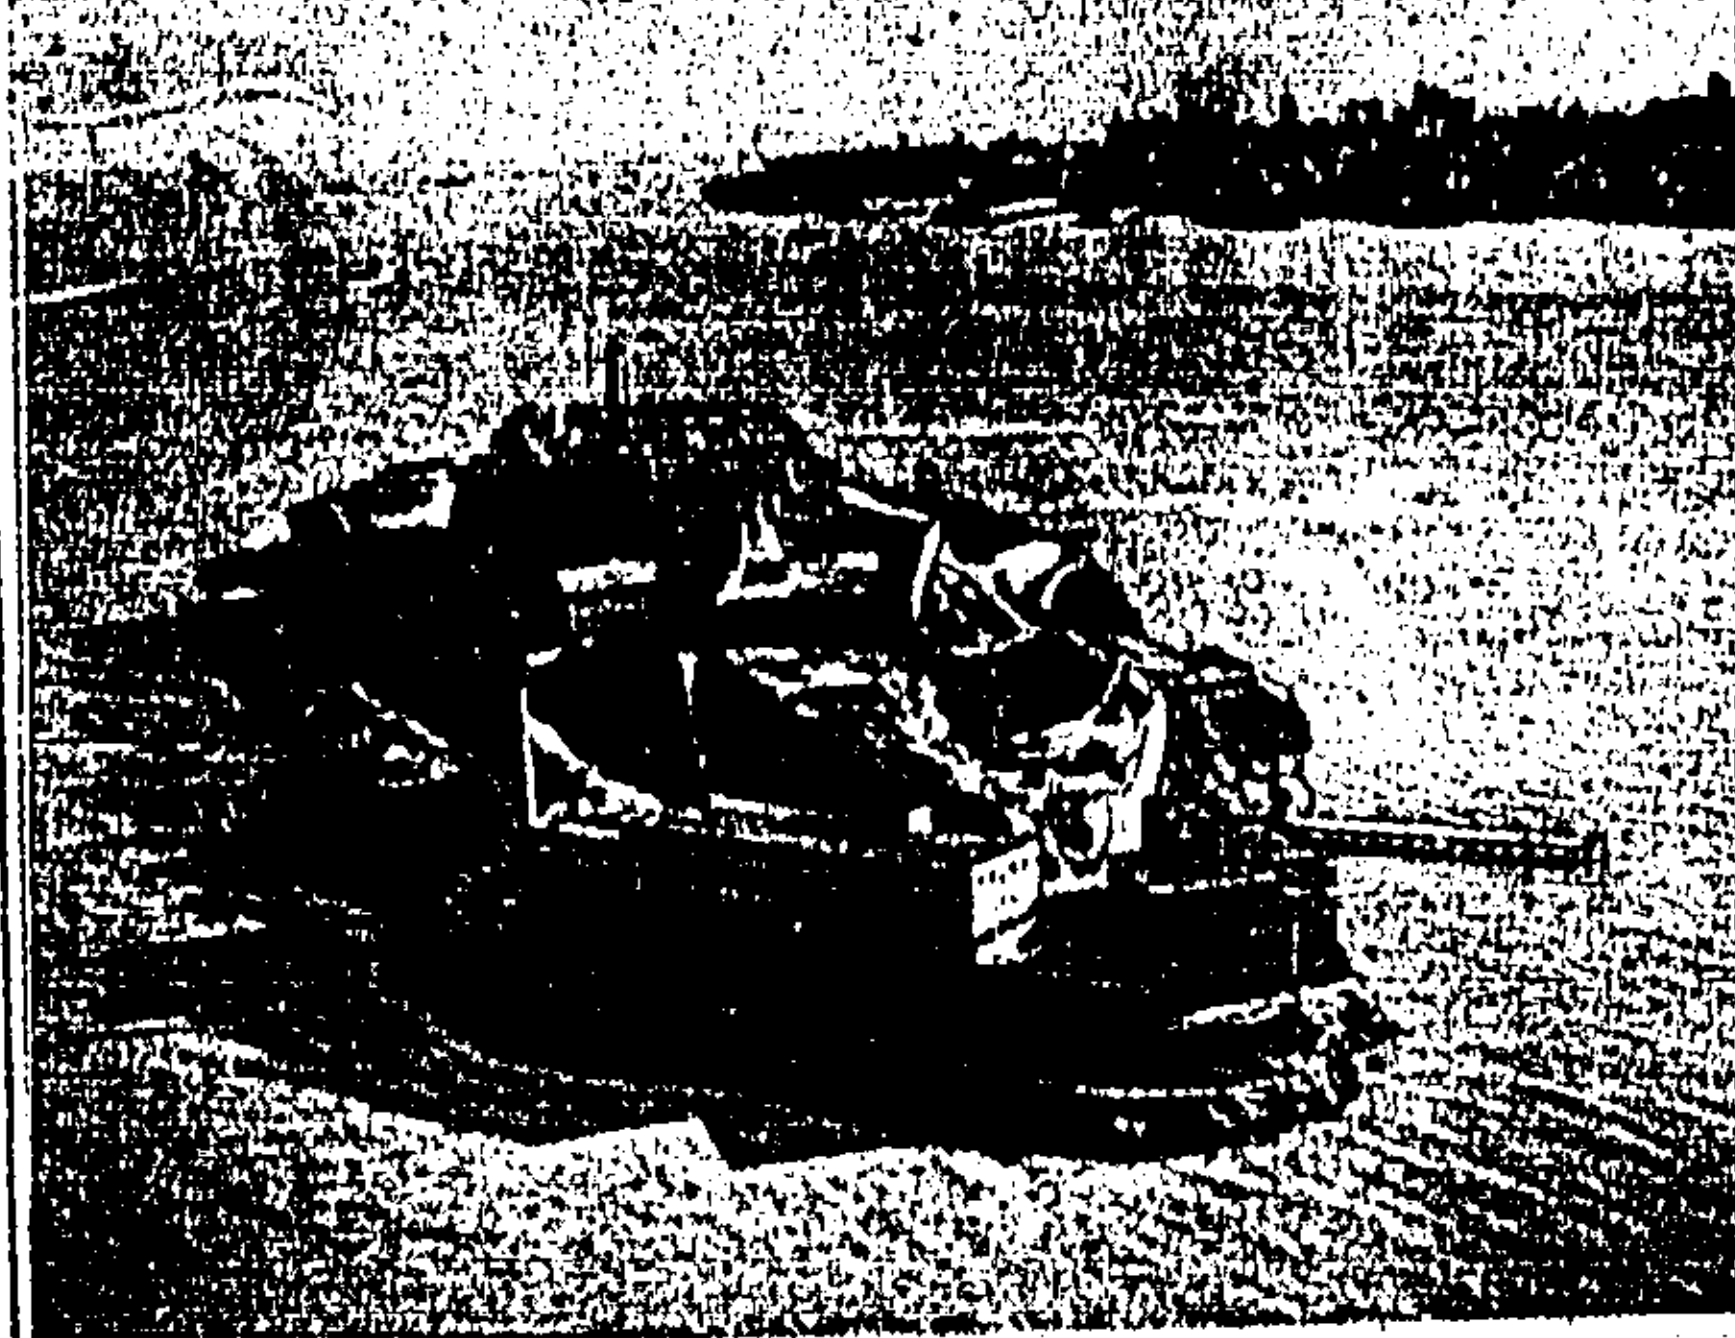

AFTER RECORD
ON OCT. 11Kingsford-Smith
To Make New Flight

Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith has tentatively fixed October 11 as the date he and Mr. Tom Pethybridge will hop off from England in the Lockheed Atlas, Lady Southern Cross, for Australia.

"Smithy" in America the next fortnight will confer with Pan-American Airways and the Sikorsky flying-boat company on the operation and maintenance of marine air services.

He will also visit a motor-car factory at Auburn, Indiana, to watch the construction of a special super-charged motor car which he ordered before leaving Sydney.

Mr. B. Shell, "Smithy's" personal representative, said that Sir Charles would make a fast trip back to Sydney, but if it were necessary for him to confer with various air-line executives on the way he would do so.

ALCATRAZ ISLAND . . . America's "prison of eternal silence".

Al Capone Promoted In America's "Gaul Of Eternal Silence"

New York, Sept. 1.

William Henry Ambrose, an Englishman, once a drug peddler, removed for deportation to-day from Alcatraz Prison, revealed some of the secrets of America's "Devil Island"—the island gaol in San Francisco Harbour.

Ambrose has been released for deportation under President Roosevelt's order that foreign criminals must be sent back to their own countries.

Alcatraz Prison, he said, is the gaol of eternal silence. No prisoner may speak except during one authorized period a week.

"It is enough to drive you crazy. Even 'hard guys' like Al Capone are furious at the silence, the strict discipline, the harsh punishment."

"Capone has three or four times been thrown into a dungeon for talking." But Ambrose confirmed the report that Capone, the ex-racketeer, has been appointed prison librarian.

Capone, according to Ambrose, is not losing his reason. "He's not giving away an inch," he says.

A PRINCE'S
TANGLEPRINCESS HER OWN
MOTHER-IN-LAW

A MARRIAGE tangle without a precedent is disclosed by the application of the seventy-five-year-old Prince Henry of Pless to the Polish courts for the cancellation of his second marriage to the Countess de Silva, daughter of the Marquis d'Arcicouar.

This marriage was dissolved some time ago by the German courts, and the countess then married Bolko, Count Hochberg, the son of the prince.

Her two-year-old son by Prince Henry was adopted by Count Hochberg.

But the Polish law does not recognise the German divorce, and, until they do, the Countess is her own mother-in-law.

The prince is one of the wealthiest men in Poland. His estates in Upper Silesia are temporarily sequestered for tax evasion.

It is understood that he wishes to marry a third time.

Man Who
Forgot
His Own CodeARRESTED BY ORDER
OF HIS SON

New York, Aug. 28.

A transcontinental misunderstanding led to the temporary detention in Seattle over the week-end of a prominent New Jersey manufacturer and his son.

It caused many chuckles when the cause of it was explained to-day by another son at his home in Essex Fells, New Jersey.

The manufacturer, Mr. Carroll Dunham Smith, 63, and his son, Mr. De Venus Smith, were seized by detectives in the Seattle office of a telephone company. Their capture ended a stiff fight, in which they thought they were resisting would-be kidnappers.

Their arrest, it was later discovered, had been requested by another member of the family, Mr. Carroll Dunham Smith, jun., in the mistaken belief that they were some other persons trying to obtain money under false pretences.

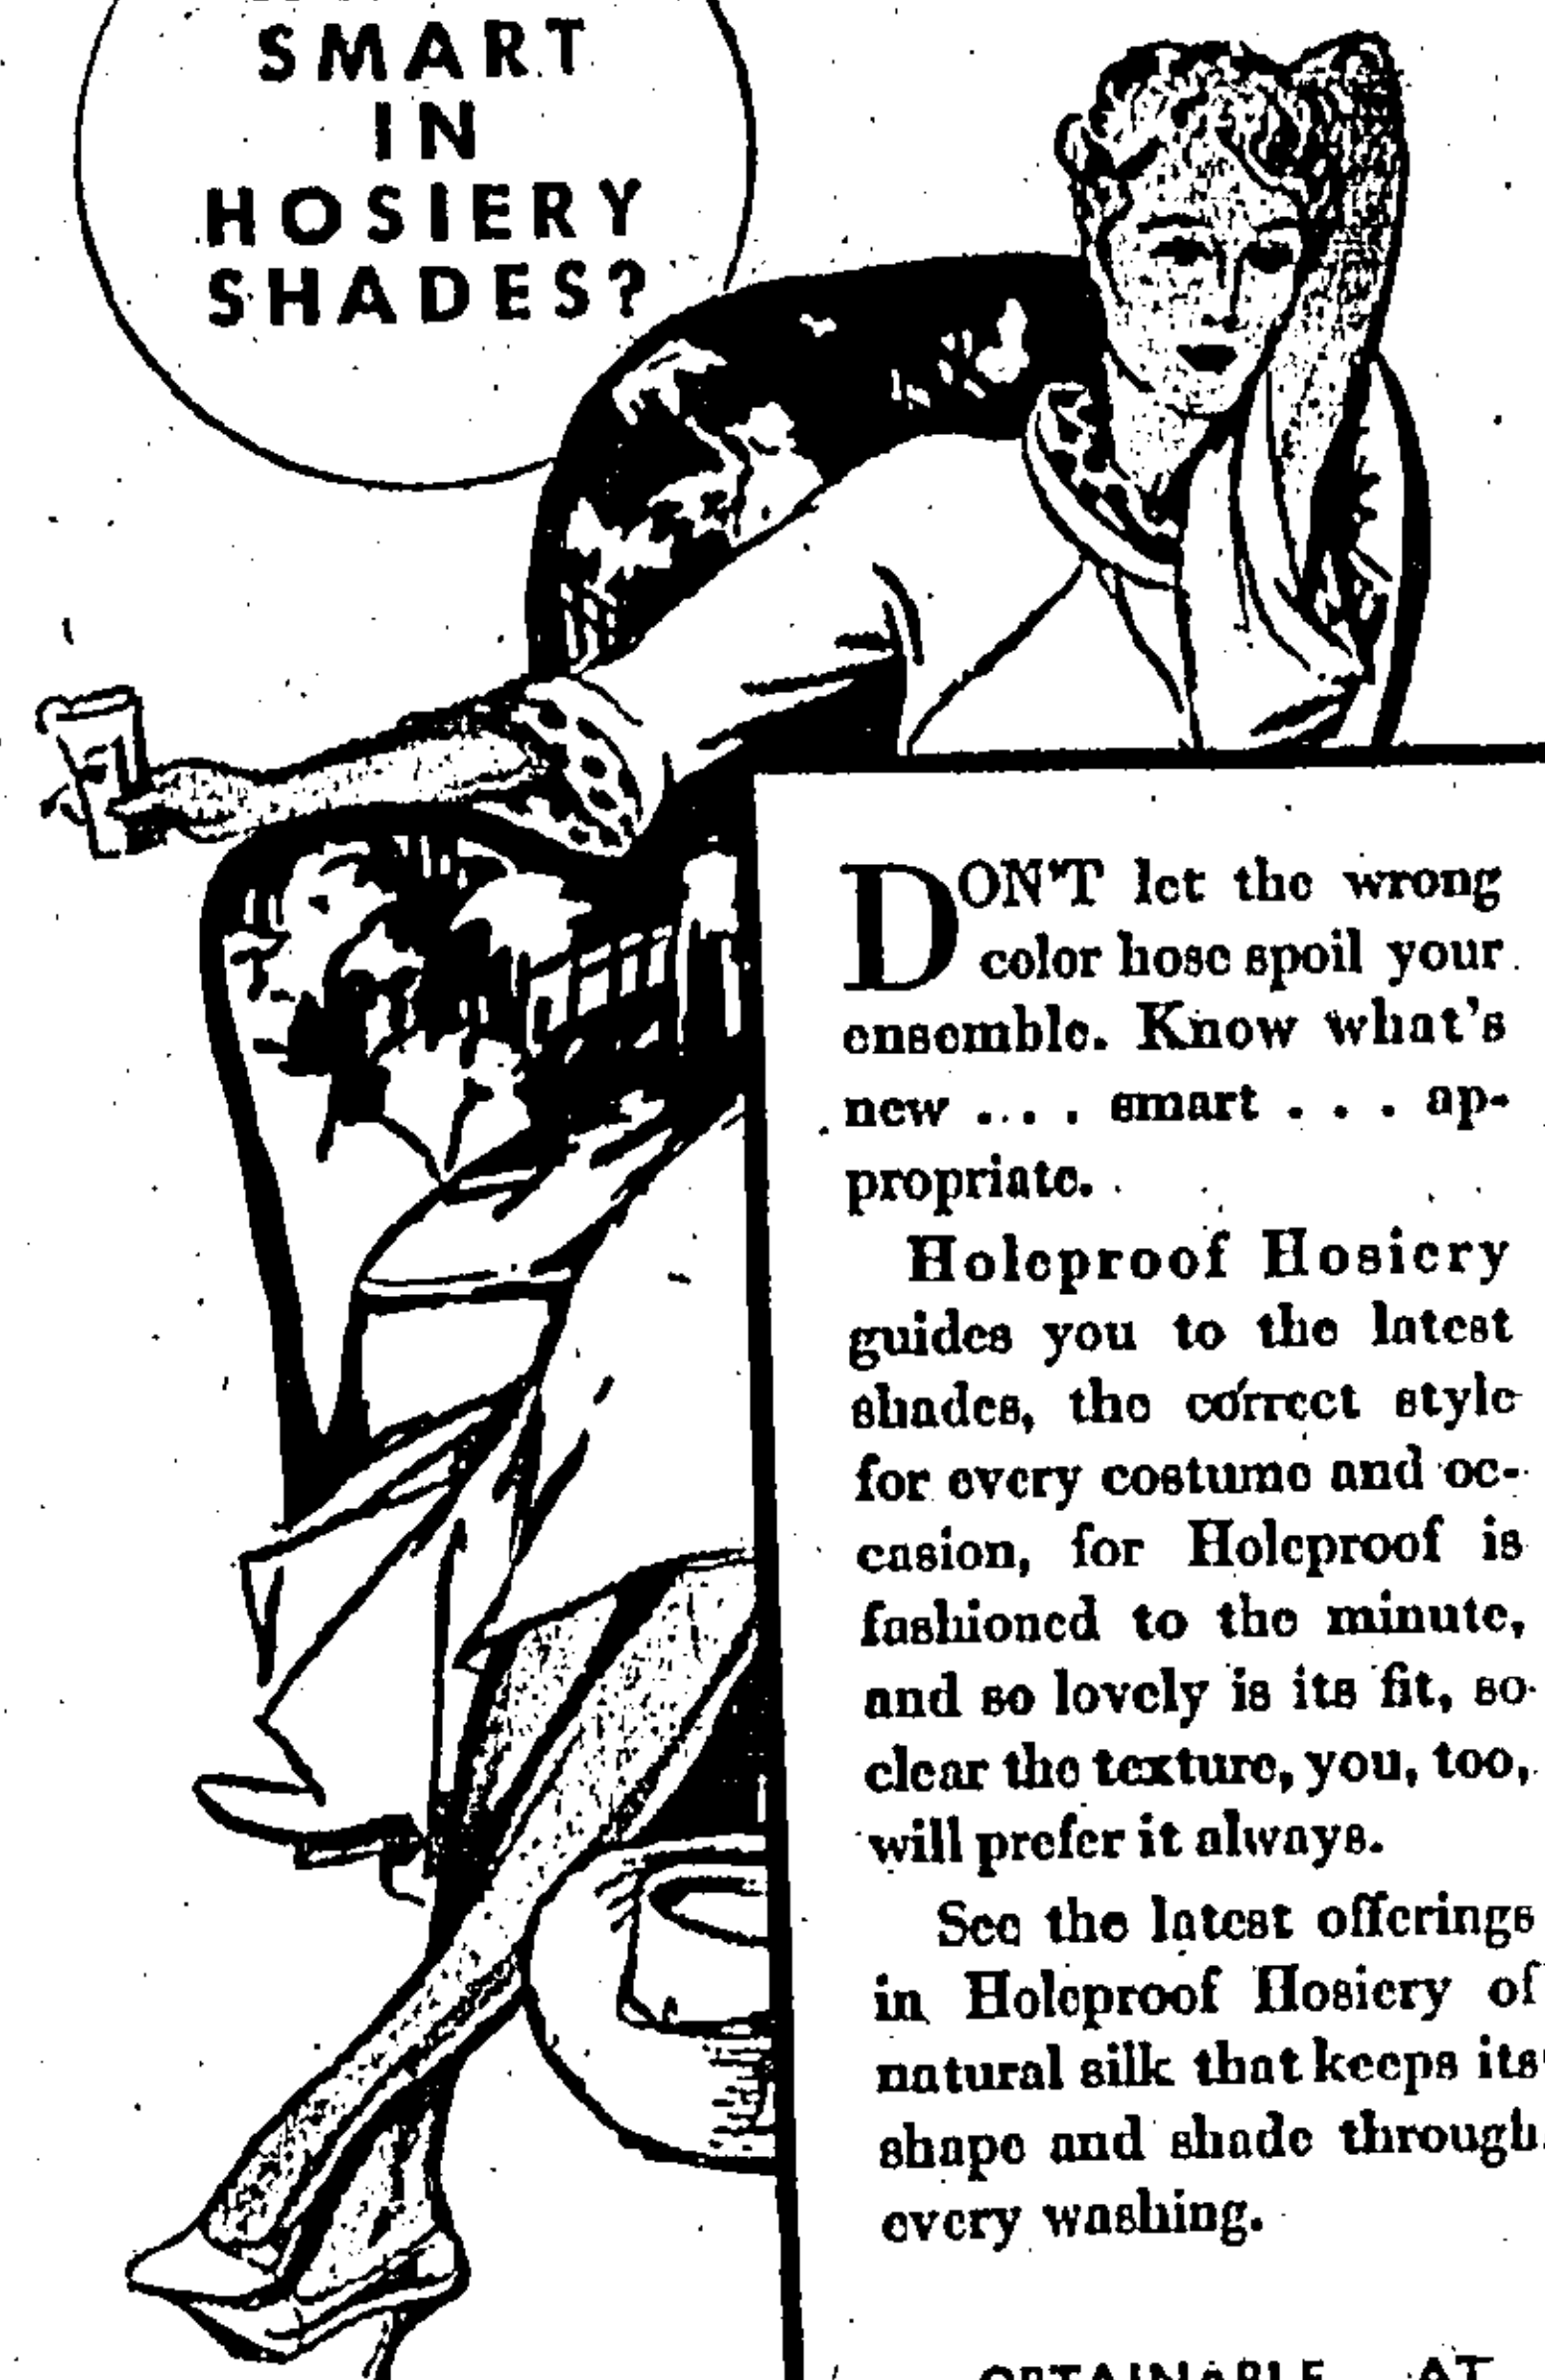

Before leaving on a tour which was to take them to the Pacific Coast, young Mr. Smith said to-day, his father and brother arranged to use a code word if they should telegraph for extra funds. When he received a telegram which did not contain the code word he became suspicious.

Not Recognised

Instead of sending the money he demanded a description of the two men who had asked for it. The description sent by the telephone company did not seem to him to apply to his father and brother. Convinced that he was dealing with thieves, he asked the Seattle police to arrest the men if they returned to collect the money.

After the struggle and arrest Mr. Smith and his son were taken to the police station. They renewed their protests, and gave the code word. They had simply forgotten to put it in the telegram. The code word was checked, and they were set at liberty.

Ironically enough, Mr. Carroll Smith, sen., is an honorary member of the New Jersey Police Chiefs' Association.

Explorers To Brave New Perils

BRITISH-U.S. PARTY TO PENETRATE UPPER ANDES

New York, Sept. 3.

Members of a British-American expedition who will seek to explore territory in the Upper Andes and along the Amazon, from which no white man has ever returned alive, were scheduled to sail from here to-day.

Capt. Eric Erskine Loch, D.S.O., retired British officer, heads the expedition, which is sponsored by the Museum of the American Indian (Heye Foundation). Four others make up the party. Their first destination is Guayaquil, Ecuador, where they will be joined by two Ecuadorian scientists. The group then will proceed by mountain railway to Riobamba, whence they will travel by motor truck to Hacienda Leita, Patate, in the Upper Andes.

This is the last point of civilization the party will contact before trekking through isolated regions. The trip through hitherto unexplored, unmapped territory will be made by mule, on foot, by canoe and raft.

Indian Friendship Sought

Loch said before sailing that the main purpose of the expedition is to establish friendly relations with the Sabelas Indians, an almost "unknown" tribe, and to bring back ethnological specimens for the Museum of the American Indian. Geographical data and maps obtained by the party, he said, will be added to the common international fund of such knowledge. "No museum in the world," he declared, "has any ethnological specimens of the Sabelas. They are a fierce and shy tribe, known as the 'phantom people' by the few whites who have been near their territory, and called the 'auka' or 'wild-men' by neighbouring tribes."

Other Explorers Murdered

"No white man has ever penetrated the Sabelas country and come out alive. Ours is the first exploration party on record to set out for this area. In 1927 a small group of Peruvian labourers, in search of supplies, stumbled upon a number of the Indians. All the Peruvians were murdered."

Loch added, however, that he is confident he and the other members of the expedition will be able to win the confidence and friendship of the Sabelas.

"It will be a long job," he said. "We may remain in the interior for ten months or a year. After we have convinced the Indians that our mission is peaceful, we will begin our studies. For an interpreter we will use one of the members of a nearby tribe."

Takes Gift Machetes

The explorer showed visitors the "calling cards" which he intends to use as a means of introduction to the Sabelas. These were hundreds of machetes, made in Connecticut.

"I hope the Indians will accept them as tokens of friendship," he said. "It would be pretty bad if they turned out to be boomerangs." Other members of the expedition are:

Carl de Muralt of Zurich, Switzerland, who is a well-known archaeologist. He organized and partly financed the 1932 salvage expedition to the wreck of the steamer Merida, sunk 45 miles off the Virginia coast. This expedition recovered the vessel's safe.

H. M. Hardwicke of New York, geologist and topographer.

Wilfred Klamroth of New York, assistant geologist.

Peter Prime of Wisconsin, botanist.

Alasdair Loch of London, aviator and navigator. He is a cousin of the expedition's leader.

Explored With Dyott

This will be Loch's second trip to Ecuador and the valley of the Upper Amazon. In 1932 he accompanied Commander George Dyott on his Ecuadorian expedition. A romantic note was injected by Loch when he pointed out that the expedition will go to the shores of the lake near the perpetual snowline of the Llanganates Mountains, where tradition says that the "lost treasure" of the Incas was hidden 400 years ago, at the time of the conquest by Spain.

"Our expedition is a purely scientific purpose," he said, "but of course we will not pass by the lake which tradition has made one of the treasure storehouses of the world without attempting to prove or disprove this legend."

Princess 'Carmo' Prisoner In German Castle

RAN AWAY WITH MAN SHE LOVED

Berlin, Sept. 1.

Beautiful, betrothed, twenty-five-year-old "Princess Carmo," stepdaughter of the ex-Kaiser, is being kept away from her lover in Castle Sabor, in Silesia, while her mother the Princess Hermine, decides whether or not she can marry the man she loves.

The Princess—her real name is Princess Hermine Caroline—fell in love last year with young Herr George Martin Wunderlich, her mother's secretary.

Her mother approved of the match, and the engaged couple spent happy days at Doorn, the ex-Kaiser's Dutch home.

Suddenly, however, Princess Hermine, the ex-Kaiser's wife, changed her mind and ordered her daughter to break off the engagement.

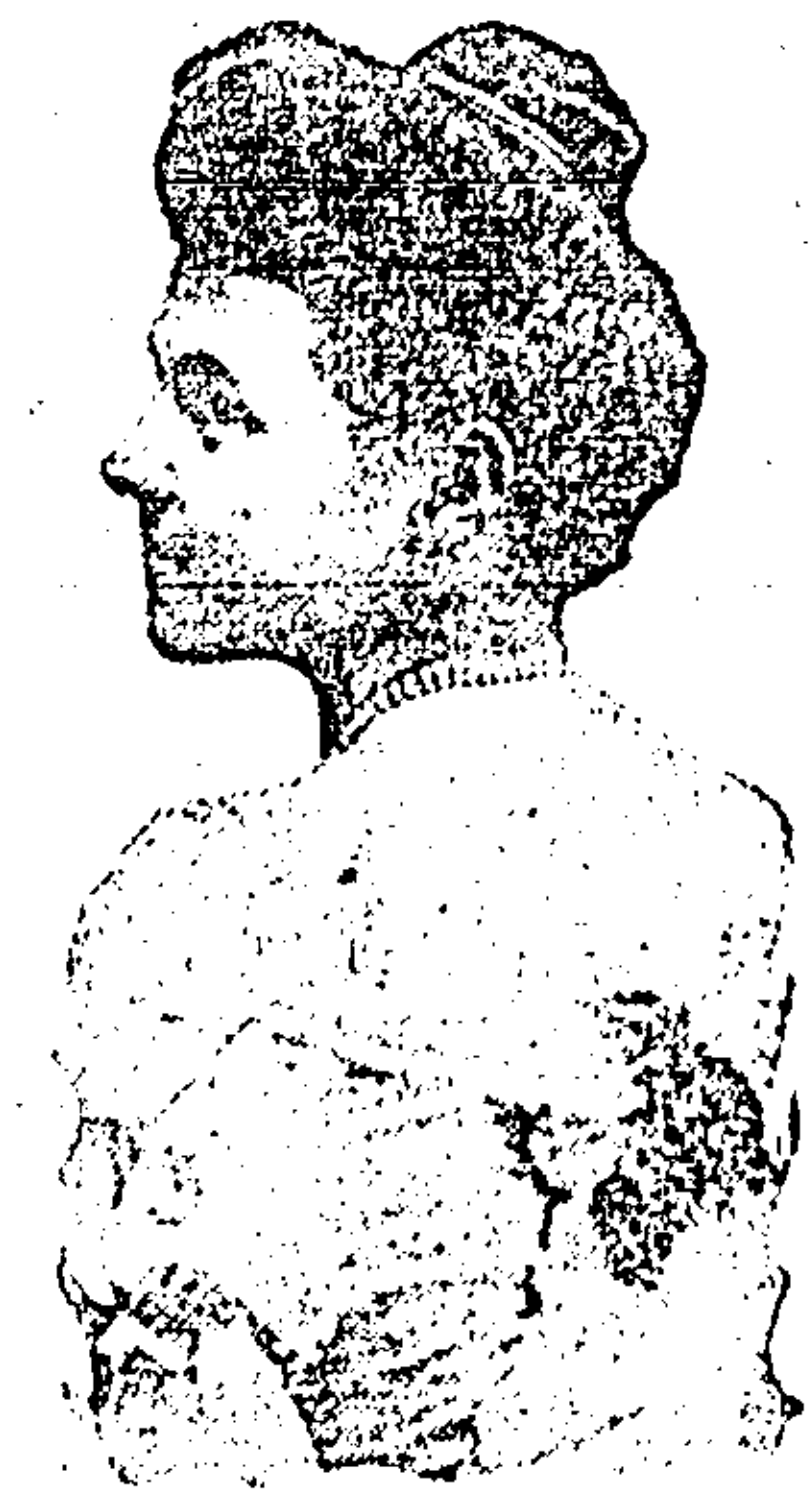

"Princess Carmo," forbidden to see any more of the man she loved, retaliated by escaping from Doorn and taking a room in a small boarding house in Berlin.

Her mother followed her, and from her headquarters in the old Imperial Palace in the United den Linden ordered her daughter to return to her.

The Princess obeyed. For a time she lived with her mother in the palace and spent her days in long solitary walks through the Berlin parks, accompanied by her black Scotch terrier.

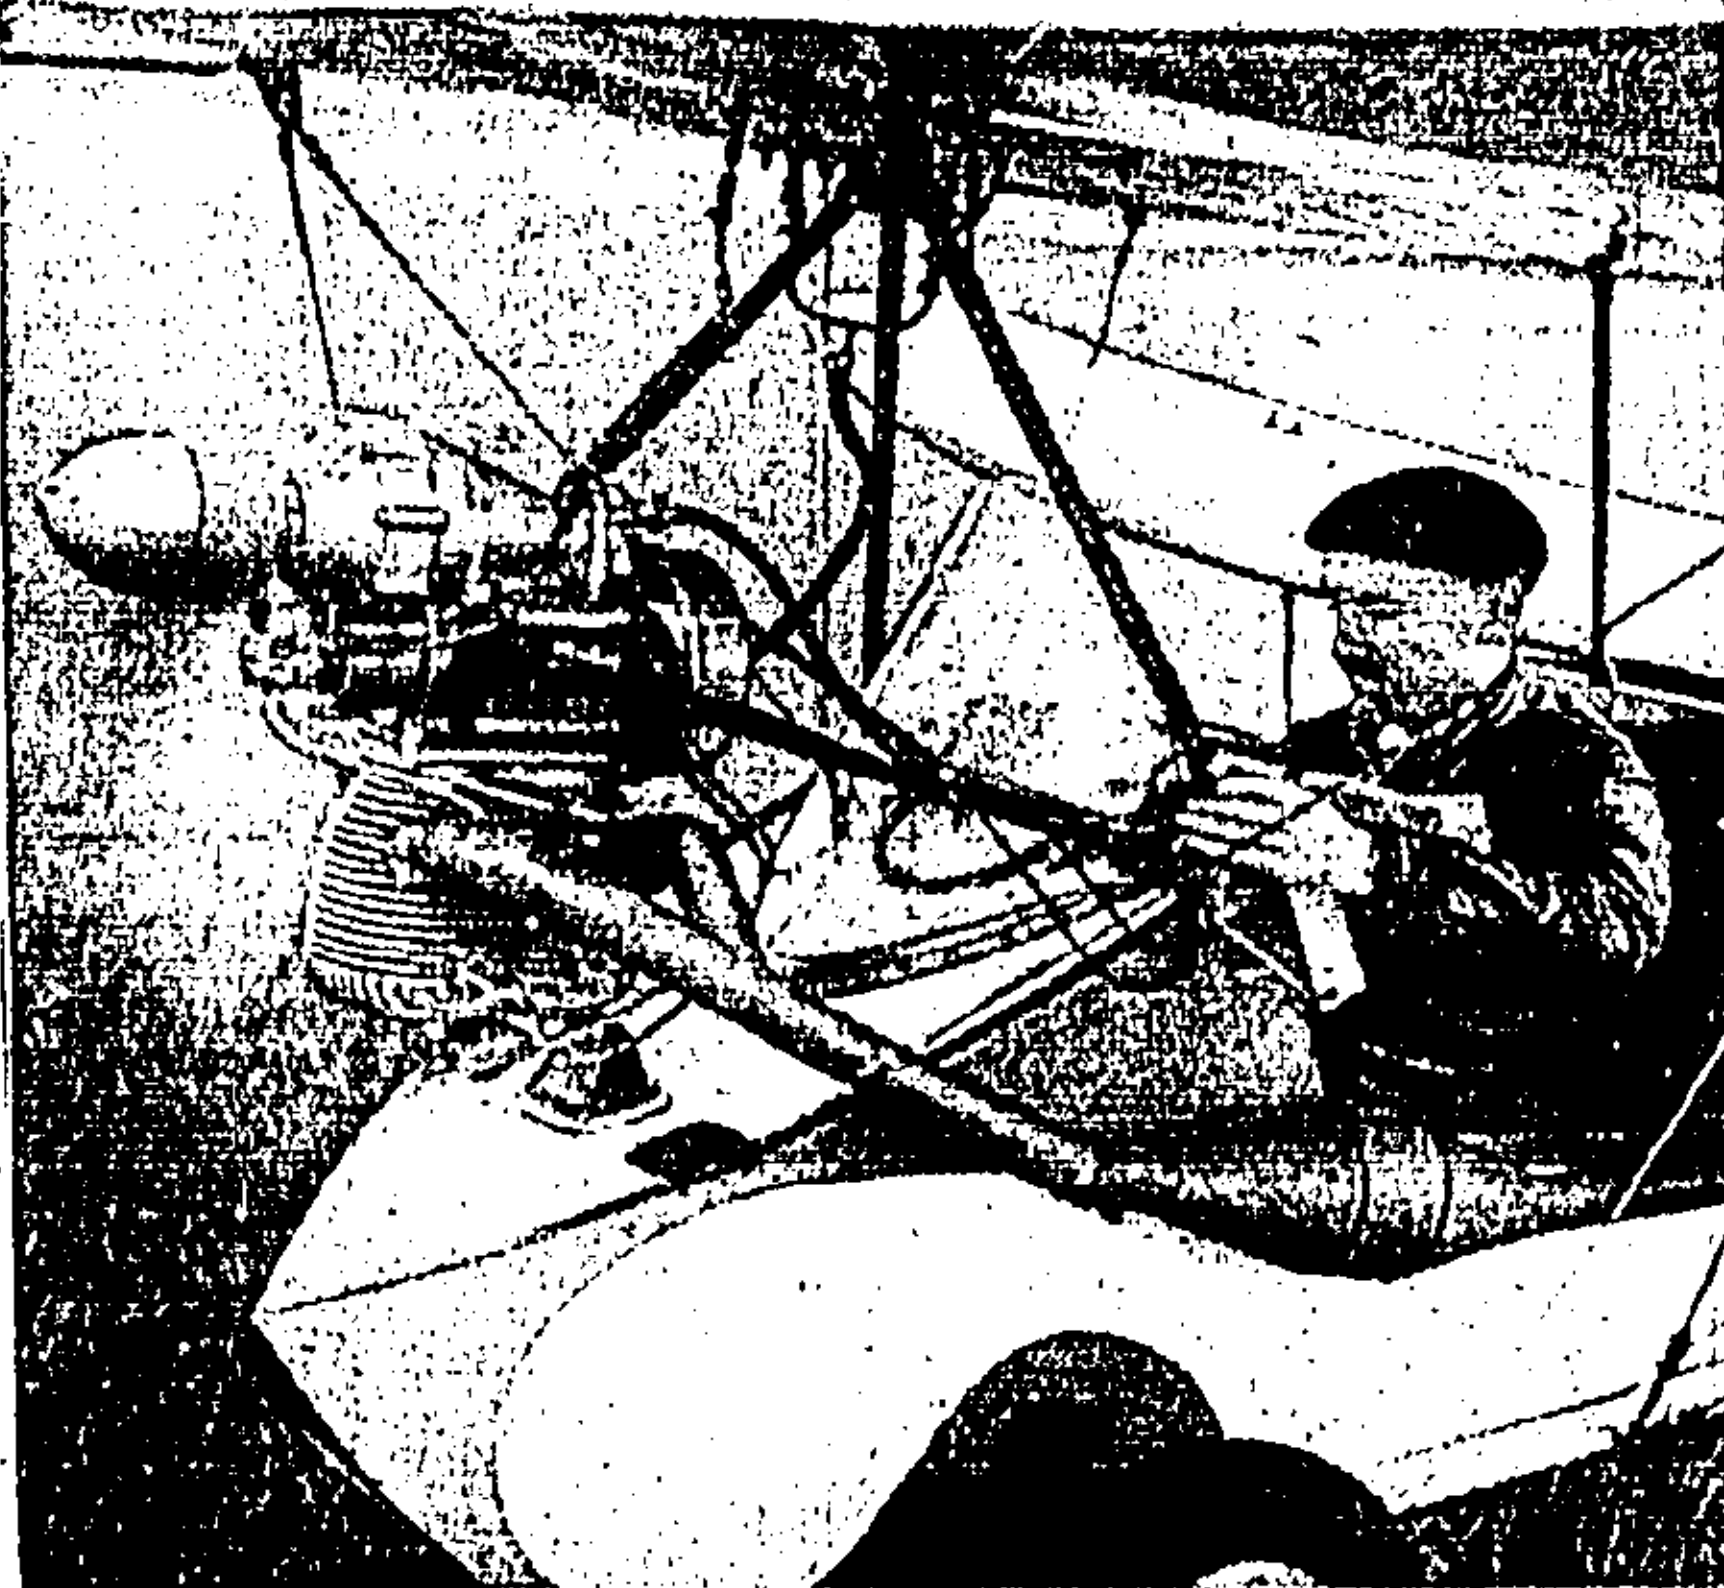

Then her mother took her away to Castle Sabor. She has not, however, lost all hope. Herr Wunderlich, no longer secretary to the Empress, is trying to find another position to enable him to support a wife.

This month there is to be a conference at Castle Sabor, where the parted lovers will try to win back permission to marry.

PRINCESS HERMINE forbade her daughter to marry.

"Flying Flea" Crosses Channel

The cheap aeroplane is now a reality. A Frenchman, M. Midget, has constructed a small machine which costs only £70. The inventor recently flew across the English Channel—in 52 minutes. The "Flying Flea", as the plane is called, has great sensation in England.

DID NOT SPARE ROD

Brutality Of Victorian Mothers

GIRLS OF TO-DAY LUCKIER THAN "GRANNIES"

"Our grandmothers were sadists." Girls of to-day who think that parents deal hardly with them in their home life should read this story of grandmother's day. Here is a picture of the girl of the '60s:—

Frustrated in her love-making by her prudish, severe elders, the girl of the '60s was a wretched, sex-starved person who was taught that marriage was her only goal, but who was nevertheless balked at every turn in acquiring a man's affections.

If it were not cruel to dissect these palpitating young hearts, it would be easy to demonstrate the crude sexual urge hampered by unwholesome restraint until, in many cases, it became converted into definitely pathological forms.

This is an excerpt from "Feminine Attitudes in the Nineteenth Century" the author of which, C. Willett Cunningham, also quotes from a lengthy correspondence in the columns of the "Englishwoman's Domestic Magazine" for 1858 on the vexed question, "Ought we to whip our daughters?"

The volume of letters on this subject became so great that at last the magazine had to publish a special monthly supplement to contain them.

Birch Preferred

They supply us with evidence of a mass of sadism existing not merely in girls' schools, but in the happy English home. Letters from parents and schoolmistresses supply precise details:—

The number of strokes—twenty to fifty—required "to convert a wicked and stubborn nature into a sweet and loving disposition."

The method—by strap, slipper or birch (but the birch is preferable)—"as causing the more exquisite pain."

The tying down or the hanging up (for each has its advocates) of the victim, whose age runs from four to eighteen.

The preparation for the ceremony, the stripping and the struggles and the screams, while the executioner (so often a female who has missed the more normal forms of sexual gratification) assures us that she does it "as evidence of the tenderest love."

Artificial Busts

A widower, inconsolable for the loss of his dear wife, explains that "he is now forced to flog his daughter himself, and the elder ones make such difficulties."

But the author does not harp continually on this subject. He has placed our grandmothers and great-grandmothers under the microscope, revealed the nature of their thoughts, their beauty secrets, their underclothes, their corsets, their musings on love, skin ungues and artificial busts.

Yet he is never unkind. His findings are tempered always with a kindly sense of humour that the author has much to say. He quotes from a letter from a tradesman in 1828.

"They are unable to stand, sit or walk as women used to do; to expect one of them to stoop would be absurd."

"My daughter Margaret made the experiment the other day. Her stays gave way with a tremendous explosion and down she fell upon the ground, and I thought she had snapped in two."

MEN WHO ARE "GOLF MAD"

EX-ARMY OFFICERS BECOME CADDIES

London, Aug. 30.

Former Army officers, ex-bank clerks and men from a host of other callings are working on golf courses as caddies. Many of them were attracted by the hope that they will become champions.

Several have means. There is a caddy at one club near London who owns half a dozen villa residences and dabbles with fair success on the Stock Exchange.

"These men may be described as being 'golf mad,'" said the secretary of a famous club. "I know of instances where men in quite comfortable positions have thrown up their employment to become caddies."

"They have all been golfing enthusiasts, but unable to devote their time to the game owing to their work."

For the ambition of the caddy to become a champion there is precedent.

J. H. Taylor who was five times winner of the open championship, was a caddy at Westward Ho! Harry Vardon as a boy was caddy for six months; while others, who started their golfing career as caddies, include James Braid, George Duncan, Alec Herd, Ted Ray and Walter Hagen.

POLICE AQUATICS

ANNUAL MEETING AT V.R.C.

PROMINENT GUESTS

Recent competition and many novel items featured the programme of the 14th annual aquatic sports of the Hongkong Police and Prisoners Recreation Club held in the Victoria afternoon in the presence of a large and distinguished gathering.

Among those present were His Excellency the Governor, Mr. N. L.
Smith, accompanied by Mrs. Smith,
Hon. Mr. R. H. Kewell, Hon. Mr.
S. W. Tai, Mr. D. Burlingham,

Pender, Acting Deputy Inspector
General of Police, Mr. J. W. P.
Thompson, Mr. W. L. Sparrow,
Mr. A. R. S. Major and Mr. G. S.

Some of the events were contested from police launches driven up near Maudslayi Pier to form a square.
The launches were bedecked with flags, adding colour to the surroundings.

Warder Franks distinguished himself by winning the Aggregate Cup, second place being shared by three members of the Police, Hutchinson, last year's holder, Bower and Manning.

Seaman W94, of the Water Police, was the outstanding performer
among the Asians.

The water polo match between the Police and the Warders was keenly contested, resulting in a win for the former by the only goal, scored by Bower.

At the conclusion of the events,
Mr. Sparrow, Chairman of the Committee, called upon Mrs. Franks to present the prizes, expressed results of the day, and thanked the members of the Police and the other guests.

Mr. Sparrow thanked all those who had worked hard to make the meeting the success it was, and also the very kind invitation and honour that had been extended to his wife.

"I can only say that we have had fine weather, a fine programme and fine sport," he added.

Mr. Burlingham, in a short speech, thanked the organisers of the meeting for their work, especially Sub-Inspector Hunt, who had done much in the preparation of the programme.

He thanked His Excellency and Mrs.
Smith for their kind attendance and Mrs. Franks for kindly giving away the awards.

Cheers were called for Mrs.
Franks and for Mr. Burlingham and were heartily given.

LEITH-ROSS MISSION MAKING PROGRESS

Tokyo, Sept. 14. Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, the chief economic adviser of the British Government, who is en route to China, has continued his informal conversations with Japanese officials. He conferred with the Finance Minister, Mr. Kore-jiro Takahashi, on Friday. It is understood that Sir Frederick Leith-Ross merely outlined the purposes of his investigations in China, but made no proposals. He discussed the general world trade situation.

Meanwhile, Japanese newspaper correspondents report that America, Holland, the Soviets and others are anxious regarding reports of a definite rapprochement between Britain and Japan regarding China. Therefore they are maintaining close contact with the group of financiers in China headed by Mr. T. V. Soong, the former Minister and now President of the Nanking National Economic Council.

The newspapers, especially the Asahi continue to insist that in the event that Great Britain and Japan arrange a co-operation programme in China, Britain must realise Japan's actual situation and must assist Japan in obtaining areas to relieve her population congestion. United Press.

P. AND O. CHAIRMAN SPEAKS OUT AT LIVERPOOL

London, Sept. 14. The Hon. Alexander Shaw, Chairman of the Peninsular and Oriental Company, speaking at a dinner at Liverpool in the company's new liner Strathmore last night emphasised the menace to British shipping from state-aided foreign competition. He declared that unless some defence was afforded, the British passenger mail service line between Australia and San Francisco would be withdrawn in a few months.

Much the same applied to the important British link between Canada and Australasia and unless fairer conditions ensued the British sea trade between Australia and New Zealand would be wiped out. Reuter.

KOWLOON ROBBERY

PORTUGUESE COUPLE VICTIMISED

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Sequeira, of 5, Rutland Quadrant, were the victims of an armed highway robbery perpetrated by two Chinese men, one of whom produced a revolver, in the Kowloon Tong district on Saturday evening, according to a police report.

The thieves escaped with jewellery to the value of $100, the property of Mrs. Sequeira. The haul comprised an 18 karat gold wedding ring, a nine karat gold wristlet watch, valued at $50, and a Chinese gold rope bangle, worth $100.

Mr. Sequeira was searched by the robbers but nothing was stolen from him.

It appears that the Portuguese couple were returning home along a hillside path leading from the Kowloon Tong Reservoir to the west of the mile tunnel when they were stopped by two Chinese. One of them dressed in black clothing produced a revolver from beneath his jacket, at the same time saying "Tah sei nei."

The other robber was dressed in greyish clothing.

They relieved Mrs. Sequeira of her jewellery from her wrist and finger.

The robbers fled in the direction of Shumshuipo.

The report adds that both men had the appearance of being workmen.

POSSESSION OF ARMS

SMART SENTENCE FOR UNEMPLOYED MAN

Stated to have arrived recently from Swatow, Hui Chau-wu, unemployed, appeared before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy on Saturday on remand, for the possession of an automatic pistol and five rounds of ammunition without a licence from the Inspector General of Police.

Chau Kau, unemployed, was similarly charged. He pleaded not guilty. The plea was accepted by the police and the charge was withdrawn.

Detective-Inspector M. Murphy, for the prosecution, stated that on information received a party of police proceeded to 58 Connaught Road Central on the morning of September 10. The revolver was found in a girdle which the defendant Hui Chau-wu was wearing. Defendant at first stated that he got the weapon from the second defendant but later he denied it.

Hui Chau-wu further admitted that he intended to sell the revolver for the biggest price he could get.

A fine of $1,000, with the alternative of one year's hard labour, was imposed. The revolver was ordered to be confiscated.

BRITAIN ON THE UP-GRADE

Convincing evidence of Britain's industrial recovery is to be found in the recent figures showing an increase during August of a quarter of a million people in work and a drop of nearly two hundred thousand in the number of unemployed. These figures show a progressive rise, a striking fact being that since the beginning of the year there has been a drop of no fewer than 377,000 in the total of the unemployed. Confidence is obviously returning, the figures making it clear that the revival is proceeding steadily all the time. In issuing these returns, the Ministry of Labour accompanies them with analyses which link them with the social services and with the country's general condition. In this connection, the percentages are now tolerably constant and they are worth noting because they outline the problems with which the Government is called upon to deal. It was shown in the June figures, for instance, that almost half of the registered unemployed are drawing insurance benefit, a figure which, as a Home paper points out, reveals the limits of the insurance system as a bulwark against the economic blizzard. Unemployment allowances, the term which has now replaced transitional benefit, cover more than a third of the total number of cases, and about 14 per cent. lie outside the new social services and depend on Public Assistance. So much for the nature of the aid given. Looking at the other side of the case, the period for which the names have been borne on the books, it is satisfactory to find that the great majority of cases only need temporary support. Two-thirds of the unemployed have been registered for less than six months. Nearly a half for less than six weeks. To all of these the extension of recovery gives good grounds of hope. But 23 per cent. or roughly 450,000, have been unemployed for over a year, and these are the men and women whose lot is a challenge to the social reformer. It is here, in fact, that we find the problem to be most deep-seated, and one of its worst features is that men who have been so long out of employment are losing their morale and will consequently find it extremely difficult to get back into stride again, even when the opportunity of work

NOTES OF THE DAY

U.S. NEUTRALITY

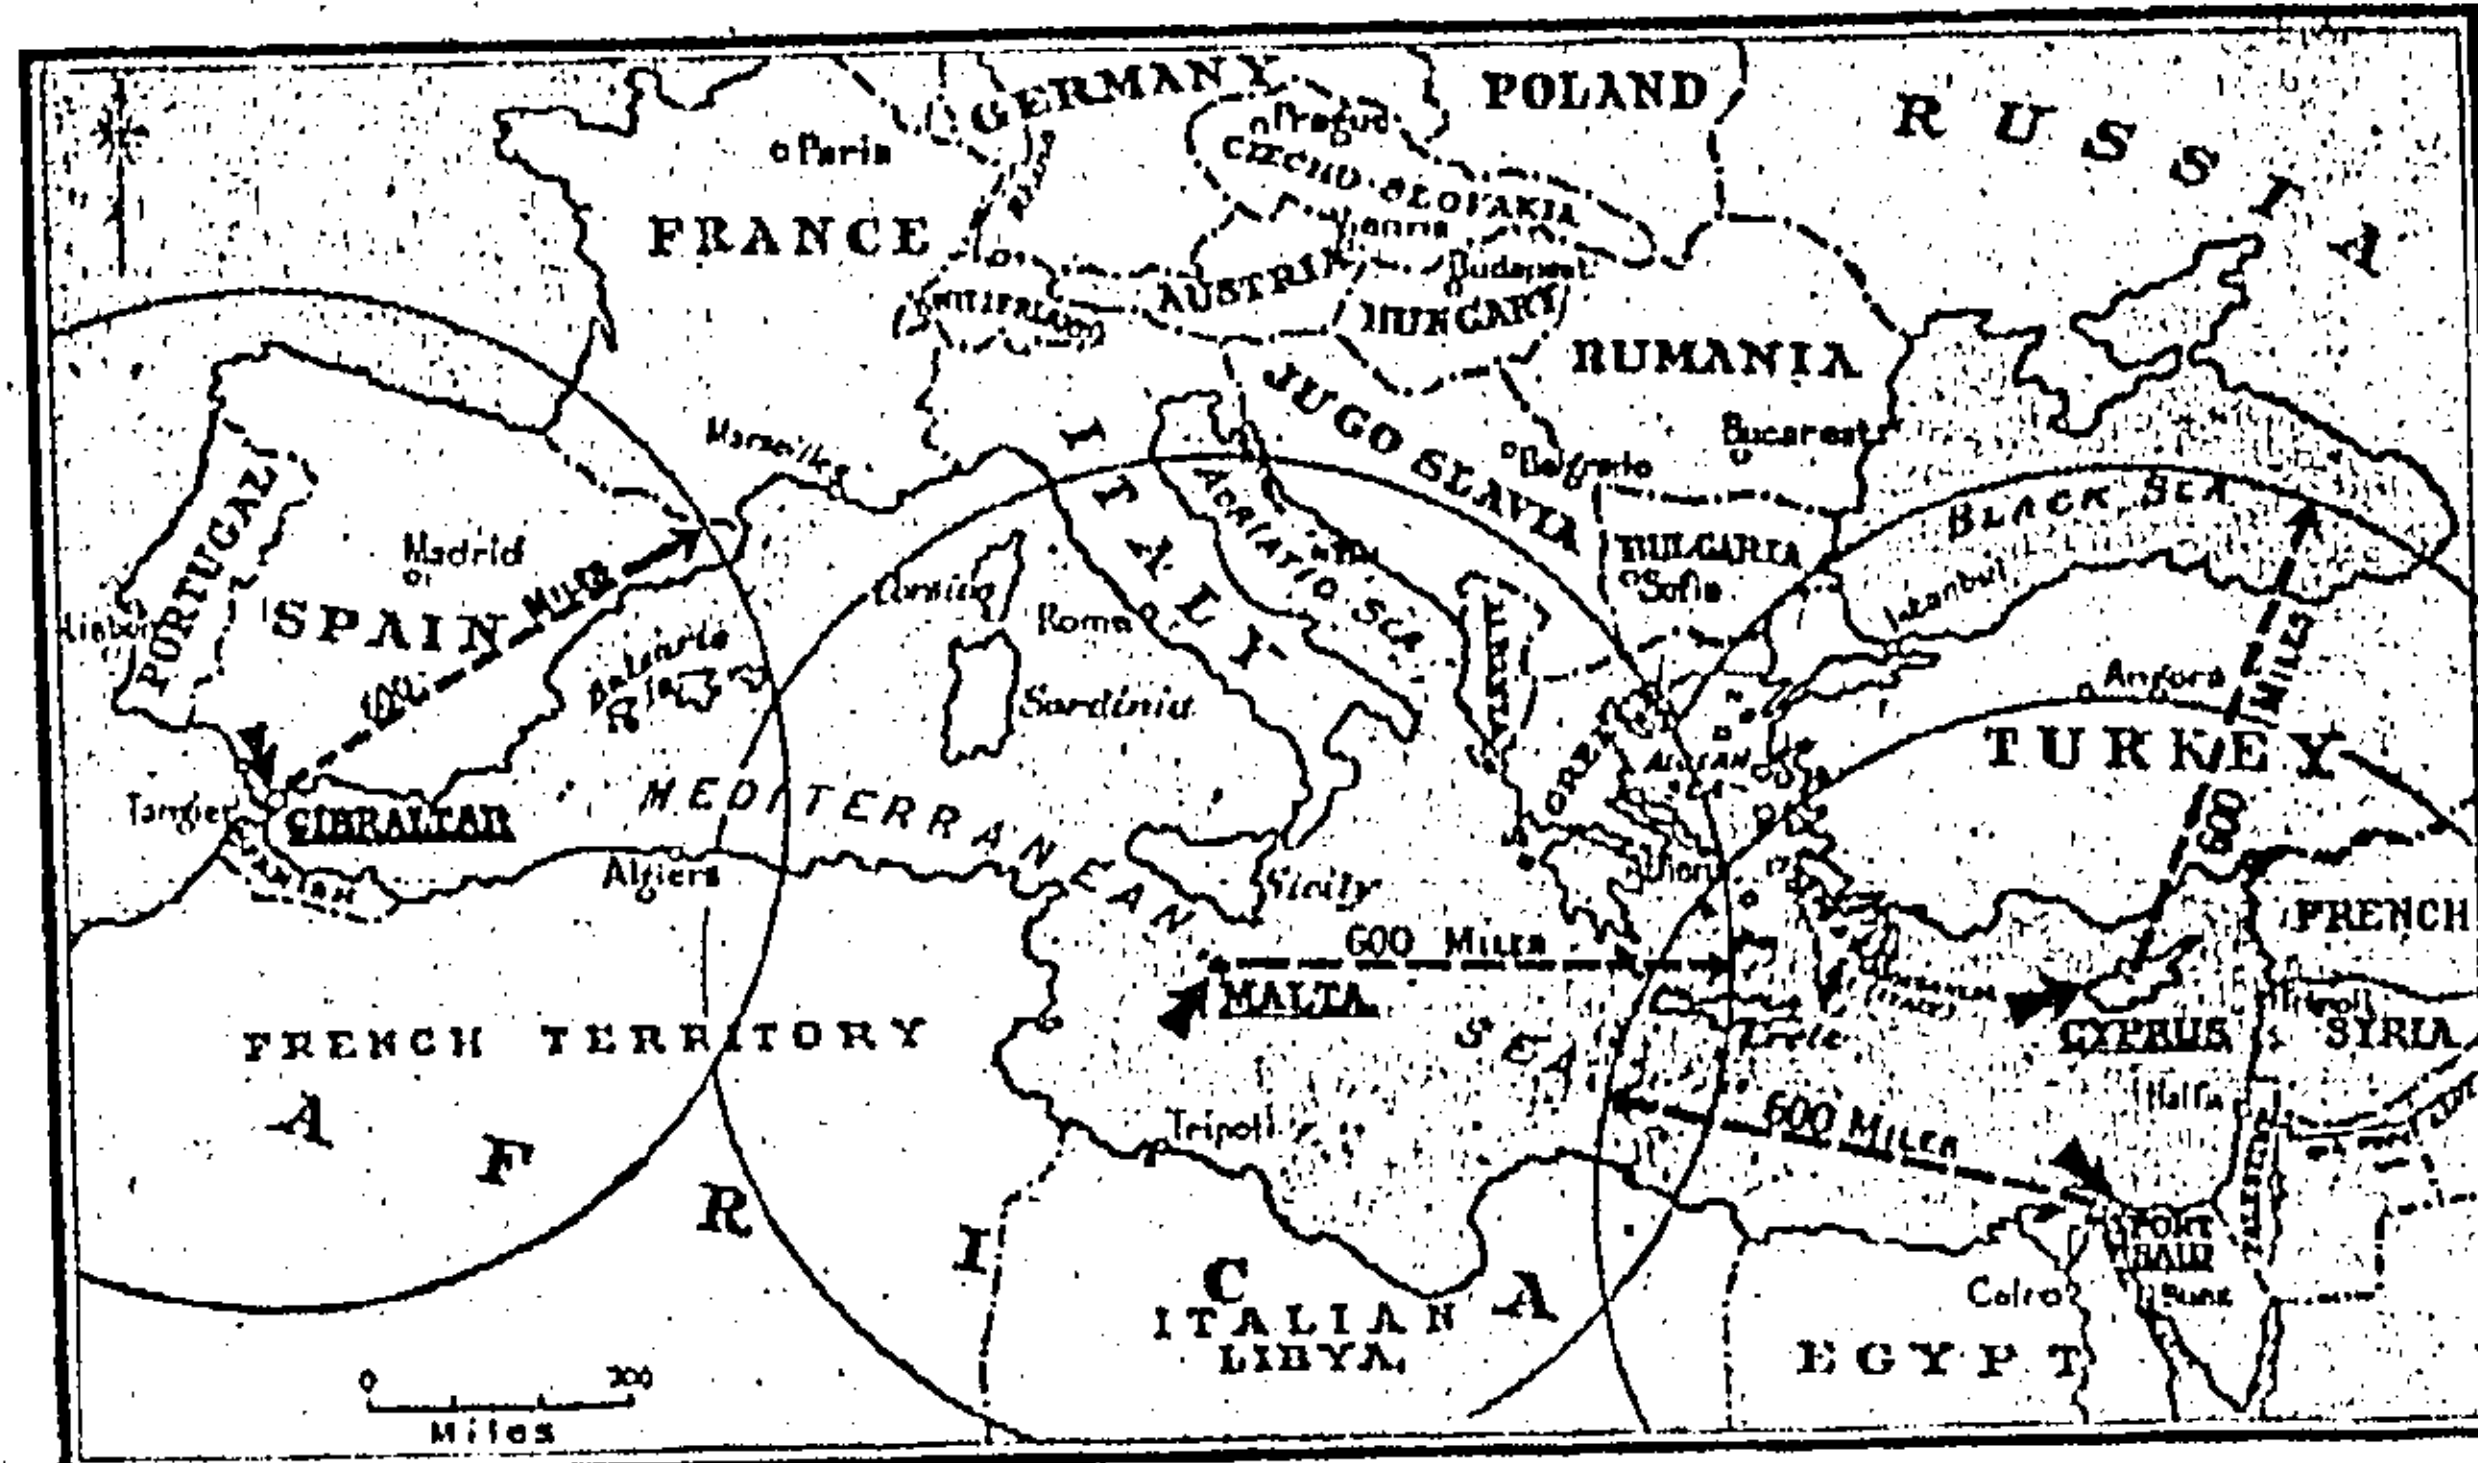

Such powerful and representative newspaper as the New York Times and Christian Science Monitor, notably anti-war in policy, have commented with something of disapproval upon the recently formulated Neutrality Bill which Congress rushed through before its recent adjournment. Others, too, inside and outside of America, have the feeling that America can serve her own and world interest best, not by a continuing policy of aloofness in times of crisis but by active intervention in support of such safeguards to peace as the League of Nations. "It cannot be said too often," says the Christian Science Monitor, "that isolation-neutrality is not enough. Indeed, it is not the best and most effective way to real neutrality. It is delusive. The first and best step towards neutrality is to assist in seeing that there is no war." It is pointed out that there are two stages in the preservation of American neutrality, and that isolation is the second and more desperate stage. As far as the first, and peace-preserving stage goes, at least in the present Italy-Ethiopia controversy, the United States policy of non-intervention, or at the most, friendly advice against aggression, may not be entirely remiss. The Pact of Paris has been called to the attention of the nations by the State Department and the pledges given under the terms of the Kellogg-Brand Pact have been resurrected. As a nation without territory in Africa and without any great commercial interests in Europe, America in this instance may have done as much as could be expected of her. She has done as much as Japan, for instance. But, if peace preservation efforts ultimately become ineffective in this, or any other, conflict, what does America offer in the way of an impediment to aggression? Neutrality.

NOT ENOUGH

We think that is not enough. It is all very well to avoid taking sides at this stage of a crisis, when it has not developed beyond a threatening stage, when there has not yet been conflict and when the League has not been faced with the real necessity of deciding for or against sanctions. But suppose some nation were to send troops across another's frontiers tomorrow. The world's peace machinery would be moving then at top speed and desperately striving to overtake a situation fast growing out of hand. The Article of the League Covenant concerning sanctions would almost certainly be invoked. From what we know of their policies, Britain, France, Russia and the majority of the minor powers in Europe, all members of the League, would support those sanctions, providing the aggression on the part of a warning state were obvious. These nations, members of the League, would expend their blood and money for a principle. They would rise in defence of a theory for which we have to thank America's late President Woodrow Wilson very largely. And while these powers were making this sacrifice America would be barricading herself behind neutrality legislation. If America has any faith in the League principle, in the scheme of collective security, she should actively support it. The League can never operate with assurance of success until its membership is universal, any more than the United States of America could operate successfully if Washington had to deal with a number of states which refused to recognise the federal laws and to obey them. The League's ultimate purpose, unless we are much astray, is to act as a world police force, making the complete disarmament of nations possible. In this fashion wars can best be avoided, for without weapons no nation can be dangerous. But the League needs the support, and not just the sympathy, of every major power. In this light, those who refuse to accept responsibilities at Geneva are shirking their duty or lacking in perception. The United States Neutrality Bill may be a safeguard in that second "desperate" stage of crisis, but it is also decidedly selfish in the eyes of League advocates.

presents itself. Generally speaking, courage may be taken from the latest figures, which certainly do show that Britain is gradually making up lost ground and appears to have definitely turned the corner.

SHOULD BRITAIN EVACUATE HER MEDITERRANEAN BASES?

Britain's naval bases and chief interests in the Mediterranean could be bombed by an enemy within six hundred miles, the distance shown by the circles. Experts hold that modern aircraft could render such bases untenable.

BY COLIN BROOKS

If ever, by the malignity of fate or the folly of its leaders, Britain has to wage another war, it will be a war of aeroplanes and submarines. The perfection of the bomber, and the aerial torpedo, has changed the whole face of both strategy and tactics. It has altered the relative value of the three fighting arms. The floating Navy is today vulnerable as it was never before vulnerable in history. This dominant truth is obvious to the most technically ignorant civilian. It is freely admitted by such naval experts as Vice-Admiral Sir Barry Domville. Sir Barry, who in his expert capacity attended all the important naval conferences at the making of the last Peace, and after, said frankly in a recent lecture: "We cannot shift the land, so we must remove our bases further back from enemy shores." He envisaged an English Channel dominated by enemy aircraft, with the great southern ports, like London, rendered useless. "Similar remarks," he said, "apply to any other part of the Empire within reach of land-based foreign aircraft."

Twelve years ago, before aircraft had reached its present deadly perfection Major-General Patrick, late Commander of the U.S. Army Air Corps, stated after trials that: "... under proper conditions, we can put out of commission, or sink, any naval craft that floats." In the same report the Joint Board of the United States which had carried out the trials reported that in its members' opinion it was difficult, if not impossible, to build any type of naval craft of sufficient strength to withstand the destructive force of the largest bombs that aeroplanes can carry from shore bases or sheltered harbours. In his recent book, "Our Future in the Air," Brigadier-General Groves reinforces these expert opinions by a collection of striking facts. He tells of how the "unsinkable ship"—the German Ostfriesland—was sunk by four bombs. He recalls that during the war a submarine, 60 feet below the surface, was sunk by a bomb weighing no more than 300lb. that detonated 275 feet away from her hull. He emphasises the deadly menace to the navy's utility of the aerial smoke-curtain. The conclusion to which one is forced is that what were once safe harbours are now death traps for shipping. If foreign aircraft can render untenable the bases of our fleet, if narrow waters and sea basins within bombing distance of hostile shores are now to be death traps for the vessels that use them, what is Britain's position in the Mediterranean?

BREMEN INCIDENT CORDELL HULL AND JUDGE BRODSKY'S SPEECH

Washington, Sept. 14.
Mr. Cordell Hull apologized orally to the German Charge d'Affaires, Herr Rudolf Leifner, for Judge Brodsky's remarks. He said that "it is regretted that an official had so little sense of responsibility in maintaining relations between the United States and other countries and that he should indulge in expressions offensive to another Government."

against the aggressor. But are they such good fellows now—or are they mere collecting points for the shipping victims of enemy aircraft? We have normally in the Mediterranean the First Battle Squadron, of 4 battleships and a flagship; the First Cruiser Squadron, of 3 cruisers and a flagship; the Third Cruiser Squadron, of 3 cruisers and a flagship; three flotillas of destroyers, each comprising 9 destroyers, with a depot ship and a repair ship; eight submarines, with a Captain's ship and a depot ship; a mine-sweeper reserve of nine ships and one mine-layer. In that land-locked sea with its narrow western and still narrower south-easterly outlet we have thus bottled up 4 battleships, 6 cruisers, 27 destroyers, 8 submarines, 9 minesweepers and an aircraft carrier—a total of 55, plus 11 auxiliaries. We are not a welcome or a well-looked Power in the Mediterranean. Other Powers whose home territories front or abut upon its waters have had to tolerate the many generations of our supremacy there as a naval Power. They have not liked it.

In these fortunate islands we have come to regard as a perfectly natural thing our ownership of Gibraltar. Spain cannot so regard it. We have come to take for granted our ownership and use of Malta. France and Italy cannot so take it for granted. Even Cyprus—that "latest little baby" which Disraeli added to the Empire—was an addition to British territory grudging by the rest of Europe. Our African possessions have long filled jealous eyes. If a new war were to open with the annihilation, or virtual annihilation, by air and under-water attack, of our land and sea forces in the Mediterranean the effect of such a catastrophe on both material and moral would be staggering. As Vice-Admiral Domville, once himself Chief of Staff in those waters, has said: "We cannot shift the land, and while our forces depend on those land bases they are at hazard. The narrow neck at Gibraltar rendered impassable by the horns in the air and the steel death-dealing ships below water, Malta incessantly bombed, the area round Port Said and the entrance to the Suez cluttered with submarines—that is the picture which would be in the minds of the war lords of any enemy."

We think to-day of 600 miles as effective bombing range. It may not long remain so. Even now to pilots who, in a spirit of Eastern self-sacrifice, are prepared to fly to their own deaths that they may compass the destruction of their enemy's possessions, places like the Mediterranean exit of the Suez Canal are vulnerable. Nobody without the closest technical knowledge and experience dare dogmatise on such a problem, but any one with the interests of his country at heart must ask—Is our standing in the Mediterranean tenable? Has the old certitude that we drew not withdrawn from the Mediterranean given place to reasonable doubt whether we can afford as a naval Power to remain there in the face of the new arms?

HONGKONG WINS WONG PO-KEUNG TENNIS TROPHY

INITIAL VICTORY FOR THE COLONY

CANTON PLAYERS BEATEN DURING WEEK-END BY FOUR-ONE

VISITORS UNABLE TO OVERCOME STRANGE CONDITIONS

(By "Sagax")

Full of the glory of an Interport contest, but lacking its concomitant atmosphere consequent upon the absence of an audience, except a few members of the Club and half a dozen outsiders, the annual Lawn Tennis fixture between Canton and Hongkong was commenced at the Chinese Recreation Club's courts on Saturday and concluded yesterday when the Colony captured the handsome Cup presented by Mr. Wong Po-keung by winning four of the five matches.

The handsome cup, which was brought down to Hongkong by the Canton players on Saturday morning, was only presented for competition three years ago when the Canton side won on their own courts. The contest is conducted on Davis Cup lines, with the holders having the right to defend the trophy on their own courts. However, this year Canton indicated that, as the Hongkong players would be making a visit to Shanghai this month, the holders were prepared to defend the Cup in Hongkong. Arrangements were made accordingly and it was not until Saturday morning whether it was mutually agreed that the match should be official or friendly.

So short was the notice that it was not known until the arrival of the Canton team just before noon what the programme would be. In fact, the players were met by the local Hon. Secretary and on crossing the harbour the party adjourned to Messrs. Brewer & Co. where the draw was made and the programme drafted. Mr. Wong Po-keung, the originally appointed non-playing captain of the Canton team, was unable to make the trip and on arrival the visitors invited Mr. C. E. Watson, the former Canton resident, to assume management of the team.

VISITORS' HANDICAPS

With the visitors labouring under a severe handicap in having to play in grass courts after having been accustomed to hard courts, Hongkong had no difficulty in winning the tie although some of the matches were closely fought affairs.

The singles match between Lai Kwong-tsun and S. A. Rumbahn was the first played and the local player put the Colony one up in straight sets, winning by 6-1, 7-5, 6-2.

The difference in the scores was certainly not the difference between the capabilities of the two players but merely an indication of the form on grass courts of the two men on Saturday. Lai Kwong-tsun, who has beaten Rumbahn on grass courts in an official fixture before, was obviously worried by the strange conditions, he now having become so accustomed to hard courts that the change was always apparent in his play on Saturday.

His timing was so uncertain that he was not able to do himself justice and many an interesting rally was abruptly terminated by a time return into the net or outside the court, while there were times when he completely missed the ball, on one occasion sending it sky high.

Rumbahn during the greater part of the game was able to adopt safety tactics without forcing the pace although at times he became the aggressor and took the net at every opportunity.

He conceded only the fourth game in the first set and after losing two games in the second he won four in a row before losing another. Five all was eventually called and then Run-

MILITARY GROUND RENOVATED

FOOTBALL PITCH AT SOOKUNPOO

NEXT SATURDAY'S COMPETITION

Always alive to the enormous appeal which football is making to local sportsmen, the authorities in charge of military football have enlarged the accommodation at the Sookunpoo ground and this season the stands will be able to hold a total of six thousand spectators.

The football pitch has been moved further towards the French Hospital, taking in the hockey ground behind the north end of the stand.

There are now four new substantial stands erected all around the pitch and it is estimated that there is accommodation for 6,000 people.

Dressing room accommodation is provided under the covered stand, this relieving congestion in the Pavilion, where necessary and the playing area is at present in very fine condition.

The new ground will be opened on Saturday when a six-a-side competition will be staged. The preliminary rounds will be played on Saturday and the final stages on Sunday.

There are 28 teams entered for the competition and some excellent sports is promised.

John took the set at 7-5. In the third set Lai won only the first and seventh games.

COMPARATIVELY TAME MATCH

The absence of a gallery which is usually associated with any Interport event made Saturday's matches more like a garden party than an official Interport and the tennis served up in the second match between G. R. M. Ricketts and G. Bodiker rather confirmed the garden party impression.

Ricketts won in five sets in a match that was comparatively listless after the first game which had produced some hard hitting by both players. The Canton player in the second match was no where near his top form while Ricketts appeared reluctant to exert himself.

It was only when he was trailing behind his opponent that he really showed his class and he really

AN INNINGS VICTORY

The Hague, Sept. 15.

A dashing display of batting by E. L. Dalton, the South African's stylish and forceful bat, featured the two-day cricket match here between an All-Holland team and the tourists, who are shortly returning home from a successful tour of England during which they won the "Ashes" for the first time in the Mother Country.

Results of to-day's matches follow:

All-Holland had first knock but the side was dismissed for 99 runs. R. J. Crisp took four wickets for 25.

The tourists, after scoring 181 for five wickets yesterday, took their total to 319 before the last wicket fell to-day. Dalton was not out at the close of the innings with 156 to his credit. Altogether he scored eleven sixes and twelve fours. A. D. Nourse had 55 against his name when dismissed.

In the second innings Holland scored 92 runs, Crisp taking another four wickets, for 19 runs. Reuter.

GERMANY'S ATHLETES BACKWARD

LITTLE TALENT AVAILABLE

OLYMPIC GAMES PROSPECTS

Berlin, Aug. 17.

The German track-and-field championships recently concluded have shown that Germany has many good "coming" athletes but only few who have a chance to win an Olympic Medal. And there is no doubt that the German officials are a little disappointed. The championships for example produced no Arthur Jonath (who was in Los Angeles the best white man in the sprints).

That is the reason why the German trainers are now working with special vigour to get their people into good shape and condition, and—as an official recently said, to make them "stead hard and extend to the limit."

It may be remembered that the German press praised the American athletes in their will-power during the Olympic Games at Los Angeles very much, hoping that the German trainers might work their athletes along the same lines.

Without any doubt, enthusiasm for the Olympic idea is increasing day by day in Germany, and it is hoped to be a competitor in the Berlin Games.

Through numerous elimination contests the officials expect to better the present top notch standard considerably by next Spring.

LITTLE TALENT AVAILABLE

Remarkable was that the championships this year in the broad jump, shot-put, hammer-throw, the 1,500 metres and the 3,000 metres, hurdles, as well as the pentathlon (in the absence of Hans Heins Sievert, the world record holder, who was sick), were won by athletes of the army, and police forces. This shows the great all round spirit for the Olympic sports in the armed forces.

Hope of winning a gold medal for Germany depends largely on Hans Heins Sievert for the Pentathlon, but the chances for gold medals are not so rosy at the present time, if we consider American records.

In the sprints, the Germans have a good chance of winning silver and bronze medals; they have at least four or five men who cover the 100 metres at the average of 16.6 seconds, and the 200 metres at 21.5 seconds.

Furthermore with the broad-jump, Corporal Leichum Stettin, of the army, covered that event with 7.73 metres (which is a new German record) and experts are of the opinion, that he will jump over eight metres soon.

Policeman Schroeder, of Magdeburg, threw the discus 53.10 metres, while policeman Weelke attained 16.04 metres with the shot-put. An Olympic hope in the hitherto unknown long distance runner Haug Darmstadt, who covered the 10,000 metres in 31.41.6 minutes, which is the third best time achieved this year.

But it is recognised that if Germany is to achieve any prominence in the track-and-field events at next year's games, development of the available athletes must go forward at a much quicker rate.—United Press.

YORKSHIRE CRICKET TEAM

TO TOUR WEST INDIES

GEORGE MACAULAY RETIRING

Two important decisions were announced at a recent meeting of the Yorkshire County Cricket Club Committee.

The first concerned an invitation from the Jamaica Cricket Board of Control to send a Yorkshire team to tour the West Indies in February next. This invitation has been accepted. The tour will last about five weeks and six matches will be played, some of them two-day games.

The second was that George Macaulay has notified the Committee that he is resigning from the present season. In his letter, Macaulay states that he is retiring from first-class cricket.

It was announced that the gross receipts of the Yorkshire home matches to date amount to £8,097, as compared with £6,284 for the corresponding matches last season, excluding the matches in which Nottinghamshire and the touring sides—the Australians in 1934 and the South Africans this year—were concerned. Fixtures for next summer have been arranged at Sheffield, with Kent, Gloucestershire, Derbyshire, and Somerset; at Leeds, with Lancashire, Hampshire, Surrey, and Worcestershire; at Bradford, with India; Nottinghamshire, Sussex, and Warwickshire; at Hull, with Essex and Glamorgan; and at Scarborough, with Middlesex and Leicestershire.

BOWLERS' TOUR

SOUTH AFRICANS' TRAIL OF FRIENDSHIP

LESSONS OF THE VISIT

London, Aug. 19.

We said "Good-bye" to the last of our South African friends as the "E.B.A." Championship meeting ended out on the Croydon Club's greens on Saturday. They began their tour on May 9 and ended it, officially, on July 31. Of 63 matches, they lost only 12. But that is not the whole story.

This splendid collection of amateur sportsmen from the Dominions has once again not merely added a new zest to the game of bowls in Britain and Ireland, but in every city and town they visited in their long tour, they have blazed a trail of friendship and understanding with their fellow sportsmen in "The Old Country." Bowls, that quiet and par excellence amateur game, is the connecting link which has created new and valuable bonds of friendship.

In a final talk with Mr. E. S. Passmore, that great enthusiast, President of the South African Bowls Association, he told me that there is no realm of sport in South Africa where there is so little disagreement and controversy as there is in bowls.

"I have noticed with regret," said South Africa's President, "that there is a tendency in sport to-day to win at all costs and not to play the game for the game's sake. We do not regard our bowls contests with our fellow sportsmen in the home country in this way, although it has naturally been gratifying to our players, after making so long a journey, to find that they can win their matches."

LESSONS OF THE TOUR

"Naturally, all have been very keen. But I think that another time we should do rather less travelling and take rather more rest. Six matches each week on such a tour is rather too much and a programme of five games a week would be better."

In the West of England and in Wales we had a number of players invited—two of our men were ill in Loughborough and we had seven under the doctor at Cardiff. Everywhere throughout the British Isles the team has had a marvellous reception and we have been almost killed by kindness.

"Returning even after three or four years, I have been amazed at the growth of bowls in England since my last visit, but there does not seem to have been much progress in Ireland. We have found very few poor greens and it is only here and there that we have had to play on disappointing links. The whole 36 of us will look forward to our next visit."

Another interested spectator at Croydon was Mr. W. R. Elston, of the Killarney Bowling Club, Sydney, and the New South Wales Bowling Association. He was surprised at the number of young men who take up the game in England.

"Australians," he told me, "find it difficult to adapt themselves to English playing conditions. In Australia we do not use your cork wooden bowls, but smaller bowls of the composition type, and so we develop fast straight shots rather than fine shots. Also we play 25 ends and not your standard 21 ends."

"And," added Mr. Elston, with a smile, "I think that we are a little inclined to enter more vigorously than you do. We do not, for example, encourage the 'skip' to follow up his bowl."

One thing is certain—the Bowls Season of 1935, now past its peak, has been a magnificent success.—H.G.H. in the Morning Post.

RUNNING RECORD BROKEN

11-YEAR OLD TIME BETTERED

Buenos Aires, Sept. 15.

Jose Ribas broke the world's record for the 20 mile run to-day when he covered the distance in 43 seconds faster than G. Crossland whose record stood for a period of 41 years.

It was in 1894 that Crossland established a record for the 20 mile run by covering the distance in 1 hour 51 mins. 51 secs., while to-day Ribas ran the 20 miles in 1 hour 51 mins. 11 secs.

During the run Ribas also covered 34,435.45 metres, beating Earnest Harper's 33,653 metres.—Reuter.

HONGKONG'S FIRST SUCCESS

set his mind upon the game and he was invariably able to stage a sudden recovery to keep the lead.
He captured the first set after having led all the way but at one stage in the second he lost five games in a row before he eventually conceded the set at 8-6. The third set saw him run away with a five-game lead and then win at 6-2. In the fourth set he again found himself trailing behind at 4-1 and he caught up to 5-4 before Bodiker made matters even.
When Bodiker won three games in the final set it seemed that the Canton men would snatch a last minute victory but Ricketts reasserted himself and won four games in succession, eventually taking the set and match at 6-4.

TAME DOUBLES

The doubles match yesterday morning was a cinch for Hongkong and with it the Cup was captured for the first time.

H. D. Rumjahn paired very well with Ho Ka-lau but the Canton combination left much to be desired. Lai Kwong-tsun, who was partnered by Lin Yut-fung, was easily the better of the two visiting players but was unable to avert the concentrated attack on the back link in.

The first match of the afternoon was between G. R. M. Ricketts and Lai Kwong-tsun, the Canton player winning by 6-1, 11-9, 6-4, in a match in which the scores give a true indication of the margin of difference between the two players. Ricketts was unable to cope with the forcing tactics of the Canton player whose forehand driving was better yesterday than it was on Saturday when he was pitted against Rumjahn.

AN IMPROVED BODIKER

Ricketts was literally driven off the court in the first set and offered little opposition to a player who was

AUSTRALIAN CONTROL BOARD

OVERBEARING AND IRRESPONSIBLE

Melbourne, Aug. 19. — "A capricious act of overbearing and irresponsible officialdom" is how the "Melbourne Sun" describes the action of the Australian Board of Control in banning certain cricketers from touring India with Frank Tarant's team. "Australian cricket," adds the paper, "must rid itself of this incubus before it injures the game as well as the players. Some good will have come of the Board's latest act of foolishness if the ban results in an irresistible demand for its sweeping away and replacement by a more reasonable body worthy to administer cricket." "What blind folly," says the "Melbourne Star," "pushes this body into decisions which annoy the whole cricketing world only its members can tell."

The Maharajah of Patiala has issued a private invitation to Alan Kippax, the New South Wales cricketer, to go to India, in connection with the forthcoming tour arranged by Frank Tarant, the old Middlesex player. As the Australian eleven is complete it is presumed that Kippax would play against Tarant's side. Kippax considers that he is a free agent, but believes that the Australian Board of Control may think otherwise.

It was the better of the two. It was in the second set that Ricketts was able to hold his own and took the score to 11-9 before succumbing to the dashing Canton player.

Bodiker, in his match with Rumjahn, gave a much more determined display than on Saturday when his tennis was listless and unworthy of Interport standard. Yesterday he was hitting the ball harder and commanded a better control over his strokes. There were many long and interesting rallies in which both players excelled but Rumjahn was always that shade the better and never lost control of the game at any stage of the match. He ran out winner by 6-2, 6-2, 7-5.

This is Hongkong's first victory in the Wong Po-keung Cup Competition which was inaugurated in 1932. That year Canton won and in 1934 the holders retained the trophy, there being no challenge in 1935.

PROSPECTS OF SOCCER CLUBS IN ENGLAND

NO. 20-POMPEY

"CHEAPEST BOB'S WORTH"

Pompey's officials and players are looking forward to a good season. The confidence felt in club circles with regard to the future is reflected in the ground improvements which have been carried out at Fratton Park during the summer.

From a business point of view last season was the best in the history of the club, for it showed a profit of £14,961 on the year's working. The directors have spent about £12,000 of this on a new north stand, which is Manager Jack Tins' opinion provides "the cheapest bob's worth in the country." It will shelter from 12 to 14 thousand spectators.

So far as playing strength is concerned the club is also fortunately placed. The professionals number 29 and the club has the call also upon the services of several clever amateurs. Three or four young players were recruited for the reserves before the end of last season; five more have been signed on since then.

THE NEWCOMERS

The newcomers are Francis O'Connor (21), a right half-back, for two seasons with Jarrow; Ronald Benson (20), a left half-back, from Birtley, County Durham; Thomas Hird (22), an outside-right, who scored 16 goals for Hartlepool last season; Gordon Bell (21), another outside-right, from East Craigie; and Ambrose Brown (22), an inside-left or centre-forward, from Chesterfield. New blood, of course, is essential to success, and although Portsmouth can still call upon players who have rendered excellent service in the past, the directors realise that and be to spend money on expensive transfers, but to build up the side from good and capable young reserves.

Goalkeepers: J. Gillman, G. J. Strong.

Full Backs: J. A. Mackie, W. Rochford, J. Mackrell, R. L. Gundry, W. H. Smith.

Half-Backs: J. Nichol, A. Smith, A. Young, F. R. O'Connor (Jarrow), R. Salmon, A. Pringle, T. Rowe, F. Donoghue, D. Thackeray, R. Benson (Birtley).

Forwards: F. Worrall, T. Hird (Hartlepool United), G. Bell (East Craigie), J. C. Anderson, L. McCarthy, J. Weddie, H. W. Crawshaw, J. Farnson, W. Bagley, A. R. Brown (Chesterfield), S. Rathford, C. Parker.

NO. 21-PLYMOUTH ARGYLE

Reorganisation Raises Hopes Of Success

Plymouth Argyle have rarely approached a new season in such favourable circumstances.

During the past six months the board of directors has been reformed and increased to 15 by the addition of well-known business men in the city who have taken strong measures to support their announced determination to obtain promotion to the First Division.

At the annual meeting the directors announced that they required more money to carry out their aims and they made a fresh issue of capital.

The amount of capital previously issued was £2,500 and the directors appeared to the general public to take shares in the new issue of 50,000 shares of 5s. each. It was stated that the proceeds would be solely applied to engaging new players, repayment of loans and provision of working capital, and there was an immediate and satisfactory response.

Seven new players have been signed on, and search is being continued for a first-class centre-half and other men in order that the strongest team the Argyle has ever had will be built up.

goalkeeper from Exeter City; Robbie, outside-right from Bury; R. Wallace, a back from Swindon; and A. Powell, outside-left from Bolton Wanderers, will wear the Argyle colours.

Success has also attended a new scheme for encouraging and developing local talent by establishing junior leagues which are to act as "nurseries" for the Argyle.

Goalkeepers: H. Cann, A. L. Davies (Exeter City).

Backs: H. Roberts, J. Rae, J. B. Milne, S. J. Kirkwood, R. Wallace (Swindon), T. Black.

Half-backs: A. Gorman, J. L. McNeil, T. Woods, W. H. Gooney (Sheffield U.).

Forwards: D. M. Hobbie (Bury), T. Grozier, J. Smith (Burnsley), F. Sloni, L. Rich, H. Voller, E. McLaughlin, J. Colquhoun, G. Briggs, A. Eggleston (Bury), S. Black, A. Powell (Bolton).

NO. 22-BRIGHTON

New Forwards May Remedy Vital Weakness

Brighton, in common with many other clubs, are naturally hoping that during the forthcoming season they will achieve their ambition of promotion to the Second Division.

It is not always easy, however, to sum up a club's prospects. Players are signed on who possess excellent reputations, yet frequently fail to realise expectations. It would appear that in Law (Sheffield Wednesday) and Prest (Burnley), the Albion have secured two forwards capable of giving opposing defenders considerable anxiety.

In past years Brighton have played attractive football in midfield without showing sufficient penetrative power, and it is hoped that Law and Prest will help to remedy this weakness.

Other new forwards are Richards (Fulham) and Stevens (Brentford). Two additions to the half-back line are Clarke (Portsmouth) and McCarthy (Dundee), and there is every likelihood of additional defenders being obtained.

Jones, the captain, has decided to retire from the game and his loss will be felt. Mr. Webb, the manager, is at the moment busily engaged in trying to fill his place. Players: Goalkeepers: C. Thomson and G. Mee.

Backs: F. King, E. Marriott, E. Martin.

Half-backs: L. Darling, P. Mooney, D. Walker, W. Clarke, T. McCarthy, J. Dugan.

Forwards: W. Richards, R. Farrell, T. Prest, A. Law, O. Brown, T. P. Smith, H. Egan, E. Wilson, J. Stevens, (Birtley).

NO. 23-SOUTHEND

High Hopes Based On Experience

It is safe to say that Southend will do better this season. The club is about to start a campaign for which Manager David Jack has made a strenuous preparation.

During the summer the whole of the pitch was ploughed up and re-turfed and a considerable sum of money expended to ensure that ground trouble does not arise again.

Eight new players have been signed—most of them with First Division experience. They are Pearson (Birmingham), Nelson (Newcastle), McKenzie and Demellweek (Plymouth Argyle), Corbett (Manchester City) and three from Leeds United, Spelman, Turner and Firth.

Mr. Jack has his eye on an outside-right—it's just a matter of the transfer fee—but even should he fail to acquire him that position will be by no means a weak one with Harry Lane and the newcomer Demellweek as candidates.

It is expected that Firth will make a good inside forward. He is a "natural" footballer and a good goal-getter. Nelson, of course, has international experience.

Manager Jack said: "He is a personality—and I'm banking on that—a great schemer, Jimmy, and a popular player with the rest of the team." "We are making a clean start this year, and I'm very hopeful. The pitch is now in fine trim and that will make a big difference."

The players are: Goalkeepers: Moore, McKenzie, Backs: Nelson, Robinson, Kelly, Corbett, Holborn.

Half-backs: Spelman, Turner, Smith, Carr, Jackson, Gulliver, Donovan, Morfitt.

Forwards: Demellweek, Bushby, Lane, Firth, Jones (E), Jones (B), Stevens, Pearson, Johnson, Cheesman, Deacon, Clark, Oswald.

SERIAL STORY

One I Love

by LAURA LOU
BROOKMAN

CHAPTER XXVI

Janet looked up, puzzled. "Why, who could it be?" she asked. "I don't know who could be calling me."

"I don't know, Miss Hill," the maid said. "He didn't give his name. There's only one telephone on this floor and it's in Mrs. Curtis's room. You can use the one downstairs in the library." Janet hurried down the stairs. Was it Jeff, she wondered? Who else would know where to reach her? And why had he called? "Hello," she said. "This is Janet speaking."

But it was not Jeff Grant's voice that came to her. It was Bruce Hamilton and he had a message for Mrs. Curtis. He would not, he said, be able to keep an engagement for dinner the next day but he would be out later in the evening. He asked Janet how things were going and seemed pleased with her report.

"I'll see you to-morrow," he said. "Yes, I'm getting away to-morrow night. Deuce of a lot to do yet, too!" Janet said good-bye and went up the stairs again. She felt a disappointment she would not quite admit. She hadn't expected Jeff to call her. There was no reason why he should. And yet the big house seemed deserted and lonely.

"It won't be like this later," she assured herself. "I'll get used to it—and besides I'll be busy." She returned to her unpacking, folded lingerie and laid it away in the chest of drawers. She hung her dresses in the closet and arranged the top of the dressing table with two crystal bottles that were prized possessions and a china powder box. When she had taken everything out of the trunk and travelling bag she slipped off her dress and ran warm water into the tub. She had a lazy, luxurious bath and then, wrapped in a negligee, lay down on the bed. But she did not sleep. There were so many things to think about. She was still in Lanester and yet she might almost have been a thousand miles away. Everything seemed so different. All of the people about her were strangers. How was she going to like this new life? How would these strangers like her? Would she be happy here?

What, Janet wondered, was happiness, really? Something in your own heart instead of what went on around you, she thought. Something you couldn't see or explain but could only feel. But happiness was not what Janet wanted. What she had put that behind her. All that she wanted now was to forget.

The most impossible thing in the world, it seemed, to achieve—forgetting. After a while Janet decided it was time to dress. She arose and put on fresh underclothes. What dress should she wear? The maid had said something about "dressing for dinner." Did that mean she was supposed to wear a formal dinner dress? She didn't own one. She could put on the blue crepe from last summer. Janet looked at it and then shook her head. She took down the black silk that was her newest office dress. It had been freshly cleaned and there was a touch of lace at the throat that was flattering. She had just slipped the dress over her head when there was a knock at the door. Janet said, "Just a minute!" and then opened the door. It was Mrs. Curtis who stood outside.

"I'm so glad you're here!" she exclaimed. "Is everything all right, my dear? Sorry I couldn't be here when you came. I told Lucy to see that you had everything you wanted."

Mrs. Curtis was dressed in heavy brown satin and wore a small brown straw hat. The clasp that held the neckline of her dress contained a half dozen sparkling stones and two emerald gleamed from a ring on her finger. Yet Mrs. Curtis in this glittering array, looked no more imposing than the first time Janet had seen her.

Everything was quite all right, Janet assured her. She remembered Mr. Hamilton's message and repeated it. "Poor Bruce—he does work so hard," the older woman lamented. And then, "By the way, there will only be you and I for dinner this evening. No need to dress. Well, I'll leave you now."

At dinner an hour later Janet learned more of the household. There were four servants—the cook, two maids and a chauffeur. It was Lucy, the younger maid, who had not Janet at the door. She learned that Bertha, the other maid, was a housekeeper in all but title, that the cook had been with Mrs. Curtis 14 years and that the chauffeur's name was Frederick.

Mrs. Curtis talked a good deal about her daughter who was married. Janet didn't ask questions but she gathered that the daughter was now living somewhere in the east. She was an only child and obviously the idol of her mother's heart.

They went into the living room after dinner and played two-handed bridge. Janet was now an old hand who had to give all her attention to her cards. Buster, the Persian cat, wandered into the room and watched the players from his post on a nearby chair. At 9.30 Mrs. Curtis decided she had better go to bed. Janet selected a magazine from the reading table and went to her room.

It was the first of many evenings that were to be similar. Janet in the beginning felt that her new duties were no duties at all. She soon changed her mind. It was true that there were no long hours of dictation or typing but there were small important details—dozens of them—to be attended to. Janet was up each morning at 7.30. When Mrs. Curtis appeared at the breakfast table an hour later her letters were waiting for her. Janet was always present at the daily interview with Bertha over menus and marketing. Sometimes the rest of the morning would be devoted to telephoning members of Mrs. Curtis's committee of the Wednesday club. Sometimes there were errands to be done—difficult errands such as choosing books Mrs. Curtis would enjoy, ordering a bon voyage gift and making sure the package would reach the boat, finding out from the electric company why the ventilator in the kitchen didn't work as it should. It was worrying over just such things, Mrs. Curtis said, that had given her those dreadful attacks of "nerves." It was no wonder she couldn't sleep at night. Mrs. Curtis regarded Janet as a marvel able to solve any difficulty.

She was considerate in many ways. There were always fresh flowers in Janet's room just as there were in Mrs. Curtis's. When the car wasn't needed for any other purpose and Janet had an engagement Mrs. Curtis urged her to call Frederick and have him drive her where she wished to go. She took Janet with her to a luncheon at the Three Arts Club at which a well-known novelist spoke.

At first Janet tried to make her days systematic. She found it was impossible. If nothing else upset her plans Mrs. Curtis herself was sure to do it. She would decide at the last minute that she wouldn't go to have the fitting at the dressmaker's. Or instead of having six guests at dinner she would decide to invite 10. Mrs. Curtis gratefully shifted responsibility for such changes to her secretary's shoulders.

And yet Janet liked her work. It was so entirely different from anything she had ever done. It took her to new places and among people of a different world. It was interesting to know how they lived. When Janet shopped for Mrs. Curtis she visited stores she had never entered before. It was pleasant to sit back in the chauffeur-driven limousine and give Frederick instructions through the speaking-tube. It was pleasant to meet Mrs. Curtis at the fashionable Three Arts Club.

During that first week Janet worked longer hours than she had ever worked before. It had been agreed that she was to have one afternoon to herself each week and those evenings when Mrs. Curtis had engagements. Somehow the time slipped by and Janet was busy every afternoon.

She was sitting at her desk in the little room off the library Friday morning when a messenger delivered a package. It was a box from Ballards, the jewellers, and the box was quite certain that Mrs. Curtis had ordered it.

Janet untied the wrappings and drew out a handsome silver picture frame. Inside was a carbon slip in which Janet saw the name of a man. The frame had been left for repair.

"It's all right," she told the boy who muttered something and departed. Half an hour later Mrs. Curtis entered the room and Janet showed her the frame. "Oh, yes!" she said. "For my daughter's picture. The glass broke and I left it to have them put in a new one. I'll just get the photograph."

Her voice trailed off as she hurried from the room. A moment later she was back. "Here it is," she said. "Don't you think she's attractive?" Janet took the photograph. It was Betty Kendall. (To Be Continued.)

CINEMA NEWS

NOTES FROM THE THEATRES

A new type of screen juvenile is Tom Beck, who, within the past six months, has demonstrated his ability to shift from the handsome hero classification to the vile villain group and back to a hero role in Fox Film's latest thriller, "Charlie Chan in Egypt", which has Warner Oland in the leading role and comes on Wednesday to the King's Theatre. Absolutely convincing in both kinds of parts, Tom Beck reveals histrionic skill carefully cultivated during his studies at Johns Hopkins University and his varied stage experience. Beck participated in Little Theatre activities in Baltimore, and his work was seen by Vladimir Rosing, a New York director, who got him his start with occasional small parts in Broadway shows and summer stock in Massachusetts. As the juvenile lead in Alice Brady's "Mademoiselle", Beck won the attention of Hollywood and was signed to a long term contract by Fox Film. "Charlie Chan in Egypt" was produced by Edward T. Lowe and directed by Louis King. The cast includes such favourites as "Pat" Paterson, Rita Cansino and Stepin Fetchit.

"Black Moon"

Jungle drums beating... voodoo crazed blacks in an orgy of blood sacrifice... he gazed, horror-stricken at the leader of the savages was his wife! That's a sketchy idea of the thriller and suspense that awaits you when you see Jack Holt's latest starring picture "Black Moon," a Columbia production starting to-morrow at the Queen's Theatre. It's a picture that spells grand entertainment. Fay Wray and Dorothy Burgess are the two popular feminine players. Miss Wray is seen as the sympathetic girl in love with Wray Burgess' husband, the role in which Holt is starred.

Among their other achievements the talking pictures can list recording the sensational dancing of Fred Astaire, who is currently performing in "Roberta," RKO-Radio's musical comedy, which stars Astaire, Irene Dunne and Ginger Rogers. "The best of Astaire's dancing could not have been photographed in the silent picture days," ace cameraman Eddie Cronjager explains. "His feet would have been just a blur because the cameras could not cope with his speed. In silent pictures we used to shoot 50 feet of film to the minute. To-day we shoot 90 feet to the minute. That extra 30 feet is just enough to enable us to record clearly Astaire's whirlwind steps. Astaire and Miss Rogers introduce several new dances in "Roberta," now at the Star Theatre, which are said to be more sensational than those which they did in "The Gay Divorcee." Miss Dunne's golden voice, heard in Jerome Kern hits, is a stellar highlight of the production. Another feature is a spectacular fashion show.

"Fury of the Jungle"

Eight of Hollywood's most talented players are featured in the Columbia production, "Fury of the Jungle," which closes to-day at the Queen's Theatre. Donald Cook, handsome leading man, and Peggy Shannon, auburn-haired actress, supply the romantic interest, with more than adequate menace supplied by Alan Dinehart and Harold Huber. Others in the cast are Toshia Mori, Dudley Digges, Clarence Muse and Fredrik Vogedling. Roy William Hill directed "Fury of the Jungle," which is based on an original story by Horace McCoy.

"Great Expectations"

Perhaps the most striking feature about Henry Hull, sonar dramatic actor of the stage whom the screen has finally snared, is his distinctive individuality. As a rule an actor is usually likened to some of sound-so, or "he's another so-and-so," are catchphrases frequently employed in the theatrical profession. But not with Henry Hull, who is as original as Adam. "I like Hollywood" was the first thing Hull said upon his initial interview. "I like it for its panoramic vista of characters for its pulsating life and energy. I have not found any of the lethargy with which legend has endowed the motion picture industry here. Of course there is a difference between the stage and the screen for an actor,

DAME KENDAL

FAMOUS ACTRESS IN CLASSICAL ROLES

London, Sept. 13.
The death has occurred of the famous actress Dame Madge Kendal aged 86.—Reuter.
Margaret Kendal, the famous actress, came of a theatrical family. Her father W. Robertson and her mother, who was of German birth, played in a circuit of towns in Lincolnshire and brought up a family of 22, of whom T. W. Robertson, the dramatist, was the eldest and Mrs. Kendal, born at Cleethorpes in March, 1849, the youngest. Her first appearance on the stage took place at the old Marylebone Theatre as a child in "The Orphan of the Frozen Sea" in 1854. She played many other juvenile parts there and elsewhere, including Eva in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" at Bristol where she also appeared in pantomime. Her gifts secured her numerous other engagements and by 1865 she was playing Ophelia and Desdemona at the Haymarket, London, and while still in her teens appeared with Phelps as Lady Macbeth. She was Mary Meredith in "Our American Cousin" with E. A. Sothern and Pauline to his Claud Melnotte, but her early triumphs were in Shakespeare and old English comedies.

Stage Romance

She married Wm. H. Kendal in 1869 while they were acting in Manchester. The bride and bridegroom were called on to inaugurate their married life as Rosalind and Orlando. The secret was out and, when it came to the wife "Will you, Orlando, have to wife this Rosalind" there was a great outburst of applause. Her father had made the couple promise that they would always act together and this pledge was kept, though it involved the refusal of attractive engagements. While Kendal played Orlando, Charles Surridge, Jack Absolute and Young Marlowe, his wife made the combination perfect with her Rosalind, Lady Teazle, Lydia, Langulph and Kate Hardcastle. She created the part of Galatea in Gilbert's "Pacemania and Galatea" in 1871.

After leaving the Haymarket in 1874 the Kendals went on tour and then appeared at the Court Theatre with John Hare, one of the great successes being "A Scrap of Paper". In 1876 they played at the Prince of Wales's with the Bancrofts in "Diplomacy" and "London Assurance", but in 1879 rejoined Hare at the St. James's Theatre, remaining there till 1888.

In America

When the Kendals decided on a tour in America in 1889, a farewell banquet was given them by a distinguished group of friends with Joseph Chamberlain in the chair and a beautiful diamond star was presented to the actress. The tour was a prodigious success and was followed by a number of others. During their 1893 visit they scandalized a section of the American public, more squeamish than it is now, by giving "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray." While in Philadelphia once, Mrs. Kendal had a terrible experience. As she was about to take her call, she asked for a glass of the tonic she was using and the maid by mistake gave her poison. She at once took such remedies as were at hand, sent for a doctor and went on with her part in intense agony with a mouth that seemed full of flame. For three weeks she spent her days in bed and her evenings on the stage and her doctor said that, if she had swallowed a few more drops of the liquid, she would have been doomed.

Notable Successes

Mrs. Kendal's most notable successes, apart from those already mentioned, were in "The Ironmaster", "The Money-Spinner", "The Hobby Horse", "A White Lie", "The House of Clay", "The Melcombe Marriage", "The Housekeeper", "A Tight Corner", "The Whirlpool", "Impulse" and "The Squire". In later years her most popular appearances were in "The Elder Miss Blossom", "St. Martin's Summer", "The Likeness of the Night" and "The Secret Orchard". After 1888 she toured much in the provinces with an occasional season at rare intervals in London. In June, 1902, she appeared with Troie and Ellen Terry as Mistress Ford in "The Merry Wives of Windsor". Since 1908 she had practically retired from the stage, her only appearance being at the gala performance on June 27, 1911, when she again played Mistress Ford. Her husband died in 1917.

SHENG AN PIRACY

EXECUTION OF FOUR EUROPEAN PIRATES

Dairen, Sept. 14.
It is reliably reported that the Germans Captain Hugo Taudien, Heinrich Westermann and Walter Muller and the Swiss, Arthur Gautchi, who were sentenced to death in connection with the piracy of the Chinese steamer Sheng An in June, 1933, were executed in prison at Port Arthur on September 10.

The fifth accused, Schroeder, a German, is serving 10 years' imprisonment.

Gautchi and Muller were originally sentenced to life imprisonment, but were sentenced to death by the Appeal Court.—Reuter.

The Sheng An outrage occurred while the steamer was on voyage from Tangku near Tientsin for Shanghai. When the ship was 200 miles from Shanghai the five buccanniers who were passengers seized control, kill-

Exhibition Starts To-day

The exhibition of photographs entered in the Telegraph Competition opened at the Gloucester Hotel at 9 o'clock this morning and will continue daily for four days. The whole of the entries, totalling nearly 1,700, are on view—a magnificent display, of high merit.

ing the skipper, Captain Vikhram, and his wife and the chief mate, all of whom were Russians, and also seven of the Chinese crew. The bodies were thrown overboard.

The ship's course was diverted towards Dairen, where the gang intended to take on provisions for a 34-day trip to South America, where the men hoped to sell the ship and cargo.

Owing to bad navigation, however, ship ran aground at Hoshigaura.

The suspicions of the police were aroused by the evasive answers to their questions, and five of the men were arrested.

A message received on September 9 said that General Mian, Governor-General of the Kwangtung Territory were waiting for instructions from the prison authorities at Port Arthur before announcing the date for the execution of the four condemned men.

The treaty is effective thirty days, after ratification by the Colombian Congress.—Reuter's Special.

Merry Wives of Windsor". Since 1908 she had practically retired from the stage, her only appearance being at the gala performance on June 27, 1911, when she again played Mistress Ford. Her husband died in 1917.

Charm of Personality

Mrs. Kendal was not only one of the most versatile and accomplished actresses of her generation, but a woman of very fine character and charming personality. She strongly opposed anything she considered likely to lower the dignity of the theatrical profession, the status of which she and her husband had done so much to improve. In July, 1926, the award to her of the title of Dame of the British Empire was the most popular feature of the Birthday Honours. She gave a fine portrait of Kemble by Sir Thomas Lawrence to the Savage Club in 1926 and was elected an honorary member. She had met many famous people. As a child she was introduced to Gris and Marie, and Henry Russell wrote a song for her. Later she sang a duet with Sims Reeves in "Guy Mannerling". Among her friends in her early days were Jenny Lind, Macready, Mrs. Kemble, Charles Dickens and George Eliot.

As an octogenarian she complained of the sheeplike way in which modern women followed fashions.—They all dressed alike, she said, and should not recognise any of her friends at a glance. In 1933 at the age of 84 she spoke the part of Rosalind in "As You Like It" (in which she first appeared 65 years before) to make a record for broadcasting. She also appeared in person sometimes before the microphone as vivacious as ever.

ETHIOPIA REPLIES

SPIRITED ATTACK ON ITALIAN INDICTMENT

Geneva, Sept. 15.
The Abyssinian Government's reply to Signor Mussolini's seven hundred page indictment of Ethiopia has been presented to the League. It rejects the Italian charges on general lines and reserves the right to reply to specific accusations as soon as detailed information is obtainable from Ethiopia.—Reuter.

Error in Date

Geneva, Sept. 15.
"The Italian documents are carelessly drawn up. Many witnesses cited were never consulted," declares the Abyssinian reply to the Italian indictment published yesterday evening.

The reply prepared by the French ethnographer, M. Griaule, says that an error of date in the Italian memorandum of nearly one thousand years is sufficient to discourage serious examination of the indictment.

The reply points out that there is no case in the history of the Italo-Abyssinian dispute where Abyssinia has declined to submit the question to arbitration when requested to do so by Italy.

The reply accuses Italy of establishing consular posts at ports in Abyssinia which can only have strategic interest, and of stirring up trouble in the army and among the tribesmen.

"If the condition of Ethiopia is really as suggested in the Italian indictment, why has no other foreign legation protested against her?"

"The Italian indictment does not justify intervention by a foreign Power in Abyssinia."

M. Griaule proposes an impartial inquiry by a committee of experts.—Reuter.

HONGKONG TRADE

REPORTS BY IMPORTERS FOR PAST FOURNIGHT

The following reports have been supplied by importers to the Hong Kong General Chamber of Commerce:

Cotton Piece Goods and Fancy Cotton Goods. The following reports have been received: There is still no interest shown in the buying of Spring goods and indications are that purchases will not be large. The market is very quiet in all kinds of piece goods and deliveries are very few. The Spring season is now drawing to a close and, although the carrying over of British and foreign productions is negligible, there are heavy stocks of Japanese manufacture.

Woolens.—New season's Woolens and Worsted are now arriving but the market has not yet opened. Although quantities are small, a good season with normal profit is not anticipated.

Metals.—The reason for the drop in prices of Steel Bars is due to Japanese competition which, although not being very keen at present in Hong Kong, is very prevalent in Shanghai. It is reported that the International Steel Cartel are reorganising the China markets in order to eliminate competition and to keep a strict control over sales.

Flour.—Stock: 340,000 bags. Market.—Steady.

WEEK-END TRAGEDIES

CRIME PASSIONNEL IN LOCAL BOARDING HOUSE

A crime passionnel was enacted in a room on the third floor of the Luk Hoi Tung Boarding House, 150 Connaught Road Central, in the early hours of Saturday morning, when a young Chinese man and woman were found lying dead on the floor embraced in each other's arms. Circumstances point to murder and suicide.

Both had stab wounds. It is surmised that the man stabbed the woman twice in the stomach and twice in the left breast, one wound piercing the heart. He then stabbed himself in the abdomen and throat.

The man is Wong Fuk-sing, aged 27, of Tai Shan district, and the woman's name is given as Lai Sze, 20, of Kong Chau district.

A police report states they looked a room together at the Luk Hoi Tung Boarding House on Friday night. At about 4.30 on Saturday morning the woman was heard to scream. Fokis rushed to the room and on forcing open the door found the couple lying on the floor. Both were dead.

Police arrived on the scene and found a letter in the woman's jacket pocket. A dagger was also picked up.

The history of the man and the woman has not yet been discovered.

The bodies were removed to the Victoria Public Mortuary.

It is understood the couple registered as coming from Canton.

Police investigations are in the hands of Detective-Inspector A. H. Elston.

Another Murder Suspected

The body of a Chinese woman, aged about 30, was found lying on a road in King's Park yesterday morning with a cord tied around the neck. Murder is suspected.

According to a police report from Yau-mat, the discovery was made by a coolie, Wong Fuk, who found the body on a road leading to the revolver range in King's Park. Death had probably occurred about three hours previously.

The deceased was dressed in black cotton clothing with a white and pink striped under jacket. She wore rubber tyre sandals.

The identity of the woman is unknown at present.

WILL LEAGUE DISARM ITALY?

BRITISH NAVAL BLOCKADE?

ROME BELIEVES WAR NOW INEVITABLE

GERMANY THREATENING INVASION OF MEMEL

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")

(By Telegraph. Copyright. Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1934. Received, Sept. 16, 11.45 a.m.)

Rome, Sept. 15.

The developments of the week-end have caused deep concern here and it is unanimously believed that war is inevitable. However, it is still hoped that European repercussions can be avoided.

The nation's confidence in Signor Mussolini, the Fascist Dictator, is unwavering still.

Meanwhile, from Geneva comes the statement that the League of Nations will face its most vital test after the Council meeting on Wednesday. Signor Mussolini's clear rejection of the compromise offer by France has made a mockery of the desperate efforts of the nations to draft peace proposals.

The events, as forecast by authoritative quarters, are:

1. The sub-committee of the Committee of Five will draft a report, probably embodying twelve proposals tantamount to a questionnaire asking both Italy and Ethiopia how little the one is prepared to accept and how much the other is prepared to give in order to avert war.

2. The Council will reconvene and approve the report, which will be submitted to Italy immediately. Italy is expected to reject it, whereafter the League will consider what penalties are applicable if Italy attacks Ethiopia.

3. A concentrated study of negotiations is expected to precede any definite commitments on the specific question of sending a League of Nations Army to disarm Signor Mussolini.

INTERNATIONAL FORCE

Probably such a League of Nations force would include, as its first and most important arm, the British Navy, which would be asked to blockade Italy by blockade in the Mediterranean; and the League's second move would be with international land and air forces, which would attack Italy's Alpine border, but it is uncertain whether any foreign troops would be sent to Ethiopia.

HITLER'S DEMANDS

Chancellor Adolf Hitler's demand that the League of Nations intervene to protect the people of Memel against Lithuanian oppression has intensified the anxiety of Europe and Geneva in particular.

It is generally considered that Herr Hitler's warning is an implied threat that Germany will forcibly intervene in Memel while the League is preoccupied in Italy.

TENSION GROWS

Addis Ababa, Sept. 15.

With the end of the rainy season less than a fortnight away, public uneasiness is brewing, especially in foreign commercial services, at the prospect of an Italian invasion.

An air raid on Addis Ababa, directly hostilities begin, is feared, in the event of failure of peace efforts. Precautions have already been taken to protect the population, foreigners and natives alike preparing trenches and shelters in their gardens.

The tone of Sir Samuel Hoare's and M. Laval's speeches at the League Assembly is welcomed here, but it is considered that the time for speeches and negotiations is over, and that the best thing to Several special ships and ice-breakers are building on the Yenisey, Lena and other rivers which flow into the Arctic.—Reuter-Special.

Gloomy View Of Europe's Complication

ITALY EXPECTED TO QUIT LEAGUE

FEW PAPERS HOPEFUL

Paris, Sept. 15.

Press opinion over Signor Mussolini's latest step, the communique declaring that the Italo-Ethiopian position allowed no compromise, is divided. There are various interpretations of the Italian statement.

Le Temps, for instance, while admitting that the situation is grave, insists that the Italian communique does not shut the door on all hopes of peace, but is rather a sop to the Italian public.

Le Journal des Debats and Le Temps both warn Signor Mussolini that he will alienate his best friend if he does not accept the solution offered him, which would not only strengthen his prestige but would satisfy Italy's legitimate claims for expansion.

Most other papers take a gloomy view. L'Echo de Paris believes that a rupture between Italy and the League is only a matter of days.—Reuter.

FAMOUS NOVELIST PASSES

London, Sept. 15.

The death is announced of the Rev. Silas K. Hocking, the veteran novelist, at the age of 83 years.

The late Mr. Hocking, who was born at St. Stephen's, in Cornwall, became a candidate for the Methodist ministry at the age of 19 and was ordained in 1870, holding pastorates at Pontypool, Spalding, Liverpool, Manchester and Southampton. He began to write homely stories of an "improving" type in 1878, his first efforts being "Alice Green" and "Hor Bonny". So successful were his novels that after thirteen years as a minister at Southport he resigned in 1890.—(Continued on Page 12.)

LOCAL BANK CLOSES

FEAR OF SECOND RUN TO-DAY

ALL NIGHT MEETING

A surprise was created in banking and business circles this morning, when the National and Commercial Savings Bank Ltd., of 8A Des Voeux Road Central, failed to open its doors. Pasted on the door of the Bank was the following notice in English and Chinese:—"By order of the Board of Directors, this Bank suspends business, pending reorganisation."

The notice attracted much attention, large crowds soon gathering outside the Bank.

The closing of the Bank follows a large-scale run which was experienced on September 4, immediately after the Bank of Canton had suspended business. So marked was the run that the Bank officials then took steps restricting withdrawals, issuing a notice to the effect that the Bank would pay 20 per cent. of savings bank deposits every ten days.

The Bank has an authorised capital of 500,000 shares of $10 each, of which 257,410 have been issued, fully paid. The Bank's profit for 1934 was $70,713, and a sum of $80,261 was carried forward to this year.

ASSISTANCE LACKING

Interviewed by a representative of the Telegraph, one of the directors of the Bank stated that the step taken was due to the heavy run experienced by the institution during the past week, following the suspension of payments by the Bank of Canton. Furthermore, the Bank did not receive the assistance which it expected.

When the run was first started, the Bank put up the following notice: "Only 1/5 of the total amount of deposits can be withdrawn at any one time, and subsequent withdrawals shall be at (Continued on Page 12.)"

SIR T. SOUTHOORN'S CONDITION

The following bulletin regarding Sir Thomas Southorn's condition was issued this morning:—"The Director of Medical and Sanitary Services and Government Consultants report that Sir Thomas Southorn's progress is maintained, but that he is suffering from slight bronchitis."

Willingdon Appeals For Tolerance

ADDRESS TO INDIA LEGISLATURE

COMMUNAL UNREST

London, Sept. 15.

"Nothing is to be gained by the working of the new Constitution in a spirit of mere destruction or by the abandonment of constitutional methods. I appeal to all those who love their country and desire to see it well governed by its own people to show a spirit of tolerance and goodwill, and work for the creation of greater friendliness among all communities."

This was the moving declaration of the Viceroy of India, Lord Willingdon, when addressing both houses of the Legislature to-day.

He said that emergency powers in the Criminal Law Amendment Bills, which were defeated in the Assembly on September 12, would be returned to the Assembly in a recommended form for reconsideration.

Communal unrest is more serious a danger now than for many years past and there are dangerous subversive movements still active. Local governments are unanimously convinced that the retention of the emergency measures are essential.

IMPROVING TRADE

Speaking of India's improving trade position, the Viceroy said that exports, other than cotton, had improved by £2,250,000 compared with last year. In the case of Germany the balance was again swinging in India's favour while despite Italy's stringent system of import control, exports to Italy for the first four months of 1935 had only fallen six per cent.

The Viceroy announced the formation of a special aviation circle of the Public Works Department to carry out the programme of bringing air routes up to date, preparations for which were progressing steadily.

Concerning the grant for rural development over £187,500 would be spent on village water supplies and irrigation, £142,500 for general improvement of villages, £90,000 for improvement of village roads and £75,000 for sanitation and medical work.—Reuter.

SPEED RECORD

Detroit, Sept. 15.

Major Alexander de Seversky broke the world's record for amphibian planes when he travelled at 230.03 miles per hour to-day. The previous record was 191 miles per hour, held by Lieut. Stone of the U. S. Coast Guard.—Reuter.

GERMANS FOLLOW PEACE PATH

NAZI DECLARATION OF POLICY

WARNING TO LITHUANIA GIVEN BY HITLER

Nuremberg, Sept. 15.

Chancellor Adolf Hitler, before the greatest rally of the Nazi party ever achieved, to-night reiterated Germany's love of peace; but in the same breath declared that Memel had been robbed by Lithuania and that Germany must pay attention to the situation there. He appealed to the League of Nations to prevent things which might be regretted by all concerned, and the tribunes cheered with one thunderous voice.

A storm of cheering greeted Der Fuehrer as he entered the temporary Reichstag Building, which was decorated with masses of flowers and swastika flags. Thousands of red and white carnations, gladioli, ferns and shrubs adorned the building. The chairs were covered with red plush and the wooden tribunes and the gallery were smothered in red bunting. The swastika was everywhere.

Two searchlights picked out the platform where the party of leaders, Herr Hitler and his chief lieutenants, sat at a long red-draped table, with two microphones facing them.

The Chancellor broadcast his declaration of policy to all of Germany.

"For us there can only be one course: our great and unthinkable love of peace."

"The purpose of the creation of our army is not to deprive other nations of their freedom, but to defend our own freedom. We do not want to concern ourselves with matters which are not our business, and we do not want to be drawn into them," he declared.

MEMEL DANGER

Referring to the situation existing in Memel, amid wild cheers, Der Fuehrer said that peaceful territory had been robbed by Lithuania. The people of Memel had been oppressed for years. Germany must pay attention to that.

The representations of the foreign Powers had been fruitless.

GERMAN THREAT OF WAR?

Kaunas, Sept. 15.

Herr Hitler's attack on Lithuania is considered here as a threat of war, which endangers the peace of Eastern Europe.

The Government intends to apply to the signatory Powers of the Memel Convention, asking them to give a warning to Germany. It emphasises that the elections in Memel are being held in a legal manner under the eye of representatives of the Powers.—Reuter.

and the citizens of Memel had been treated worse than criminals. Every appeal to the Lithuanian Government had been in vain. The preparations for the coming Memel elections were a mockery.

Herr Hitler appealed to the League to prevent things which might be regretted by all concerned.

U.S. COAL STRIKE DANGER

TEMPORARY STAY OF WALK-OUT

FIFTH IN SIX MONTHS

Washington, Sept. 15.

The threatened strike of American soft coal workers, timed to commence to-morrow, has been postponed for at least a week as a result of last-minute peace efforts by the Assistant Secretary for Labour, Mr. Edward F. McGrady. All day long President Roosevelt was besieged with telephone calls by officials seeking to prevent the tie-up of this great industry and to avoid what must almost certainly lead to violence and bloodshed if the strike develops as anticipated.

An agreement was reached in the early morning between the local miners and the owners. It entails the continuation of the present wage and hour contract, which was due to expire at midnight, for one week further.

The workers have abandoned their demands for the continuance of the old contract basis for a fortnight and that any agreement reached in the future should be retro-active.

This is the fifth time a threatened strike has been postponed within six months. The position is still tense, however.—Reuter.

ANTI-WAR WORK

Washington, Sept. 15.

Senator Nye bought the first $100 bond of the $1,000,000 issue which is not redeemable for cash and which will pay no interest. Issued by the National Council for the Prevention of War, which is pledged to utilise all its proceeds in the interests of peace.—United Press.

LEGALLY

MAN THEY CANNOT ELECTROCUTE
New York, Sept. 1.

A few feet from the cell occupied by Bruno Richard Hauptmann, convicted kidnapper of the Lindbergh baby, in "Death Row" of Trenton's State prison, there lives a man who has been legally dead for many years.

His name is Archibald Herron. He has been in the prison for twenty-seven years. Herron was sentenced to die in 1908 for the "grudge" murder of a justice of the peace.

Twice stays of execution were granted. Then the governor of the State refused to continue postponing the execution.

Herron was prepared for death in the electric chair. But later the same day Justice Bergen overrode the governor and issued another stay pending an inquiry into Herron's sanity.

Just Waiting

Two months later Justice Bergen issued a further order staying all proceedings until further orders of the court. These further orders were never made because the judge died.

AFTER RECORD
ON OCT. 11

Kingsford-Smith
To Make New Flight

Sir Charles Kingsford Smith has tentatively fixed October 11 as the date he will leave Perthbridge will hop off from England in the Lockheed Altair, Lady Southern Cross, for Australia.

"Smith" in America the next fortnight will confer with Pan-American Airways and the Sikorsky flying boat company on the operation and maintenance of marine air service.

He will also visit a motor-car factory at Auburn, Indiana, to watch the construction of a special motor-car which he ordered before leaving Sydney. Mr. H. Shell, "Smith's" personal representative, said that Sir Charles would make a fast trip back to Sydney, but if it were necessary for him to confer with various air-line executives on the way he would do so.

Under a clause of New Jersey law, Herron is therefore presumed dead.

He was a blacksmith before he committed the crime. When he entered prison he was tall and powerful. Today he is a wreck. His eyes are so weak from years of dim light that he is unable to read. He does not smoke. He has no one to write to. He just sits in his cell—waiting.

He does not know that Hauptmann is one of his neighbors. He does not even know who Lindbergh is.

He has been in the first time a few days ago during a visit to the prison hospital. He was frightened.

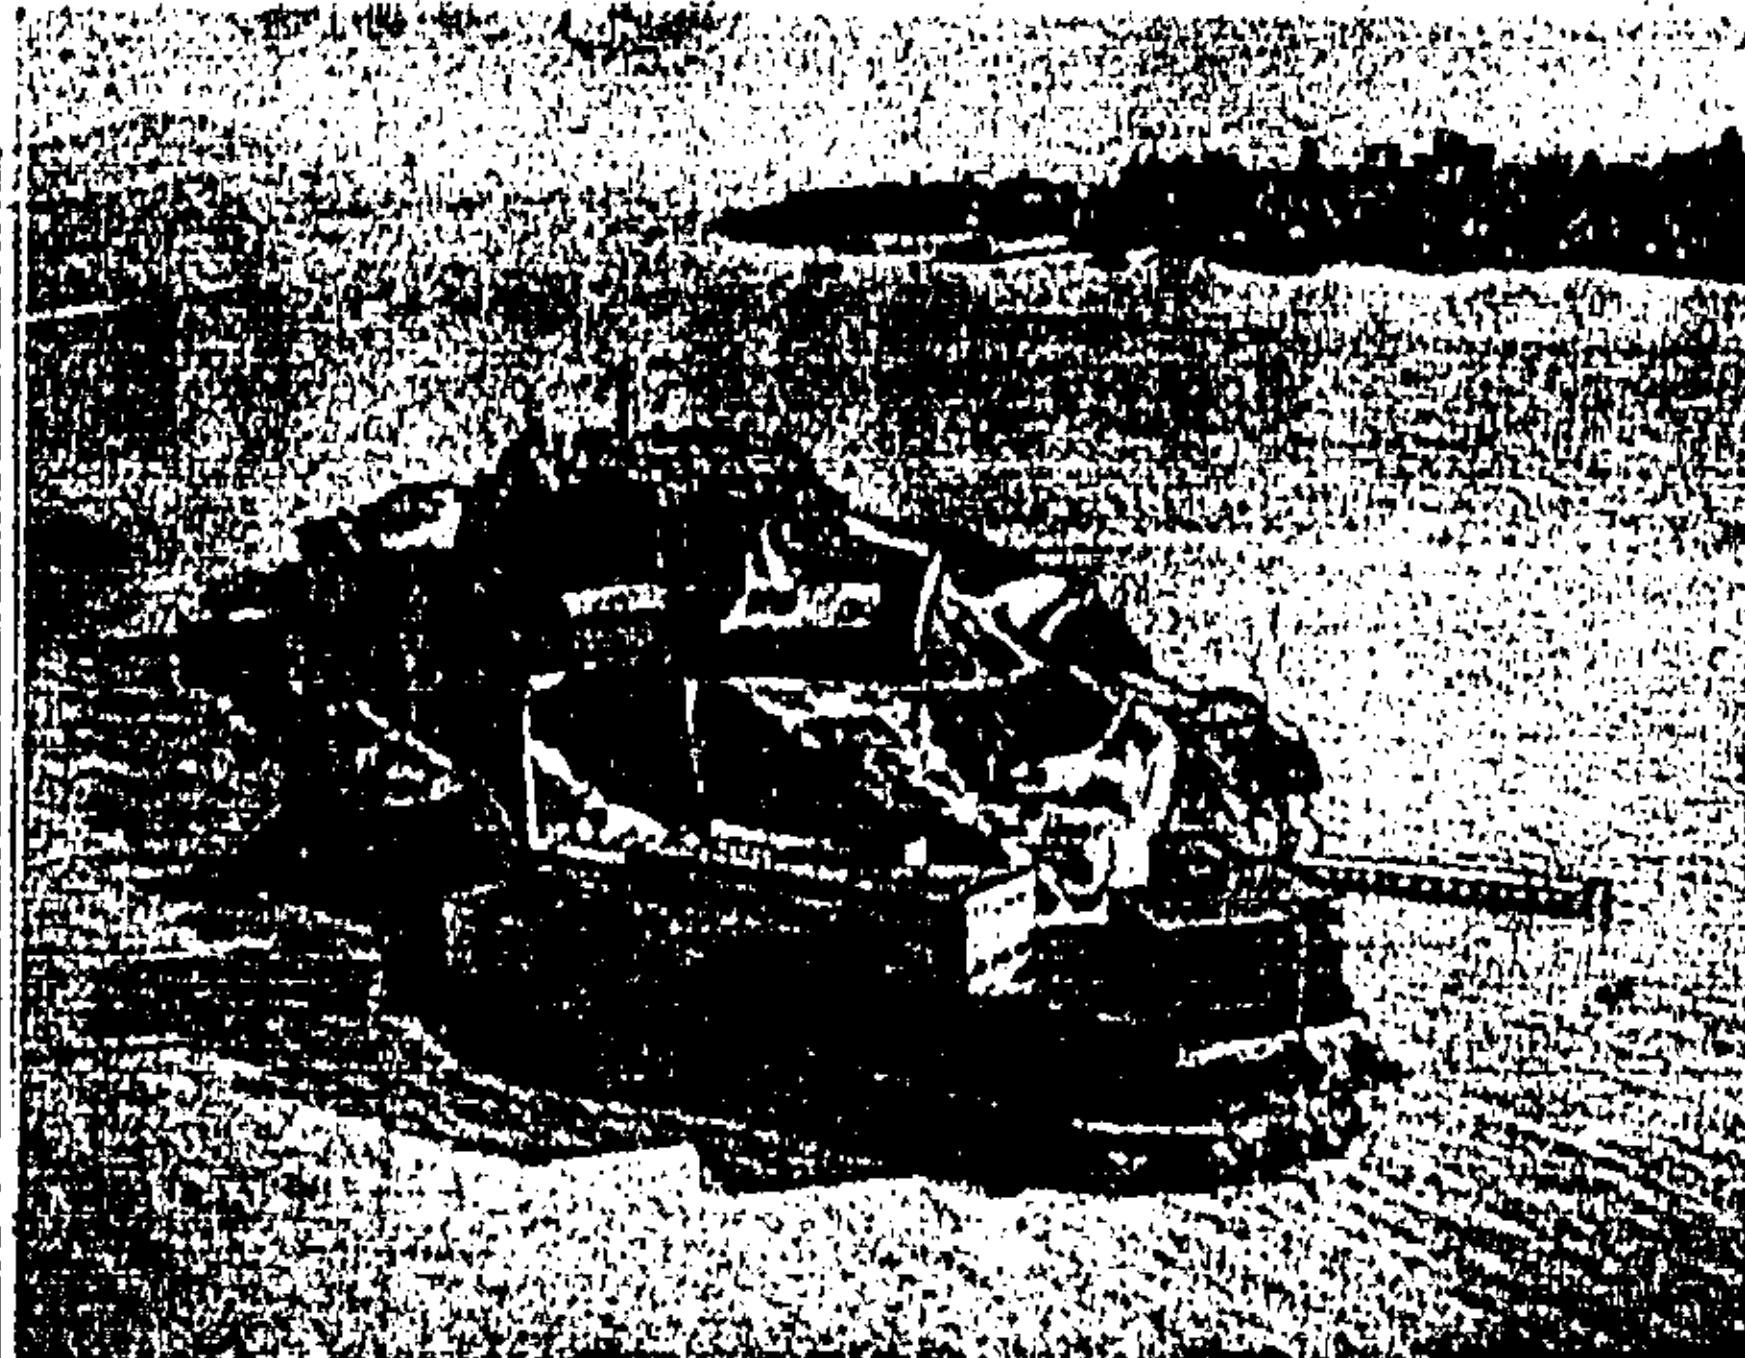

Son's One Visit

Herron's only recreation is a daily walk, during which he is guided by other prisoners.

He cannot properly converse with them because he is almost stone deaf.

Only once during his twenty-seven years in prison has he received a visitor—his son, who never came back to see him. Lawyers have suggested to the old man: "Why don't you get your son to bring a suit claiming your corpse as you are legally dead?"

But the man who is dead in the eyes of the law replies: "Oh, he wouldn't want it."

ALCATRAZ ISLAND . . . America's "prison of eternal silence".

Al Capone Promoted In America's "Gaul Of Eternal Silence"

New York, Sept. 1.

William Henry Ambrose, an Englishman, once a drug peddler, removed for deportation to-day from Alcatraz Prison, revealed some of the secrets of America's "Devil Island"—the island gaol in San Francisco Harbour.

Ambrose has been released for deportation under President Roosevelt's order that foreign criminals must be sent back to their own countries.

Alcatraz Prison, he said, is the gaol of eternal silence. No prisoner may speak except during one authorized period a week.

"It is enough to drive you crazy. Even 'hard guys' like Al Capone are furious at the silence, the strict discipline, the harsh punishment."

"Capone has three or four times been thrown into a dungeon for talking." But Ambrose confirmed the report that Capone, the ex-racketeer, has been appointed prison librarian.

Capone, according to Ambrose, is not losing his reason. "He's not giving away an inch," he says.

Man Who
Forgot
His Own CodeARRESTED BY ORDER
OF HIS SON

New York, Aug. 28.

A transcontinental misunderstanding led to the temporary detention in Seattle over the week-end of a prominent New Jersey manufacturer and his son.

It caused many chuckles when the cause of it was explained today by another son at his home in Essex Fells, New Jersey.

The manufacturer, Mr. Carroll Dunham Smith, 63, and his son, Mr. De Veaux Smith, were seized by detectives in the Seattle office of a telephone company. Their capture ended a stiff fight, in which they thought they were resisting would-be kidnapers.

Their arrest, it was later discovered, had been requested by another member of the family, Mr. Carroll Dunham Smith, Jr., in the mistaken belief that they were some other persons trying to obtain money under false pretences.

Before leaving on a tour which was to take them to the Pacific Coast, young Mr. Smith said today, his father and brother arranged to use a code word if they should telegraph for extra funds. When he received a telegram which did not contain the code word he became suspicious.

Not Recognised

Instead of sending the money he demanded a description of the two men who had asked for it. The description sent by the telephone company did not seem to him to apply to his father and brother. Convinced that he was dealing with thieves, he asked the Seattle police to arrest the men if they returned to collect the money.

After the struggle and arrest Mr. Smith and his son were taken to the police station. They renewed their protests, and gave the code word. They had simply forgotten to put it in the telegram. The code word was checked, and they were set at liberty.

Ironically enough, Mr. Carroll Smith, sen., is an honorary member of the New Jersey Police Chiefs' Association.

MOTHER-IN-LAW

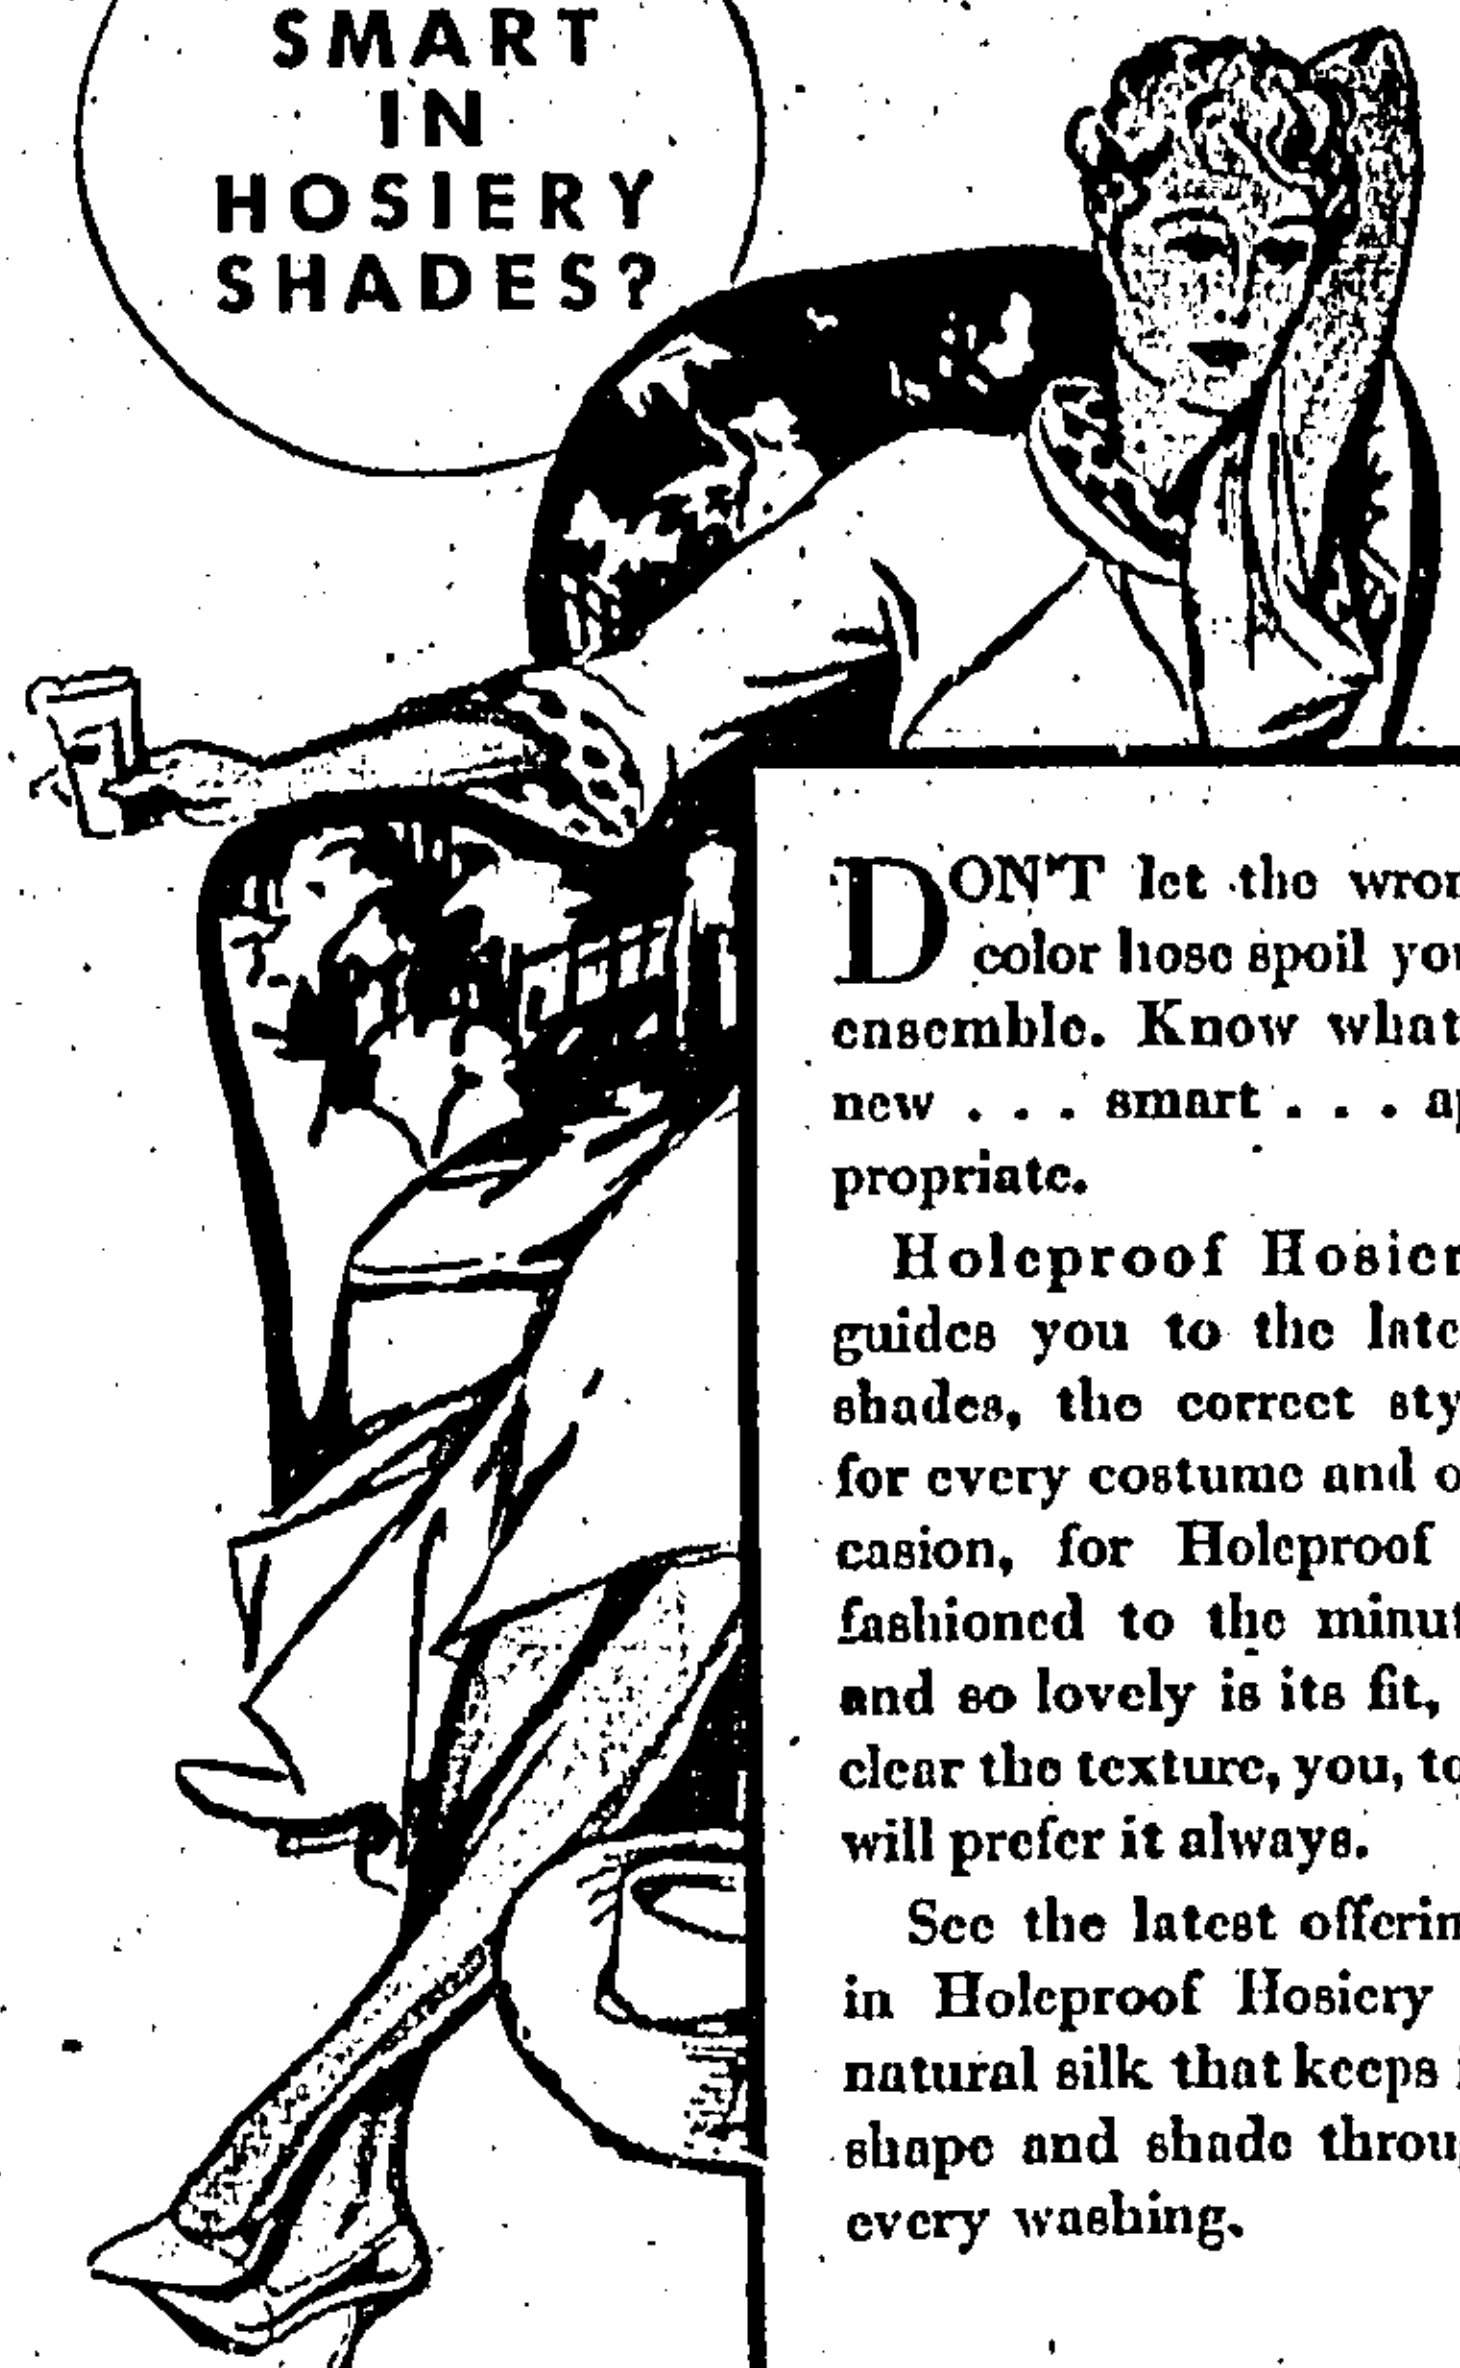

A MARRIAGE tangle without a precedent is disclosed by the application of the seventy-five-year-old Prince Henry of Pless to the Polish courts for the cancellation of his second marriage to the Countess de Silva, daughter of the Marquis d'Arcleouar.

This marriage was dissolved some time ago by the German courts, and the countess then married Bolko, Count Hochberg, the son of the prince. Her two-year-old son by Prince Henry was adopted by Count Hochberg.

But the Polish law does not recognise the German divorce, and, until they do, the Countess is her own mother-in-law.

The prince is one of the wealthiest men in Poland. His estates in Upper Silesia are temporarily sequestered for tax evasion.

It is understood that he wishes to marry a third time.

Explorers To Brave New Perils

BRITISH-U.S. PARTY TO PENETRATE UPPER ANDES

New York, Sept. 3. Members of a British-American expedition who will seek to explore territory in the Upper Andes and along the Amazon, from which no white man has ever returned alive, were scheduled to sail from here to-day.

Capt. Eric Erskine Loch, D.S.O., retired British officer, heads the expedition, which is sponsored by the Museum of the American Indian (Heye Foundation). Four others make up the party. Their first destination is Guayaquil, Ecuador, where they will be joined by two Ecuadorian scientists. The group then will proceed by mountain railway to Riobamba, whence they will travel by motor truck to Hacienda Leita, Patate, in the Upper Andes.

This is the last point of civilization the party will contact before trekking through isolated regions. The trip through hitherto unexplored, unmapped territory will be made by mule, on foot, by canoe and raft.

Indian Friendship Sought
Loch said before sailing that the main purpose of the expedition is to establish friendly relations with the Sanbela Indians, an almost "unknown" tribe, and to bring back ethnological specimens for the Museum of the American Indian. Geographical data and maps obtained by the party, he said, will be added to the common international fund of such knowledge. "No museum in the world," he declared, "has any ethnological specimens of the Sanbela. They are a fierce and shy tribe, known as the 'phantom people' by the few whites who have been near their territory, and called the 'auka' or 'wild men' by neighbouring tribes."

Other Explorers Murdered
"No white man has ever penetrated the Sanbela country and come out alive. Ours is the first expedition party on record to set out for this area. In 1927 a small group of Peruvian labourers, in search of supplies, stumbled upon a number of the Indians. All the Peruvians were murdered."

Loch added, however, that he is confident he and the other members of the expedition will be able to win the confidence and friendship of the Sanbela.

"It will be a long job," he said. "We may remain in the interior for ten months or a year. After we have convinced the Indians that our mission is peaceful, we will begin our studies. For an interpreter we will use one of the members of a nearby tribe."

Takes Gift Machetes

The explorer showed visitors the "calling card" which he intends to use as a means of introduction to the Sanbela. These were hundreds of machetes, made in Connecticut.

"I hope the Indians will accept them as tokens of friendship," he said. "It would be pretty bad if they turned out to be boomerangs."

Other members of the expedition are: Carl de Muralt of Zurich, Switzerland, who is a well-known archaeologist. He organized and partly financed the 1932 salvage expedition to the wreck of the steamer Merida, sunk 45 miles off the Virginia coast. This expedition recovered the vessel's safe.

H. M. Hardwicke of New York, geologist and topographer. Wilfred Klamroth of New York, assistant geologist. Peter Prime of Wisconsin, botanist.

Alasdair Loch of London, aviator and navigator. He is a cousin of the expedition's leader.

Explored With Dyott

This will be Loch's second trip to Ecuador and the valley of the Upper Amazon. In 1932 he accompanied Commander George Dyott on his Ecuadorian expedition. A romantic note was injected by Loch when he pointed out that the expedition will go to the shores of the lake near the perpetual snowline of the Llanganates Mountains where tradition says that the "lost treasure" of the Incas was hidden 400 years ago, at the time of the conquest by Spain.

"Our expedition is a purely scientific purpose," he said, "but of course we will not pass by the lake which tradition has made one of the treasure storehouses of the world without attempting to prove or disprove this legend."

Princess 'Carmo' Prisoner In German Castle

RAN AWAY WITH MAN SHE LOVED

Berlin, Sept. 1.

Beautiful, betrothed, twenty-five-year-old "Princess Carmo," stepdaughter of the ex-Kaiser, is being kept away from her lover in Castle Sabor, in Silesia, while her mother the Princess Hermine, decides whether or not she can marry the man she loves.

The Princess—her real name is Princess Hermine Caroline—fell in love last year with young Herr George Martin Wunderlich, her mother's secretary.

Her mother approved of the match, and the engaged couple spent happy days at Doorn, the ex-Kaiser's Dutch home.

Suddenly, however, Princess Hermine, the ex-Kaiser's wife, changed her mind and ordered her daughter to break off the engagement.

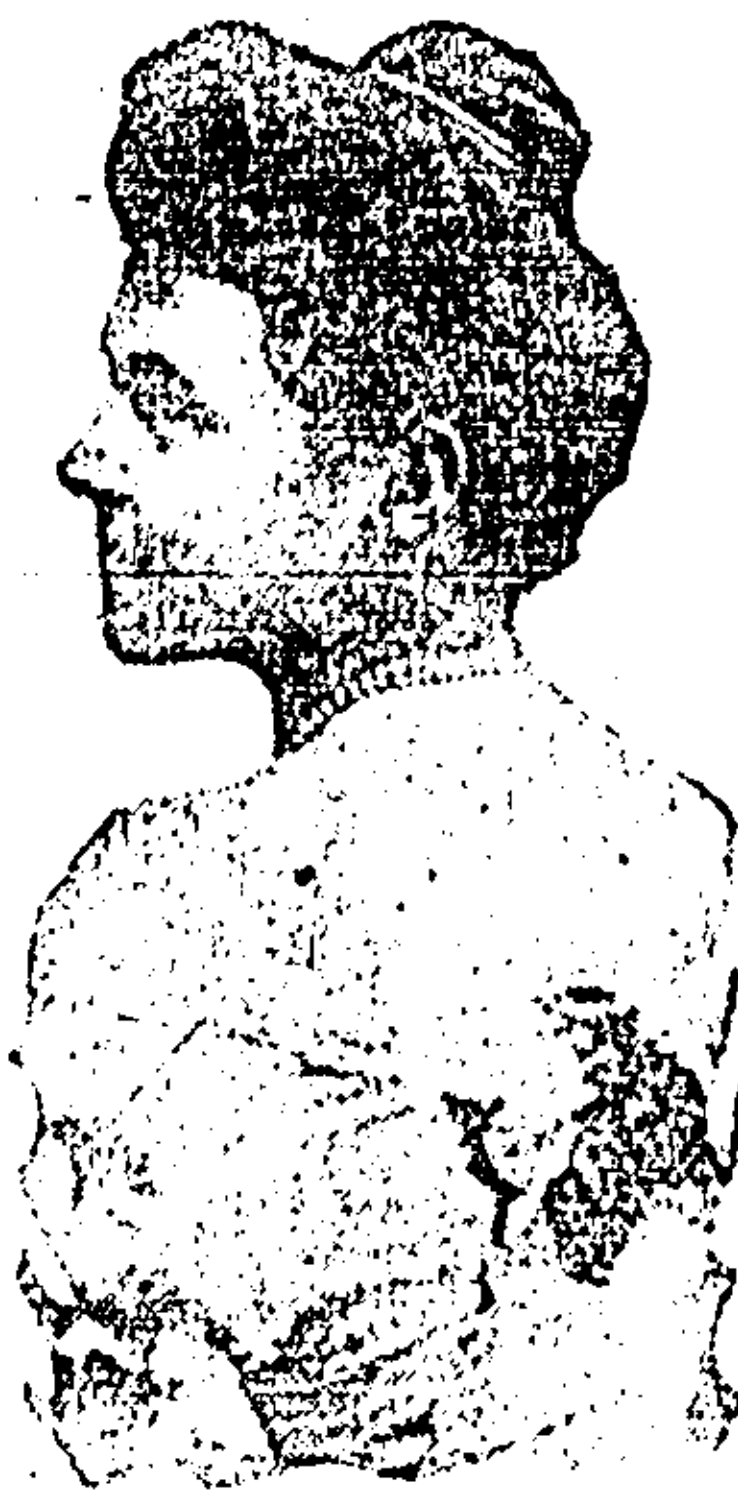

"Princess Carmo" forbidden to see any more of the man she loved, retaliated by escaping from Doorn and taking a room in a small boarding house in Berlin.

Her mother followed her, and from her headquarters in the old Imperial Palace in the Unter den Linden ordered her daughter to return to her.

The Princess obeyed. For a time she lived with her mother in the palace and spent her days in long solitary walks through the Berlin parks, accompanied by her black Scotch terrier.

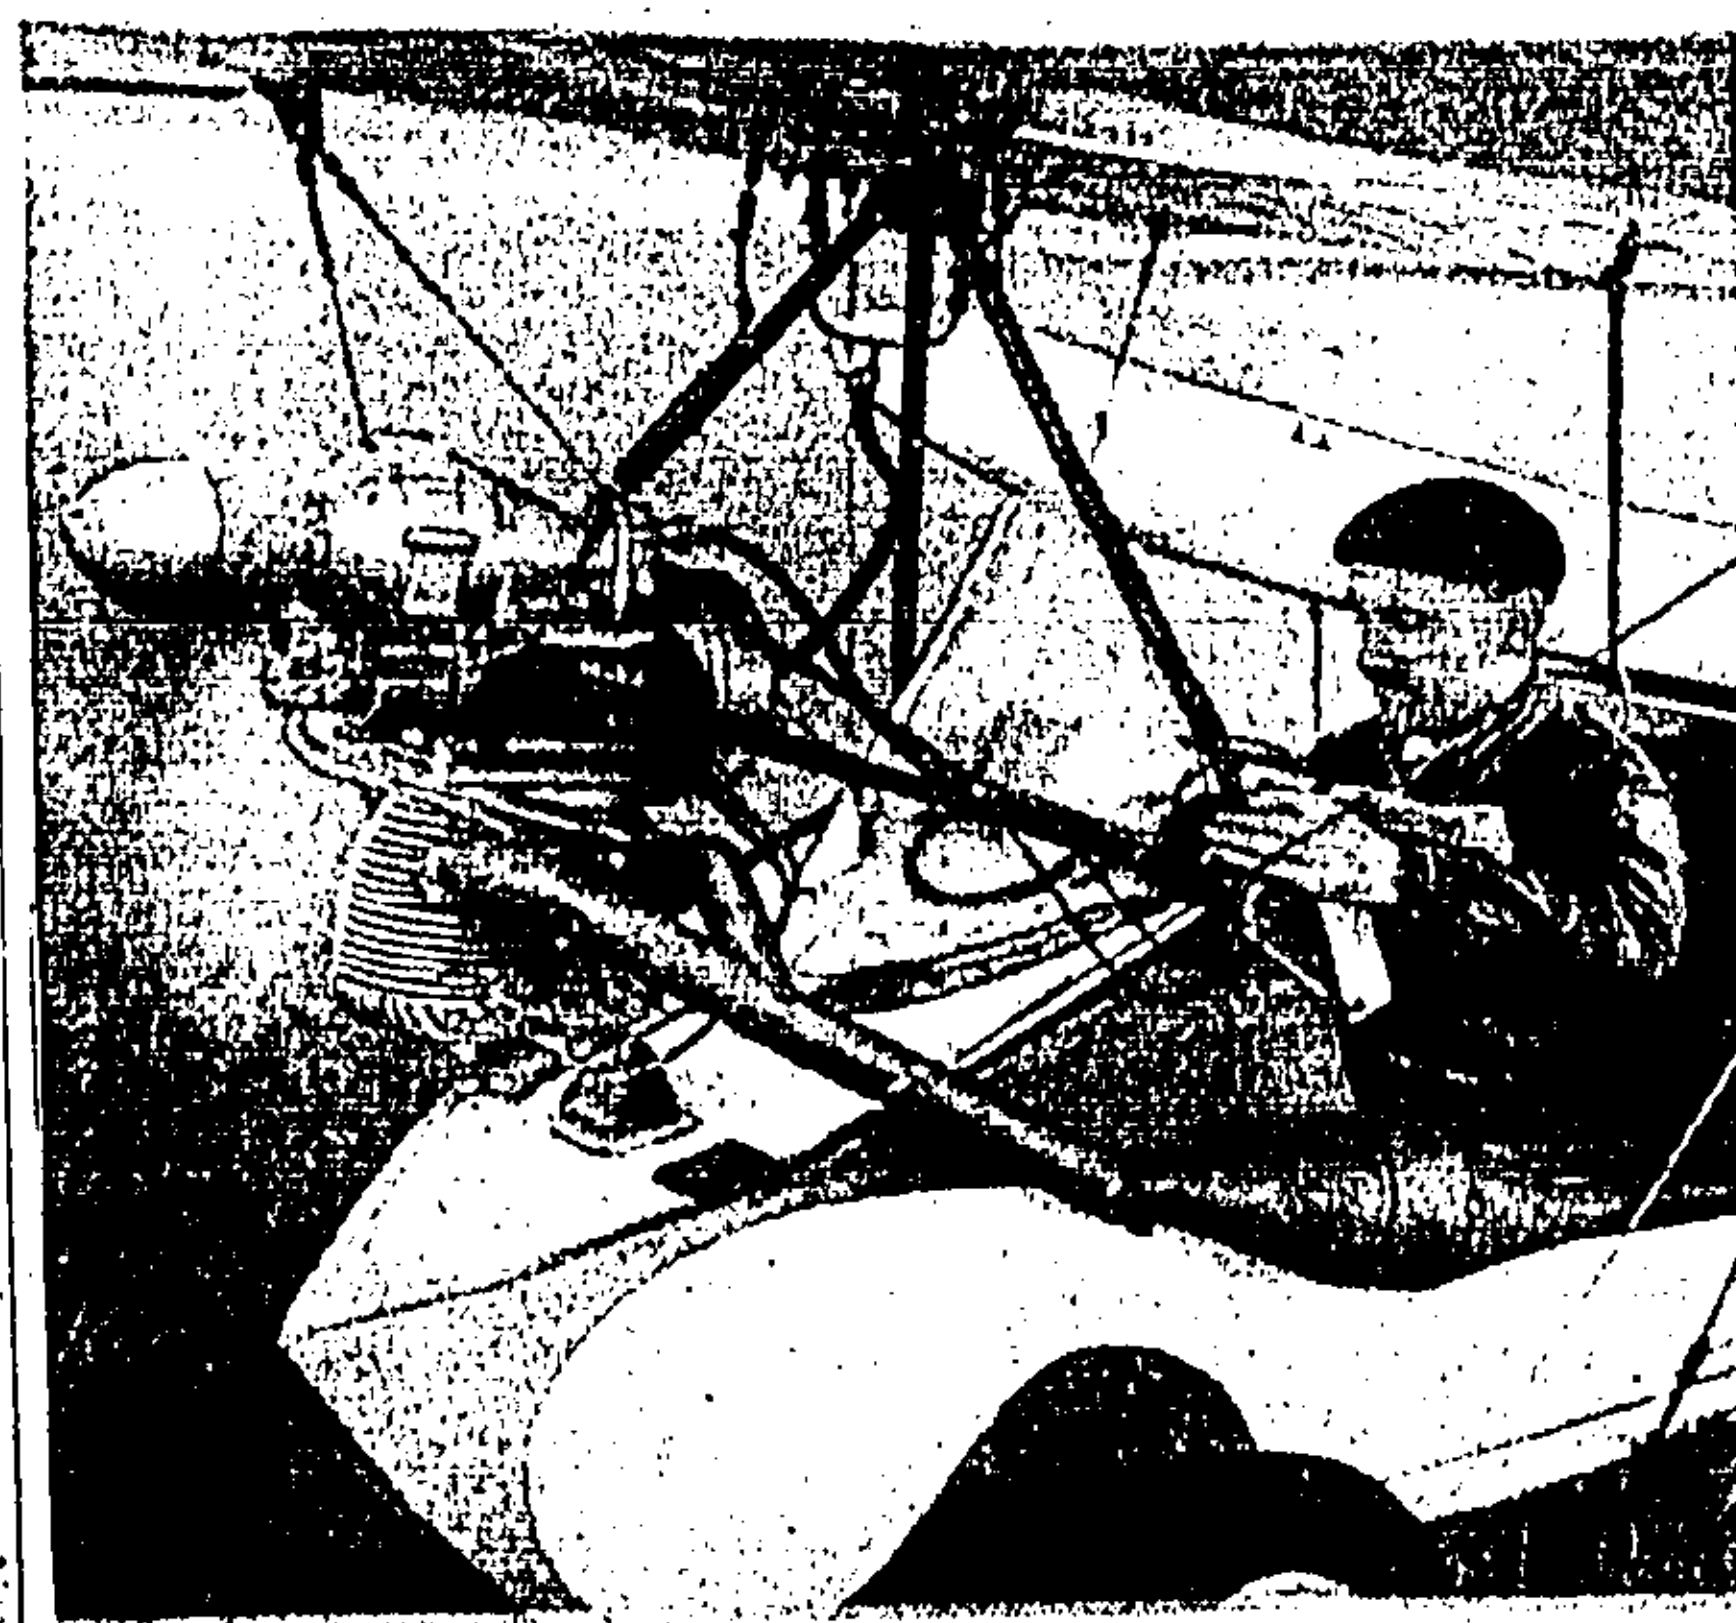

Then her mother took her away to Castle Sabor. She has not, however, lost all hope. Herr Wunderlich, no longer secretary to the Empress, is trying to find another position to enable him to support a wife.

This month there is to be a conference at Castle Sabor, where the parted lovers will try to win back permission to marry.

PRINCESS HERMINE forbade her daughter to marry.

"Flying Flea" Crosses Channel

The cheap aeroplane is now a reality. A Frenchman, M. Midget, has constructed a small machine which costs only £75. The inventor recently flew across the English Channel—in 52 minutes. The "Flying Flea", as the plane is called, has created a great sensation in England.

DID NOT SPARE ROD

Brutality Of Victorian Mothers

GIRLS OF TO-DAY LUCKIER THAN "GRANNIES"

"Our grandmothers were sadists." Girls of to-day who think that parents deal hardly with them in their home life should read this story of a grandmother's day. Here is a picture of the girl of the '60s—

Frustrated in her love-making by her prudish, severe elders, the girl of the '60s was a wretched, sex-starved person, who was taught that marriage was her only goal, but who was nevertheless balked at every turn in acquiring a man's affections.

If it were not cruel to dissect these palpitating young hearts, it would be easy to demonstrate the crude sexual urge hampered by unwholesome restraint until, in many cases, it became converted into definitely pathological forms.

This is an excerpt from "Feminine Attitudes in the Nineteenth Century" the author of which, C. Willett Cunningham, also quotes from a lengthy correspondence in the columns of the "Englishwoman's Domestic Magazine" for 1868 on the vexed question, "Ought we to whip our daughters?"

The volume of letters on this subject became so great that at last the magazine had to publish a special monthly supplement to contain them.

Birch Preferred

They supply us with evidence of a mass of sadism existing not merely in girls' schools, but in the happy English home. Letters from parents and schoolmistresses supply precise details:—

"The number of strokes—twenty to fifty—required 'to convert a wicked and stubborn nature into a sweet and loving disposition'."

"The method—by strap, slipper or birch (but the birch is preferable) 'as causing the more exquisite pain'."

"The tying down or the hanging up (for each has its advocates) of the victim, whose age runs from four to eighteen."

"The preparation for the ceremony, the stripping and the struggles and the screams, while the executioner (so often a female who has missed the more normal forms of sexual gratification) assures us that she does it 'as evidence of the tenderest love'."

A widower, inconsolable for the loss of his dear wife, explains that "he is now forced to flog his daughter himself, and the elder ones make such difficulties."

Artificial Busts

But the author does not harp continually on this subject. He has placed our grandmothers and great-grandmothers under the microscope, revealed the nature of their thoughts, their beauty secrets, their underclothes, their corsets, their musings on love, skin ungents and artificial busts.

Yet he is never unkind. His findings are tempered always with a kindly sense of humour. About nineteenth-century corsets the author has much to say. He quotes from a letter from a tradesman in 1828.

"They are unable to stand, sit or walk as women used to do; to expect one of them to stoop would be absurd."

"My daughter Margaret made the experiment the other day. Her stays gave way with a tremendous explosion and down she fell upon the ground, and I thought she had snapped in two."

MEN WHO ARE "GOLF MAD"

EX-ARMY OFFICERS BECOME CADDIES

London, Aug. 30.

Former Army officers, ex-bank clerks and men from a host of other callings are working on golf courses as caddies. Many of them were attracted by the hope that they will become champions.

Several have means. There is a caddy at one club near London who owns half a dozen villa residences and dabbles with fair success on the Stock Exchange.

"These men may be described as being 'golf mad,'" said the secretary of a famous club. "I know of instances where men in quite comfortable positions have thrown up their employment to become caddies."

"They have all been golfing enthusiasts, but unable to devote their time to the game owing to their work."

For the ambition of the caddy to become a champion there is precedent.

J. H. Taylor who was five times winner of the open championship, was a caddy at Westward Ho!

Harry Vardon as a boy was caddy for six months; while others, who started their golfing career as caddies, include James Braid, George Duncan, Alec Herd, Ted Ray and Walter Hagen.

FLIGHT PLAN

Non-Stop To England

A non-stop flight, from Australia to England, refuelling in the air, is planned by Mr. John L. Dampney, 24-year-old Englishman, who has arrived in Australia by steamer.

Mr. Dampney intends to use a twin-engined Puss Moth monoplane, fitted with wireless and floats, in case of a forced descent into the sea. His wife, who is accompanying him, will act as relief pilot on the flight.

"I am making arrangements to refuel by flexible pipe from another machine at five or six stations on the route," he is reported to have said. "By saving the precious time, I am confident that I can make the flight from Australia to England in two days and a half—two days better than the present record of four days and a half."

Lured By Call of The West

MOSLEM FATHER LEFT TO HIS LAMENTS

San Diego Sept. 3. PRINCESS RUBIE SALLIE, daughter of Prince Sallie, Cingalese dealer in precious stones, leaves America soon to join her white mother's family in England.

The princess is answering the call of the West—with all the freedom of the West. Her Moslem father remains in America, heartbroken at what he regards as his daughter's defection from the traditions of her fathers.

The story begins with the Princess Rubie's disappearance from her father's hotel apartments in San Diego yesterday.

Prince Sallie, fearing she had been kidnapped, told the police. They found her in Los Angeles to-day.

She had not been kidnapped. She had run away from home, determined to throw off the shackles of her father's faith.

Her father received her back; consented to her leaving for London. To-day he presides over his £10,000 gem exhibition here a lonely and disappointed man.

He gave his daughter everything—money, home, clothes. All but freedom.

She was allowed to talk only to her father. She was forbidden to read books or magazines which were not Mohammedan.

She rebelled. Her mother, who died in Ceylon four months ago, was a Christian—she was formerly Elsie Goldborough, of Melbourne, Australia—and the girl had lived most of her life with her mother.

When her mother died, the princess came to America to her father.

With only £10 in her possession, she is determined to make her way to London.

BRITISH SHIPPING

P. AND O. CHAIRMAN SPEAKS OUT AT LIVERPOOL

Liverpool, Sept. 14. The Hon. Alexander Shaw, Chairman of the Peninsular and Oriental Company, speaking at a dinner at Liverpool in the company's new liner Strathmore last night emphasised the necessity to British shipping from state-aided foreign competition. He declared that unless some defence was afforded, the British passenger mail service line between Australia and San Francisco would be withdrawn in a few months.

Much the same applied to the important British link between Canada and Australasia and unless fairer conditions ensued the British sea trade between Australia and New Zealand would be wiped out.—Reuter.

Conference Soon

Melbourne, Sept. 14. Commenting on the foregoing, the Prime Minister, Mr. Lyons, said that arrangements were completed for a conference in London before the end of the year, with the object of ensuring more equitable distribution of the Pacific trade.

He hoped that it would result in a fairer British shipbuilding and that Anglo-American interests would attend.—Reuter.

"Expressions by a Noted Authority in all matters pertaining to motoring"

Sir Malcolm Campbell's opinion of the 1935 MIRACLE RIDE STUDEBAKER given in his article which appeared recently in "The Field" concludes with—

"Altogether, I consider the New Studebaker a very good car indeed. Quiet at all speeds, very smooth and easy to handle, quite fast on the level—70 m.p.h. is well within its compass—good on hills and with excellent acceleration on all gears. It impresses me as being excellent value in the £300—£350 class. It is a car that I think will appeal to a very wide section of British motorists."

BRITAIN ON THE UP-GRADE

Convincing evidence of Britain's industrial recovery is to be found in the recent figures showing an increase during August of a quarter of a million people in work and a drop of nearly two hundred thousand in the number of unemployed. These figures show a progressive rise, a striking fact being that since the beginning of the year there has been a drop of no fewer than 377,000 in the total of the unemployed. Confidence is obviously returning, the figures making it clear that the revival is proceeding steadily all the time. In issuing these returns, the Ministry of Labour accompanies them with analyses which link them with the social services and with the country's general condition. In this connection, the percentages are now tolerably constant and they are worth noting because they outline the problems with which the Government is called upon to deal. It was shown in the June figures, for instance, that almost half of the registered unemployed are drawing insurance benefit, a figure which, as a Home paper points out, reveals the limits of the insurance system as a bulwark against the economic blizzard. Unemployment allowances, the term which has now replaced transitional benefit, cover more than a third of the total number of cases, and about 14 per cent. lie outside the new social services and depend on Public Assistance. So much for the nature of the aid given. Looking at the other side of the case, the period for which the names have been borne on the books, it is satisfactory to find that the great majority of cases only need temporary support. Two-thirds of the unemployed have been registered for less than six months. Nearly a half for less than six weeks. To all of these the extension of recovery gives good grounds of hope. But 23 per cent. or roughly 450,000, have been unemployed for over a year, and these are the men and women whose lot is a challenge to the social reformer. It is here, in fact, that we find the problem to be most deep-seated, and one of its worst features is that men who have been so long out of employment are losing their morale and will consequently find it extremely difficult to get back into stride again, even when the opportunity of work

NOTES OF THE DAY

U.S. NEUTRALITY

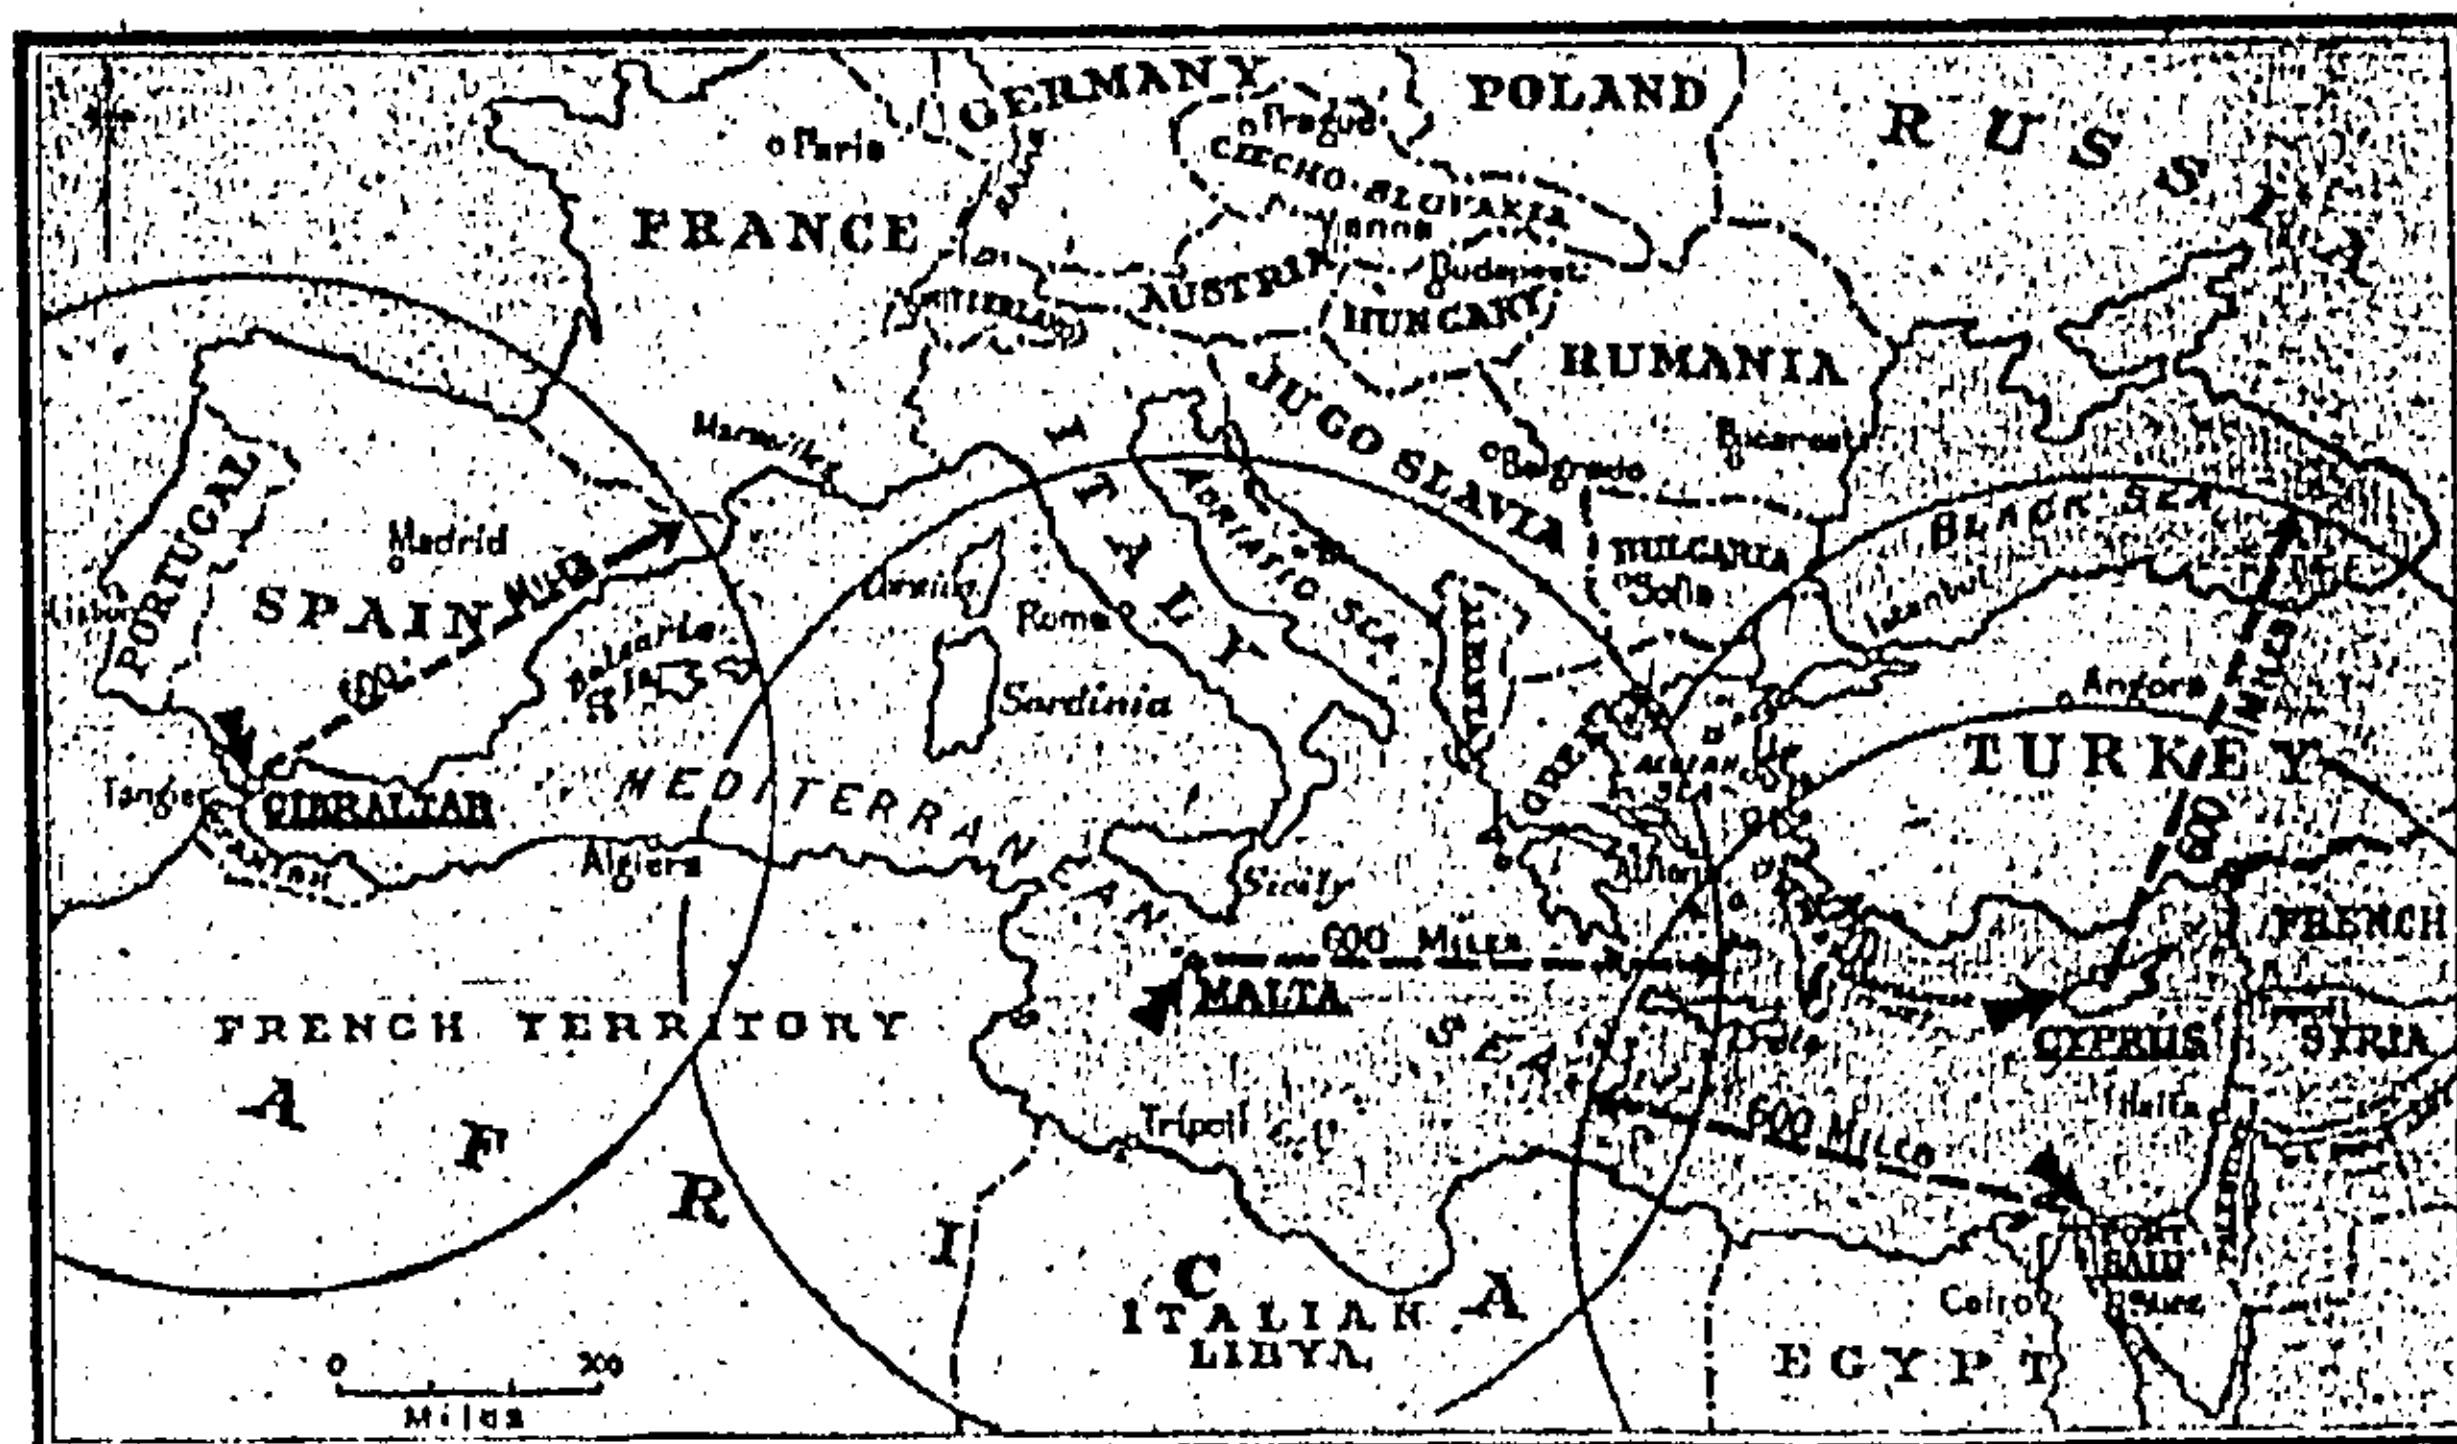

Such powerful and representative newspaper as the New York Times and Christian Science Monitor, notably anti-war in policy, have commented with something of disapproval upon the recently formulated Neutrality Bill which Congress rushed through before its recent adjournment. Others, too, inside and outside of America, have the feeling that America can serve her own and world interest best, not by a continuing policy of aloofness in times of crisis but by active intervention in support of such safeguards to peace as the League of Nations. "It cannot be said too often," says the Christian Science Monitor, "that isolation-neutrality is not enough. Indeed, it is not the best and most effective way to real neutrality. It is delusive. The first and best step towards neutrality is to assist in seeing that there is no war." It is pointed out that there are two stages in the preservation of American neutrality, and that isolation is the second and more desperate stage. As far as the first, and peace-preserving stage goes, at least in the present Italo-Ethiopian controversy, the United States policy of non-intervention, or at the most, friendly advice against aggression, may not be entirely remiss. The Pact of Paris has been called to the attention of the nations by the State Department and the pledges given under the terms of the Kellogg-Brundage Pact have been resurrected. As a nation without territory in Africa and without any great commercial interests in Europe, America in this instance may have done as much as could be expected of her. She has done as much as Japan, for instance. But, if peace preservation efforts ultimately become ineffective in this, or any other, conflict, what does America offer in the way of an impediment to aggression? Neutrality.

NOT ENOUGH

We think that is not enough. It is all very well to avoid taking sides at this stage of a crisis, when it has not developed beyond a threatening stage, when there has not yet been conflict and when the League has not been faced with the real necessity of deciding for or against sanctions. But suppose some nation were to send troops across another's frontiers tomorrow. The world's peace machinery would be moving then at top speed and desperately striving to overtake a situation fast growing out of hand. The Article of the League Covenant concerning sanctions would almost certainly be invoked. From what we know of their policies, Britain, France, Russia and the majority of the minor powers in Europe, all members of the League, would support those sanctions, providing the aggression on the part of a warring state were obvious. These nations, members of the League, would expend their blood and money for a principle. They would also have to thank America's late President Woodrow Wilson very largely. And while these powers were making this sacrifice America would be barricading herself behind neutrality legislation. If America has any faith in the League principle, in the scheme of collective security, she should actively support it. The League can never operate with assurance of success until its membership is universal, any more than the United States of America could operate successfully if Washington had to deal with a number of states which refused to recognise the federal laws and to obey them. The League's ultimate purpose, unless we are much astray in our view, is to act as a world police force, making the complete disarmament of nations possible. In this fashion wars can best be avoided, for without weapons no nation can be dangerous. But the League needs the support, and not just the sympathy, of every major power. In this light, those who refuse to accept responsibilities at Geneva are shirking their duty or lacking in perception. The United States Neutrality Bill may be a safeguard in that second "desperate" stage of crisis, but it is also decidedly selfish in the eyes of League advocates.

presents itself. Generally speaking, courage may be taken from the latest figures, which certainly do show that Britain is gradually making up lost ground and appears to have definitely turned the corner:

SHOULD BRITAIN EVACUATE HER MEDITERRANEAN BASES?

Britain's naval bases and chief interests in the Mediterranean could be bombed by an enemy within six hundred miles; the distance shown by the circles. Experts hold that modern aircraft could render such bases untenable.

BY COLIN BROOKS

I f ever, by the malignity of fate or the folly of its leaders, Britain has to wage another war, it will be a war of aeroplanes and submarines. The perfection of the bomber, and the aerial-torpedo, has changed the whole face of both strategy and tactics. It has altered the relative value of the three fighting arms. The floating Navy is today vulnerable as it was never before vulnerable in history. This dominant truth is obvious to the most technically ignorant civilian. It is freely admitted by such naval experts as Vice-Admiral Sir Barry Domville. Sir Barry, who in his expert capacity attended all the important naval conferences at the making of the last Peace, and after, said frankly in a recent lecture: "We cannot shift the land, so we must remove our bases further back from enemy shores." He envisaged an English Channel dominated by enemy aircraft, with the great southern ports, like London, rendered useless. "Similar remarks," he said, "apply to any other part of the Empire within reach of land-based foreign aircraft."

Twelve years ago, before aircraft had reached its present deadly perfection Major-General Patrick, late Commander of the U.S. Army Air Corps, stated after visiting that "under proper conditions, we can put out of commission, or sink, any naval craft that floats." In the same report the Joint Board of the United States which had carried out the trials, reported that in its members' opinion it was difficult, if not impossible, to build any type of naval craft of sufficient strength to withstand the destructive force of the largest bombs that aeroplanes can carry from shore bases or sheltered harbours. In his recent book, "Our Future in the Air," Brigadier-General Groves reinforces these expert opinions by a collection of striking facts. He tells of how the "unsinkable ship"—the German Ostfriesland—was sunk by four bombs. He recalls that during the war a submarine, 60 feet below the surface, was sunk by a bomb weighing no more than 300lb. that detonated 275 feet away from her hull. He emphasises the deadly menace to the navy's utility of the aerial smoke-curtain. The conclusion to which one is forced is that what were once safe harbours are now death traps for shipping. If foreign aircraft can render untenable the bases of our fleet, if narrow waters and sea basins within bombing distance of hostile shores are now to be death traps for the vessels that use them, what is Britain's position in the Mediterranean?

The Mediterranean has long been of supreme importance to us because we have been as much an Asiatic as European Power. Since the Suez Canal became our highway to the Near and Far East, the possession of Malta, of Cyprus and of Gibraltar—which long made our Portuguese alliance of value, because Lisbon in the old days was a necessary port of call—have been vital to us. These have been our Mediterranean bases. They have guarded the gates of the East.

BREMEN INCIDENT

CORDELL HULL AND JUDGE BRODSKY'S SPEECH

Washington, Sept. 14. Mr. Cordell Hull apologised orally to the German Charge D'Affaires, Herr Rudolf Leitner, for Judge Brodsky's remarks. He said that, "It is regretted that an official had so little sense of responsibility in maintaining relations between the United States and other countries and that he should indulge in expressions offensive to another Government."

He said that Judge Brodsky's remarks were not relevant to the legitimate part of the judicial decision. However it was pointed out that municipal officials are not part of the Federal Government and he also drew attention to freedom of speech as being a fundamental American right. —United Press.

We think to-day of 600 miles as effective bombing range. It may not long remain so.

Even now to pilots who, in a spirit of Eastern self-sacrifice, are prepared to fly to their own deaths that they may compass the destruction of their enemy's possessions, places like the Mediterranean exit of the Suez Canal are vulnerable.

Nobody without the closest technical knowledge and experience dare dogmatise on such a problem, but any one with the interests of his country at heart must ask—Is our standing in the Mediterranean tenable? Has the old certitude that we dare not withdraw from the Mediterranean given place to reasonable doubt whether we can afford as a naval Power to remain there in the face of the new arms?

Wrong Groom

A bride arrived at a fashionable Melbourne church somewhat late for her wedding, states Reuter.

She made her way to the altar with unhurrying grace, and took the hand of the waiting bridegroom as the service began. Then she stole a shy glance at him, stared, dropped his hand, and screamed. He was the wrong bridegroom!

The bride had arrived so late that the clergyman had started another wedding.

EXTORTION CHARGE

ALLEGED DEMAND ON FOREMAN

Two unemployed men, Chau Lin and Mak Chik-to, appeared before Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, charged with having demanded with menaces $50 from Chau Tong, bricklayer foreman, at Wanchai. The first defendant admitted the charge, but second defendant denied it.

Detective Sergeant Fitches said the first defendant was an unemployed bricklayer. The complainant, who was a clansman of his, was a bricklayer foreman. On September 10, the complainant was approached by the first defendant and several others. First defendant acted as the spokesman of the party, and told complainant that as he was in quite good circumstances, he should give them $50 for their Society. Complainant refused, and made a report at the Police Station.

On his way back home after making the report, complainant was attacked by two or three men, but he made off and reached home safely. He later made a report, with his wife. On Saturday, two detectives were sent to a tea house, where complainant had been asked to go. Complainant had with him two $20 notes, of which the numbers had been taken. The detectives saw the two defendants come in with several others, and take a seat at a table. They also saw the defendants threaten the complainant, who then gave them the $20. The second defendant put the notes into his pocket, but the others got away. The second defendant had threatened to make the complainant "eat a dagger" if the money was not paid.

Evidence was heard, after which Mr. Schofield remanded both defendants for 48 hours.

EUROPEAN'S SERVANT GAOLED

Choi Hung, 22, a servant in the employ of Capt. Munson, of 1, Robinson Road, appeared before Mr. Macfadyen in the Central Magistracy this morning, charged with the theft of two gold watches, the property of his employer, Wong Sang, 22, unemployed, was charged with receiving the stolen property. It was stated by Detective-Sergeant Guild that the watches were valued at $25. One was pawned at the Ki Sang Pawnshop for $4.50 and the other at the Leung Yick Pawnshop for the same price.

First defendant was sentenced to six weeks' hard labour and the second man to four weeks. Both were ordered to pay $4.50 for the redemption of the watches or undergo additional terms of two weeks' hard labour each.

ANOTHER CASE

Six weeks' hard labour was passed on Chung Ping-kwong, 19, an apprentice carpenter, when he pleaded guilty before Mr. Thomson at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning to the larceny by servant of $5.50 and a gold wrist watch from Chan Kin, carpenter of the Kwong Sing-cheung wood-yard, yesterday. Detective-Sergeant Allen stated that the money and watch were stolen from complainant's jacket which had been left in a cockpit on Sunday. Defendant, when questioned, admitted the theft and told the police that he had pawned the watch for $5 and had later lost all the money at a mah jong shop in Canton Road.

DUMPING DEAD BODY

MAN AND WOMAN CHARGED

An unusual charge, of dumping a dead body, was brought against Leung Kam, 40, married woman, and Chan Ngor, 34, coolie, when they appeared before Mr. Thomson at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning. Both defendants were remanded for 24 hours in police custody for further enquiries. Inspector Ellis appeared for the prosecution.

It was alleged that the defendants deposited the corpse of a female child named Chan Bee-chai on the Castle Peak Road on Saturday last.

Indian constable B487 stated in evidence that at 8.10 p.m. on Saturday he was in the company of constable B474 on the Castle Peak Road, when he saw both defendants approaching. The woman had in her arms a cloth parcel. In answer to enquiries as to what "this is my son; I am taking him to a doctor." The man and woman were allowed to go on their way, and witness and the other constable passed along and stood under some trees further along the road.

Later witness and B474 went back to Castle Peak Road and found the body of a dead child wrapped in cloth. Witness recognised it as the parcel which defendants had in their possession. Both defendants were arrested about 150 yards away.

When charged, first defendant told the Magistrate that the child was her grandchild who had been sick for some three days. On the night in question defendant was taking the child to a doctor but on the way it died, so defendant sat down by the roadside and cried. She was then arrested.

Second defendant alleged that the child was his son and that first accused was his relative. Defendant's wife was at Cheung-shawan. Questioned as to why his wife was not with him to take the child to see a doctor, defendant stated that she was busy with housework.

TYPHOON NOT THREATENING

HONGKONG NOT ON STORM PATH

There is little prospect of the typhoon in the China Sea threatening Hongkong, according to Mr. B. D. Evans, acting Director of the Royal Observatory, in a statement made in reply to a query by the Telegraph this morning.

Mr. Evans stated that the typhoon was situated in 17 Lat., 115° E. Long., moving west or W.N.W. It has slowed up considerably, which always suggested the possibility of recurring, but there is no such indication at the moment.

Present indications are that the typhoon will pass south of Hainan, said Mr. Evans.

Nuremberg, Sept. 15. The new laws promulgated by Chancellor Hitler and read to the Nazi rally here to-day by General Herman Goerring, the Chancellor's first lieutenant, were received with frantic cheers to-night.

The first law says that the colours of the Reich are black, white and red. The Reich and the national flag will be the swastika flag, which will also serve for the commercial ensign. The Chancellor will determine the future battle flag and the Reich service flag for the use of the German army and navy. This law comes into force to-morrow.

Reich citizenship shall be acquired by the bestowal of a letter of patent. A Reich citizen is the sole bearer of full political rights.

PURITY OF BLOOD

The preamble of the third law says: "Filled with the conviction that the purity of the German blood is the basis of the future German people, and filled with the unyielding will to safeguard the German nation for all future, the Reichstag has unanimously accepted the following law:

Article 1.—Marriages between Jews and citizens of the nation of German or kindred blood are forbidden; marriages solemnised despite this decree shall be invalid, even if solemnised abroad for the purpose of circumventing this law.

Article 2.—Sexual intercourse outside the marriage covenant between Jews and Germans or those of kindred blood is forbidden.

Article 3.—Jews are forbidden to employ female Germans or those of kindred blood in their homes. Article 4.—Jews are forbidden to hoist the national flag or display the Jewish colours.

Pennalties for the violation of this law are penal servitude or prison for the first two articles, which will be enforced immediately; and up to one year's imprisonment for a breach of Article 3, which will be enforced as from January 1, 1936.

A severe gash across the abdomen indicated that he had been struck by the propeller of the launch. The body has been removed to the Kowloon Mortuary.

INDIAN CONSTABLE IN TROUBLE

ALLEGED ACCEPTANCE OF BRIBE

Indian constable B449, Raka Singh, was charged before Mr. Thomson at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, with accepting a bribe of $1 from Hui Chung-ki, a shopkeeper, on Saturday last.

On the application of Inspector Ellis, who appeared for the prosecution, the case was remanded for one week, and the afternoons of September 25 and 26 were fixed for hearing.

Mr. J. M. D'Almeida Remedios appeared for the defendant. In outlining the case, Inspector Ellis stated that complainant was the master of a shop in Peiho Street, and he alleged that during the last three or four months defendant had been accepting $1 per month from him, so that he would not be summoned for obstruction.

On the 8th, defendant went to complainant's shop and collected fifty cents, and for several days after he kept pestering complainant for more. On Friday, complainant saw Sergeant Baker and informed of what had been going on, so a trap was laid.

On Saturday morning, defendant called at the shop and collected a dollar note, which had been marked. He was arrested and the note was found in his possession. Bail was allowed in the sum of $300.

FOREIGN THIEF SENTENCED

PRISON TERM AND EXPULSION

Enik Jackson, alias Benito Kapistrano, alias Vladimir Shneiff, aged 19, unemployed, appeared on remand before Mr. Thomson at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning and was sentenced to four months' hard labour for stealing a quantity of jewellery from a dwelling house on September 7. On the charge of entering the Colony without a passport he was fined $50, with the alternative of one month's hard labour, and an expulsion order was made.

The Magistrate stated that defendant showed no signs of suffering from tuberculosis. In answer to this defendant alleged that he had been told that he was suffering from this disease by a doctor in Manila and Canton.

It was alleged that defendant stole a gold cigarette case, a gold watch, a fountain pen, a leather wallet and $3.40 belonging to Mr. J. P. Whitham; a gold wrist watch belonging to Man Choi; and a silver wrist watch and $2.97 belonging to Tam Hung. All the property was recovered.

Inspector W. R. Chester-Woods prosecuted.

HONGKONG WINS WONG PO-KEUNG TENNIS TROPHY

INITIAL VICTORY FOR THE COLONY

CANTON PLAYERS BEATEN DURING WEEK-END BY FOUR-ONE

VISITORS UNABLE TO OVERCOME STRANGE CONDITIONS

(By "Sagax")

Full of the glory of an Interport contest, but lacking its concomitant atmosphere consequent upon the absence of an audience, except a few members of the Club and half a dozen outsiders, the annual Lawn Tennis fixture between Canton and Hongkong was commenced at the Chinese Recreation Club's courts on Saturday and concluded yesterday when the Colony captured the handsome Cup presented by Mr. Wong Po-keung by winning four of the five matches.

The handsome cup, which was brought down to Hongkong by the Canton players on Saturday morning, was only presented for competition three years ago when the Canton side won on their own courts. The contest is conducted on Davis Cup lines, with the holders having the right to defend the trophy on their own courts.

However, this year Canton players would be making a visit to Shanghai this month, the holders were rather hurriedly made and it was not until Saturday morning whether it was mutually agreed that the match should be official or friendly.

So short was the notice that it was not known until the arrival of the Canton team just before noon what the programme would be. In fact, the players were met by the local Hon. Secretary and on crossing the harbour, the party adjourned to Messrs. Brewer & Co. where the draw was made and the programme drafted. Mr. Wong Po-keung, the originally appointed non-playing captain of the Canton team, was unable to make the trip and on arrival the visitors invited Mr. C. E. Watson, the former Canton resident, to assume management of the team.

VISITORS' HANDICAPS

With the visitors labouring under a severe handicap in having to play on grass courts after having been accustomed to hard courts, Hongkong had no difficulty in winning the tie although some of the matches were closely fought affairs.

The singles match between Lai Kwong-tsun and S. A. Rumjahn was the first staged and the local player put the Colony one up in straight sets, winning by 6-1, 7-5, 6-2.

The difference in the scores was certainly not the difference between the capabilities of the two players but merely an indication of the form on grass court, of the two men on Saturday. Lai Kwong-tsun, who has beaten Rumjahn on grass courts in an official fixture before, was obviously worried by the strange conditions, he now having become so accustomed to hard courts that the change was always apparent in his play on Saturday.

His timing was so uncertain that he was not able to do himself justice and many an interesting rally was abruptly terminated by a tame return into the net or outside the court, while there were times when he completely missed the ball, on one occasion sending it sky high.

Rumjahn during the greater part of the game was able to adopt safety tactics without forcing the pace although at times he became the aggressor and took the net at every opportunity.

He conceded only the fourth game in the first set and after losing two games in the second he won four in a row before losing another. Five all was eventually called and then Rum-

MILITARY GROUND RENOVATED

FOOTBALL PITCH AT SOOKUNPOO

NEXT SATURDAY'S COMPETITION

Always alive to the enormous appeal which football is making to local sportsmen, the authorities in charge of military football have enlarged the accommodation at the Sookunpoo ground and this season the stands will be able to hold a total of six thousand spectators.

The football pitch has been moved further towards the French Hospital, taking in the hockey ground behind the north end of the stand.

There are now four new substantial stands erected all around the pitch and it is estimated that there is accommodation for 6,000 people.

Dressing room accommodation is provided under the covered stand, this relieving congestion in the Pavilion.

Returning has been carried out where necessary and the playing area is at present in very fine condition.

The new ground will be opened on Saturday when a six-a-side competition will be staged. The preliminary rounds will be played on Saturday and the final stages on Sunday.

There are 28 teams entered for the competition and some excellent sport is promised.

John took the set at 7-5.

In the third set Lai won only the first and seventh games.

COMPARATIVELY TAME MATCH

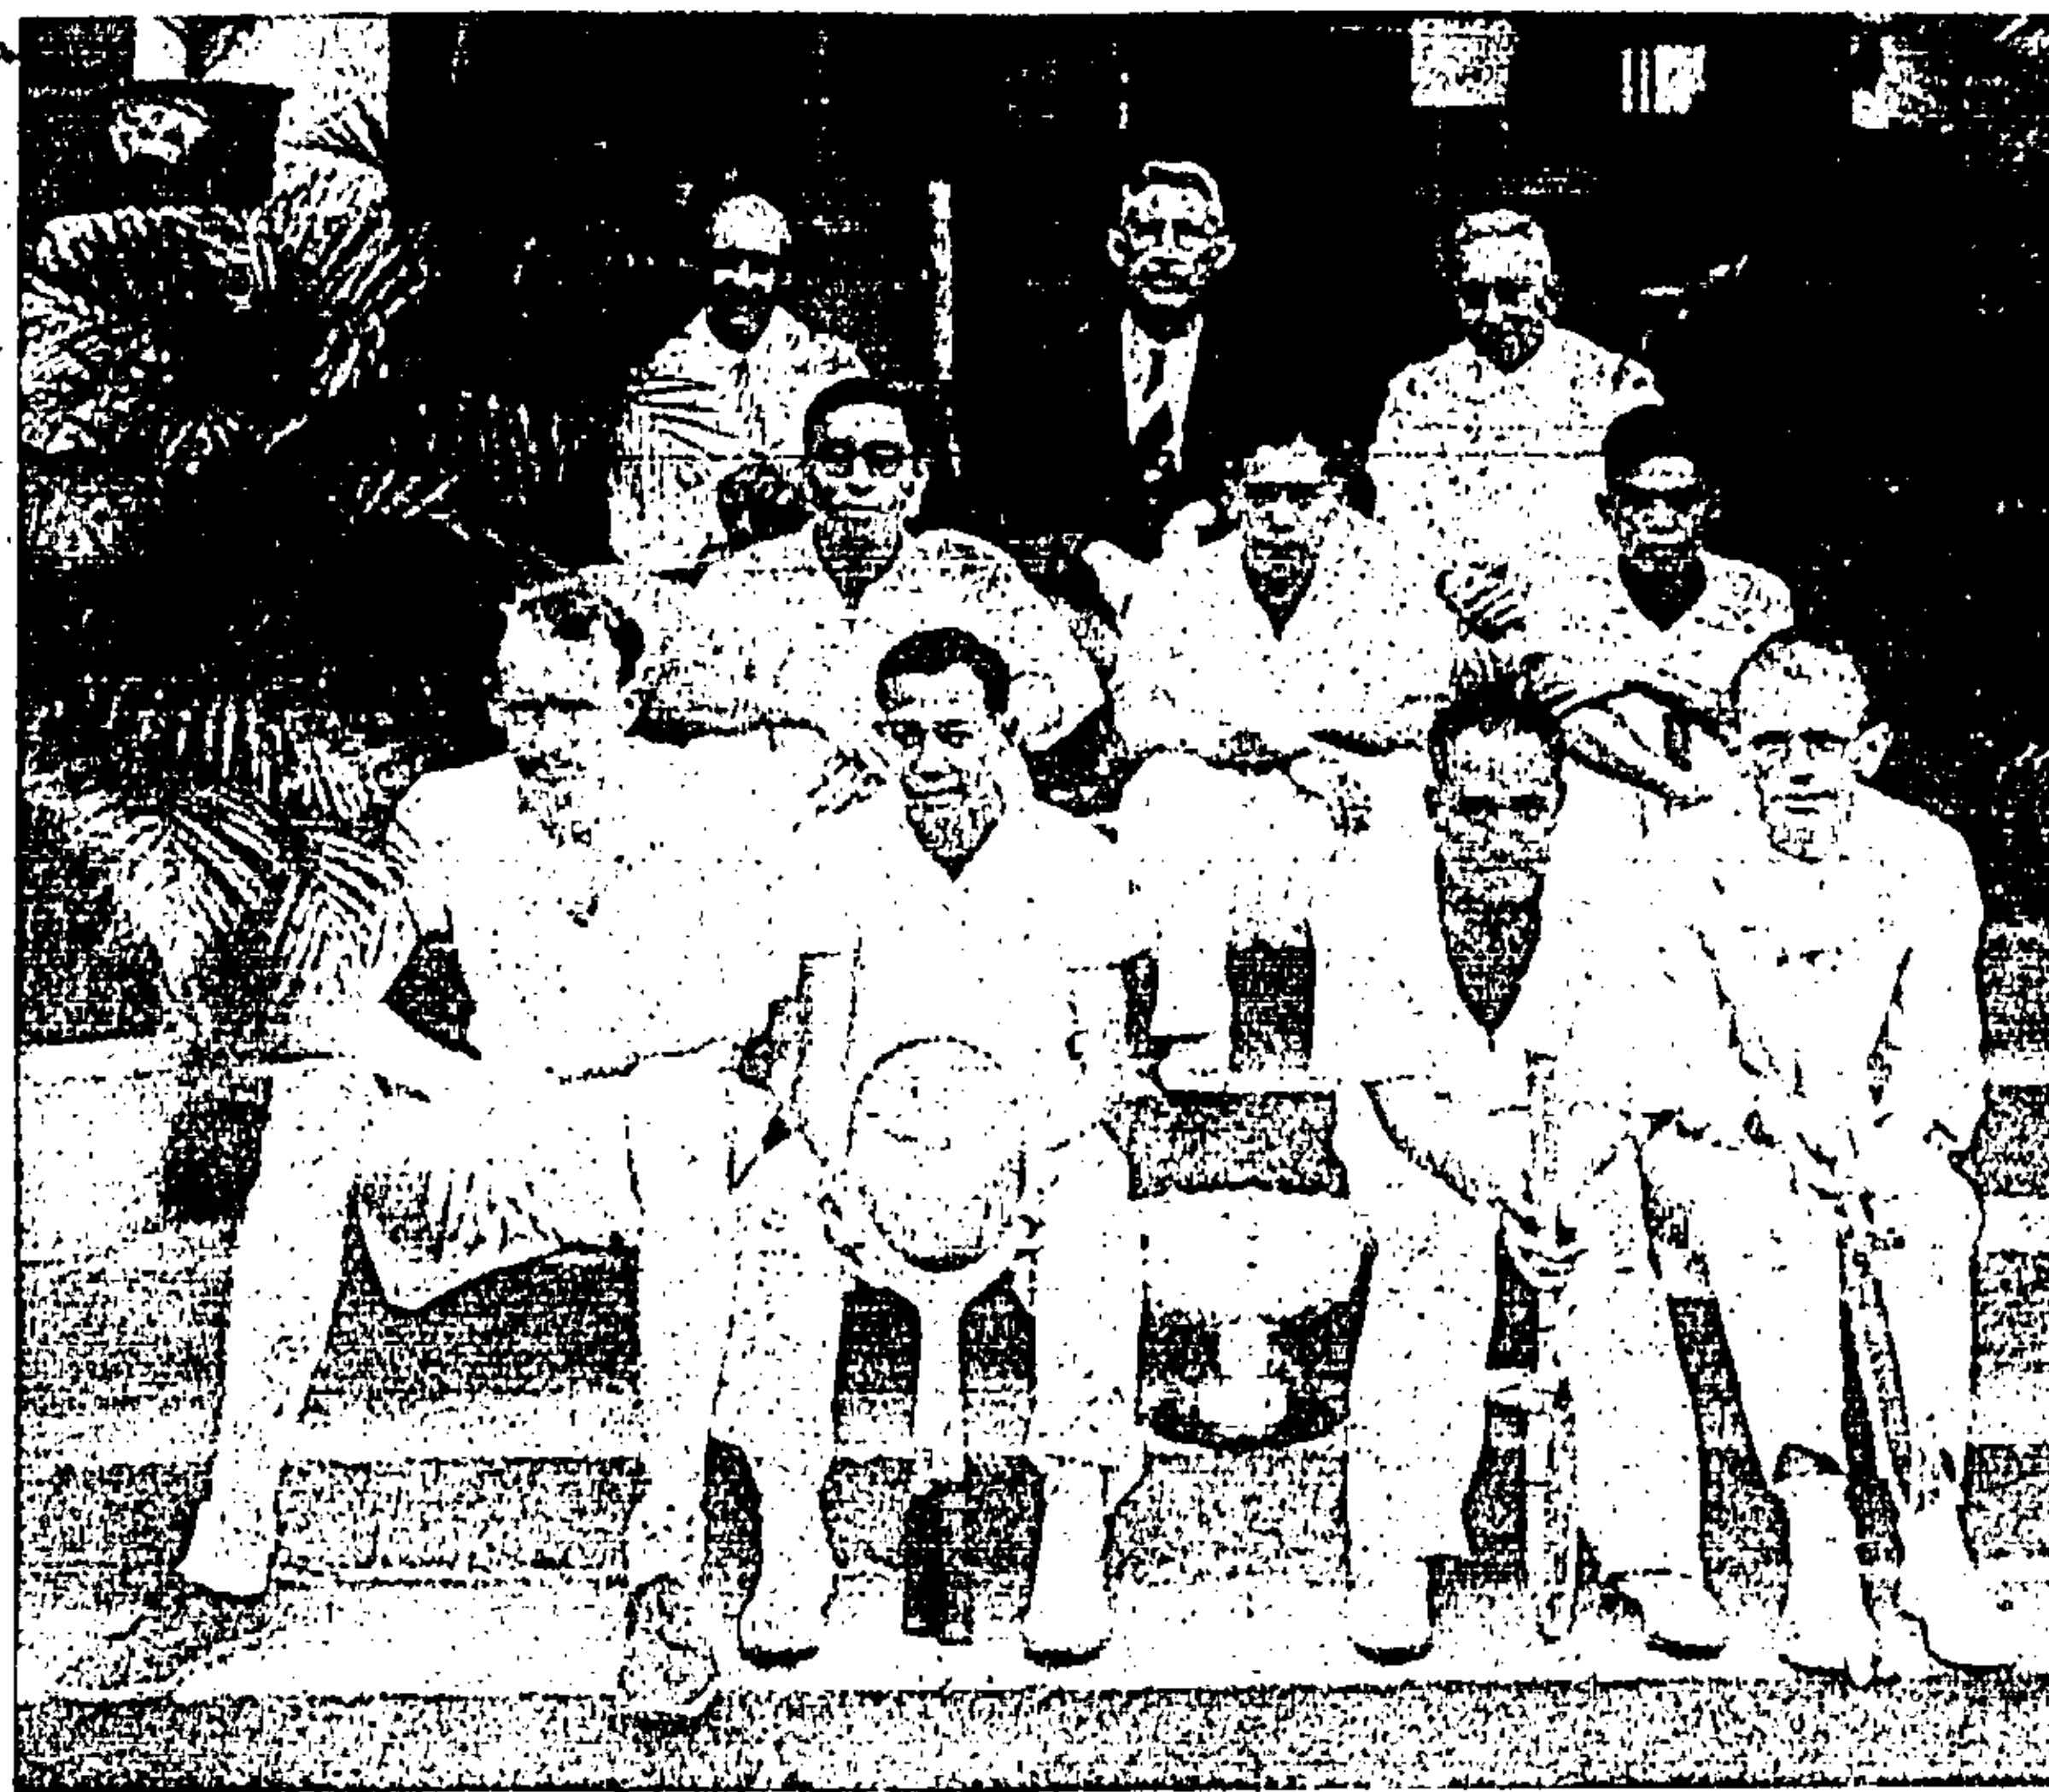

The absence of a gallery which is usually associated with any Interport event made Saturday's matches more like a garden party than an official Interport and the tennis served up in the second match between G. R. M. Ricketts and G. Bodiker rather confirmed the garden party impression.

Ricketts won in five sets in a match that was comparatively listless after the first game which had produced some hard hitting by both players.

The Canton player in the second match was no where near his top form while Ricketts appeared reluctant to exert himself.

It was only when he was trailing behind his opponent that he really

AN INNINGS VICTORY

The Hague, Sept. 15.

A dashing display of batting by E. L. Dalton, the South African's stylish and forceful bat, featured the two-day cricket match here between an All-Holland team and the tourists, who are shortly returning home from a successful tour of England during which they won the "Ashes" for the first time in the Mother Country.

All-Holland had first knock but the side was dismissed for 99 runs. R. J. Crisp took four wickets for 25.

The tourists, after scoring 181 for five wickets yesterday, took their total to 319 before the last wicket fell to-day. Dalton was not out at the close of the innings with 156 to his credit. Altogether he scored eleven sixes and twelve fours. A. D. Nourse had 55 against his name when dismissed.

In the second innings Holland scored 92 runs, Crisp taking another four wickets, for 19 runs.—Reuter.

GERMANY'S ATHLETES BACKWARD

LITTLE TALENT AVAILABLE

OLYMPIC GAMES PROSPECTS

Berlin, Aug. 17.

The German track-and-field championships recently concluded have shown that Germany has many good "coming" athletes but only few who have a chance to win an Olympic Medal. And there is no doubt that the German officials are a little disappointed. The championships for example produced no Arthur Jonath (who was in Los Angeles the best white man in the sprints).

That is the reason why the German trainers are now working with special vigour to get their people into good shape and condition, and—as an official recently said, to make them steel hard and "extend to the limit."

It may be remembered that the German press praised the American athletes in the sprint power during the Olympic Games at Los Angeles very much, hoping that the German trainers might work their athletes along the same lines.

Without any doubt, enthusiasm for the Olympic idea is increasing day by day in Germany, and thousands are hoping to be a competitor in the Berlin Games.

Through numerous elimination contests the officials expect to better the present top notch-standard considerably by next Spring.

LITTLE TALENT AVAILABLE

Remarkable was that the championships this year in the broad jump, shot-put, hammer-throw, the 1,500 metres and the 3,000 metres, hurdles, as well as the pentathlon (in the absence of Hans Heins Sievert, the world record holder, who was sick), were won by athletes of the army and police forces. This shows the great all round spirit for the Olympic sports in the armed forces.

Hope of winning a gold medal for Germany depends largely on Hans Heins Sievert for the Pentathlon, but in the track-and-field events generally, the chances for gold medals are not so rosy at the present time, if we consider American records.

In the sprints, the Germans have a good chance of winning silver and bronze medals; they have at least four or five men who cover the 100 metres at the average of 10.6 seconds and the 200 metres at 21.5 seconds.

Furthermore with the broad-jump, Corporal Leichum, Steffin, of the army, covered that event with 7.73 metres (which is a new German record) and experts are of the opinion, that he will jump over eight metres soon.

Folkman Schroeder, of Magdeburg, threw the discus 53.10 metres, while policeman Weelke attained 10.04 metres with the shot-put. An Olympic hope is the hitherto unknown long distance runner Hans Darmstadt, who covered the 10,000 metres in 34.4 minutes, which is the third best time achieved this year.

But it is recognised that if Germany is to achieve any prominence in the track-and-field events at next year's games, development of the available athletes must go forward at a much quicker rate.—United Press.

YORKSHIRE CRICKET TEAM

TO TOUR WEST INDIES

GEORGE MACAULAY RETIRING

Two important decisions were announced at a recent meeting of the Yorkshire County Cricket Club Committee.

The first concerned an invitation from the Jamaica Cricket Board of Control to send a Yorkshire team to tour the West Indies in February next. This invitation has been accepted. The tour will last about five weeks and six matches will be played, some of them two-day games.

The second was that George Macaulay has notified the Committee that he is resigning from the Yorkshire team at the end of the present season. In his letter, Macaulay states that he is retiring from first-class cricket.

It was announced that the gross receipts of the Yorkshire home matches to date amount to £8,097, as compared with £6,284 for the corresponding matches last season, excluding the matches in which Nottinghamshire and the touring sides—the Australians in 1934 and the South Africans this year—were concerned.

Fixtures for next summer have been arranged at Sheffield, with Kent, Gloucestershire, Derbyshire, and Somerset; at Leeds, with Lancashire, Hampshire, Surrey, and Worcestershire; at Bradford, with India, Nottinghamshire, Sussex, and Warwickshire; at Hull, with Essex and Glamorgan; and at Scarborough, with Middlesex and Leicestershire.

In a final talk with Mr. E. S. Passmore, that great, enthusiastic President of the South African Bowls Association, he told me that there is no realm of sport in South Africa where there is so little disagreement and controversy as there is in bowls.

"I have noticed with regret," said South Africa's President, "that there is a tendency in sport to-day to win at all costs and not to play the game for the game's sake. We do not regard our bowls contests with our fellow sportsmen in the home country in this way, although it is naturally very gratifying to our players, after making so long a journey, to find that they can win their matches."

LESSONS OF THE TOUR

"Naturally, all have been very keen. But I think that another time we should do rather less travelling and take rather more rest. Six matches each week on such a tour is rather too much and a programme of five games a week would be better."

"In the West of England and in Wales we had a number of players unfit—two of our men were ill in Bournemouth—and we had seven where throughout the British Isles, the team has had a marvellous reception and we have been almost killed by kindness."

"Returning even after three or four years, I have been amazed at the growth of bowls in England since my last visit, but there does not seem to have been much progress in Ireland. We have found very few poor greens and it is only here and there that we have had to play on disappointing links. The whole of us will look forward to our next visit."

Another interested spectator at Crofton was Mr. W. R. Elston, of the Killarney Bowling Club, Sydney, and the New South Wales Bowling Association. He was surprised at the number of young men who take up the game in England.

"Australians," he told me, "find it difficult to adapt themselves to English playing conditions. In Australia we do not use your big wooden bowls, but smaller bowls of the con position type, and so we develop fast straight shots rather than fine shots. Also we play 25 ends and not your standard 21 ends."

"And," added Mr. Elston, with a smile, "I think that we are a little inclined to enforce the etiquette of the game more rigorously than you do. We do not, for example, encourage the 'skip' to follow up his bowl."

One thing is certain—the Bowls Season of 1935, now past its peak, has been a magnificent success.—H.G.H. in the Morning Post.

During the run Ribas also covered 31,435.45 metres, beating Earnest Harper's 33,653 metres.—Reuter.

BOWLERS' TOUR

SOUTH AFRICANS' TRAIL OF FRIENDSHIP

LESSONS OF THE VISIT

London, Aug. 19.

We said "Good-bye" to the last of our South African friends as the "E.B.A." Championship meeting ended out on the Crofton Club's greens on Saturday.

They began their tour on May 9 and ended it, officially, on July 31. Of 63 matches, they lost only 12. But that is not the whole story.

This splendid collection of amateur sportsmen from the Dominions has once again not merely added a new zest to the game of bowls in Britain and Ireland, but in every city and town they visited in their long tour, they have blazed a trail of friendship and understanding with their fellow business-men in "the Old Country."

Bowls, that quiet and peaceful amateur game, is the connecting link which has created new and valuable bonds of friendship.

In a final talk with Mr. E. S. Passmore, that great, enthusiastic President of the South African Bowls Association, he told me that there is no realm of sport in South Africa where there is so little disagreement and controversy as there is in bowls.

TENNIS VICTORY FOR COLONY

CANTON TEAM DEFEATED

set his mind upon the game and he was invariably able to stage a sudden recovery to keep the lead.
He captured the first set after having led all the way but at one stage in the second he lost five games in a row before he eventually cancelled the set at 8-6. The third set saw him run away with a five-game lead and then win at 6-2. In the fourth set he again found himself trailing behind at 4-1 and he caught up to 5-4 before Bodiker made matters even.
When Bodiker won three games in the final set it seemed that the Canton man would snatch a last minute victory but Ricketts asserted himself and won four games in succession, eventually taking the set and match at 6-4.

TAME DOUBLES

The doubles match yesterday morning was a cinch for Hongkong and with it the Cup was captured for the first time.

H. D. Rumjahn paired very well with Ho Ka-lau but the Canton combination left much to be desired. Lai Kwong-tsun, who was partnered by Liu Yut-fong, was easily the better of the two visiting players but was unable to avert the concentrated attack on the weak link in the Canton team. The match was all over in 45 minutes, Hongkong winning by 6-4, 6-1, 6-2.

The first match of the afternoon was between G. R. M. Ricketts and Lai Kwong-tsun, the Canton player winning by 6-1, 11-9, 6-4, in a match in which the scores give a true indication of the margin of difference between the two players. Ricketts was unable to cope with the forcing tactics of the Canton player whose forehand driving was better yesterday than it was on Saturday when he was pitted against Rumjahn.

AN IMPROVED BODIKER

Ricketts was literally driven off the court in the first set and offered little opposition to a player who was

AUSTRALIAN CONTROL BOARD

OVERBEARING AND IRRESPONSIBLE

Melbourne, Aug. 19

"A capricious act of overbearing and irresponsible officialdom" is how the "Melbourne Sun" describes the action of the Australian Board of Control in banning certain cricketers from touring India with Frank Tarant's team. "Australian cricket," adds the paper, "must rid itself of this incubus before it injures the game as well as the players. Some good will have come of the Board's latest act of foolishness if the ban results in an irresistible demand for its sweeping away and replacement by a more reasonable body worthy to administer cricket." "What blind folly," says the "Melbourne Star," "pushes this body into decisions which annoy the whole cricketing world only its members can tell."

The Maharajah of Patiala has issued a private invitation to Alan Kippax, the New South Wales cricketer, to go to India, in connection with the forthcoming tour arranged by Frank Tarant, the old Middlesex player. As the Australian eleven is complete it is presumed that Kippax would play against Tarant's side. Kippax considers that he is a free agent, but believes that the Australian Board of Control may think otherwise.

It was the better of the two. It was in the second set that Ricketts was able to hold his own and took the score to 11-9 before succumbing to the dashing Canton player.

Bodiker, in his match with Rumjahn, gave a much more determined display than on Saturday when his tennis was listless and unworthy of Interport standard. Yesterday he was hitting the ball harder and commanded a better control over his strokes. There were many long and interesting rallies in which both players excelled but Rumjahn was always that shade the better and never lost control of the game at any stage of the match. He ran out winner by 6-2, 6-2, 7-5.

This is Hongkong's first victory in the Wong Po-keung Cup Competition which was inaugurated in 1932. That year Canton won and in 1934 the holders retained the trophy, there being no challenge in 1935.

PROSPECTS OF SOCCER CLUBS IN ENGLAND

NO. 20-POMPEY

"CHEAPEST BOB'S WORTH"

Pompey's officials and players are looking forward to a good season. The confidence felt in club circles with regard to the future is reflected in the ground improvements which have been carried out at Fratton Park during the summer.

From a business point of view last season was the best in the history of the club. It showed a profit of £14,001 on the year's working. The directors have spent about £12,000 of this on a new north stand, which in Manager Jack Tim's opinion provides "the cheapest bob's worth in the country." It will shelter from 12 to 14 thousand spectators.

So far as playing strength is concerned the club is also fortunately placed. The professional number 29, and the club has the call also upon the services of several clever amateurs. Three or four young players were recruited for the reserves before the end of last season; five more have been signed on since then.

THE NEWCOMERS

Goalkeepers: J. Gillilan, G. J. Strong.

Full Backs: J. A. Mackie, W. Rochford, J. Mackrell, R. L. Gundry, W. H. Smith.

Half-Backs: J. Nichol, A. Smith, A. Young, F. R. O'Connor (Jarrow), R. Salmon, A. R. Rowe, F. Donoghue, Dr. Thackeray, R. Benson (Birtley).

Forwards: E. Worrall, T. Hird (Hartlepool United), G. Bell (East Craigie), J. C. Anderson, L. McCarthy, J. Weddie, H. W. Crawshaw, Eason, W. Bagley, A. R. Brown (Chesterfield), S. Rutherford, C. Parker.

NO. 21-PLYMOUTH ARGYLE

Reorganisation Raises Hopes Of Success

Plymouth Argyle have rarely approached a new season in such favourable circumstances. During the past six months the board of directors has been re-formed and the club has secured the addition of well-known business men in the city who have taken strong measures to support their announced determination to obtain promotion to the First Division.

At the annual meeting the directors announced that they required more money to carry out their aims, and they made a fresh issue of capital.

The amount of capital previously issued was £2,432 and the directors appealed to the general public to take shares of 10s. each, of 50,000 shares, at 10s. each. It was stated that the proceeds would be solely applied to engaging new players, repayment of loans and provision of working capital, and there was an immediate and satisfactory response. Seven new players have been signed on, and search is being continued for a first-class centre-half and other men in order that the strongest team the Argyle has ever had will be built up.

Success has also attended a new scheme for encouraging and developing local talent by establishing Junior leagues which are to act as "nurseries" for the Argyle.

Goalkeepers: H. Cann, A. L. Davies (Exeter City).
Backs: H. Roberts, J. Rae, J. B. Milne, S. J. Kirkwood, R. Wallace (Swindon), T. Black.
Half-backs: A. Gorman, J. L. McNeil, T. Wood, W. H. Gooney (Sheffield U.).
Forwards: M. Robblee (Bury), T. Grozier, J. Smith (Burnley), F. Sloan, L. Rich, H. Vidler, F. Melaniphy, J. Cookson, G. Briggs, A. Eggleston (Bury), S. Black, A. Powell (Bolton).

NO. 22-BRIGHTON

New Forwards May Remedy Vital Weakness

Brighton, in common with many other clubs, are naturally hoping that during the forthcoming season they will achieve their ambition of promotion to the Second Division.

It is not always easy, however, to sum up a club's prospects. Players are signed on who possess excellent reputations, yet frequently fail to realise expectations. It would appear that in Law (Sheffield Wednesday) and Prest (Burnley), the Albion have secured two forwards capable of giving opposing defenders considerable anxiety.

In past years Brighton have played attractive football in midfield without showing sufficient penetrative power, and it is hoped that Law and Prest will help remedy this weakness. Other new forwards are Richards (Pulham) and Stevens (Brentford). Two additions to the half-back line are Clarke (Portsmouth) and McCarthy (Dundee), and there is every likelihood of additional defenders being obtained.

Jones, the captain, has decided to retire from the game and his loss will be felt. Mr. Webb, the manager, is at the moment busily engaged in trying to fill his place. Players:

Goalkeepers: C. Thomson and G. Mer.

Backs: F. King, E. Marriott, E. Martin.
Half-backs: L. Darling, P. Mooney, D. Walker, W. Clarke, T. McCarthy, J. Dugan.

Forwards: W. Richards, R. Farrell, T. Prest, A. Law, O. Brown, T. P. Smith, H. Egan, E. Wilson, J. Stevens (Birtley).

NO. 23-SOUTHEND

High Hopes Based On Experience

It is safe to say that Southend will do better this season. The club is about to start a campaign for which Manager David Jack has made a strenuous preparation.

During the summer the whole of the pitch was ploughed up and re-turfed and a considerable sum of money was expended to ensure that ground trouble does not arise again.

Eight new players have been signed—most of them with First Division experience. They are Pearson (Birmingham), Nelson (Newcastle), McKenzie and Donnellweck (Plymouth Argyle), Corbett (Manchester City) and three from Leeds United, Spelman, Turner and Firth.

Mr. Jack has his eye on an outside-right—it's just a matter of the transfer fee—but even should he fail to acquire him that position will be by no means a weak one with Harry Lane and the newcomer Donnellweck as candidates.

It is expected that Firth will make a good inside forward. He is a "natural" footballer and a good goal-getter. Nelson, of course, has international experience.

Manager Jack said: "He is a personality—and I'm banking on that—great schemer, Jimmy, and a popular player with the rest of the team."

"We are making a clean start this year, and I'm very hopeful. The pitch is now in fine trim, and that will make a big difference."

The players are:
Goalkeepers: Moore, McKenzie.
Backs: Nelson, Robinson, Kelly, Corbett, Holborn.

Half-backs: Spelman, Turner, Smith, Carr, Jackson, Gulliver, Donovan, Morfit.

Forwards: Donnellweck, Bushby, Lane, Firth, Jones (E), Jones (B), Stevens, Pearson, Johnson, Cheesman, Deacon, Clark, Oswald.

SERIAL STORY

One I Love

by LAURA LOU
BROOKMAN

CHAPTER XXVI

Janet looked up, puzzled. "Why, who could it be?" she asked. "I don't know who could be calling me."

"I don't know, Miss Hill," the maid said. "He didn't give his name. There's only one telephone on this floor and it's in Mrs. Curtis' room. You can use the one downstairs in the library."

Janet hurried down the stairs. Was it Jeff, she wondered? Who else would know where to reach her? And why had he called?

"Hello," she said. "This is Janet speaking."

But it was not Jeff Grant's voice that came to her. It was Bruce Hamilton and he had a message for Mrs. Curtis. He would not, he said, be able to keep an engagement for dinner the next day but he would be out later in the afternoon. He asked Janet how things were going and seemed pleased with her report.

"I'll see you to-morrow," he said. "Yes, I'm getting away to-morrow night. Deuce of a lot to do yet, too!"

Janet said good-bye and went up the stairs again. She felt a disappointment she would not quite admit. She hadn't expected Jeff to call her. There was no reason why he should. And yet the big house seemed deserted and lonely.

"It won't be like this later," she assured herself. "I'll get used to it—and besides I'll be busy."

She returned to her unpacking, folded linens and laid it away in the chest of drawers. She hung her dresses in the closet and arranged the top of the dressing table with two crystal bottles that were prized possessions and a china powder box.

When she had taken everything out of the trunk and travelling bag she slipped off her dress and ran water into the tub. She had a lazy, luxurious bath and then, wrapped in a negligee, lay down on the bed. But she did not sleep. There were so many things to think about. She was still in Lancaster and yet she might almost have been a thousand miles away. Everything seemed so different. All of the people about her were strangers. How was she going to like this new life? How would these strangers like her? Would she be happy here?

What, Janet wondered, was happiness, really? Something in your own heart instead of what went on around you, she thought. Something you couldn't see or explain but could only feel. But happiness was not what Janet was looking for. She had put that behind her. All that she wanted now was to forget. The most important thing in the world it seemed, to achieve—forgetting.

After a while Janet decided it was time to dress. She arose and put on fresh underclothes. What dress should she wear? The maid had said something about "dressing for dinner." Did that mean she was supposed to wear a formal dinner dress? She didn't own one. She could put on the blue crepe from last summer.

Janet looked at it and then shook her head. She took down the black silk that was her newest office dress. It had been freshly cleaned and there was a touch of lace at the throat that was flattering. She had just slipped the dress over her head when there was a knock at the door.

Janet said, "Just a minute!" and then opened the door. It was Mrs. Curtis who stood outside.

"I'm so glad you're here!" she exclaimed. "Is everything all right, my dear? Sorry I couldn't be here when you came. I told Lucy to see that you had everything you wanted."

Mrs. Curtis was dressed in heavy brown satin and wore a small brown straw hat. The clasp that held the neckline of her dress contained a half dozen sparkling stones and two diamonds gleamed from a ring on her finger. Yet Mrs. Curtis, in this glittering array, looked no more impressive than the first time Janet had seen her.

Everything was quite all right, Janet assured her. She remembered Mr. Hamilton's message and repeated it.

"Poor Bruce—he does work so hard," the older woman lamented. And then, "By the way, there will only be you and I for dinner this evening. No need to dress. Well, I'll leave you now."

At dinner an hour later Janet learned more of the household. There were four servants—the cook, two maids and a chauffeur. It was Lucy, the younger maid, who had met Janet at the door. She learned that both the other maid was a housekeeper in all but title, that the cook had been with Mrs. Curtis 14 years and that the chauffeur's name was Frederick.

Mrs. Curtis talked a good deal about her daughter who was married. Janet didn't ask questions but she gathered that the daughter was now living somewhere in the east. She was an only child and obviously the idol of her mother's heart.

They went into the living room after dinner and played two-handed bridge. The game was new to Janet, who had to give all her attention to it. The Persian cat, wandered into the room and watched the players from his post on a nearby chair.

At 9.30 Mrs. Curtis decided she had had enough of cards. Janet cleared a magazine from the reading table and went to her room. It was the first of many evenings that were to be like this. Janet in the beginning felt that her new duties were no duties at all. She soon changed her mind. It was true that there was no routine as in a hotel, but the hours of dictation, typing and there were small important details—dozens of them—to be attended to.

Janet was up each morning at 7.30. When Mrs. Curtis appeared at the breakfast table an hour later, her letters were waiting for her. Janet was always present at the daily interview with Bertha over menus and marketing. Sometimes the rest of the morning would be devoted to telephoning members of Mrs. Curtis' committee of the Wednesday club. Sometimes there were errands to do down town—difficult errands such as choosing books Mrs. Curtis would enjoy, ordering a box voyage gift and making sure the package would reach the boat, finding out from the electric company by the ventilator in the kitchen didn't work as it should. It was worrying over just such things, Mrs. Curtis said, that had given her those dreadful attacks of "nerves." It was no wonder she couldn't sleep at night. Mrs. Curtis regarded Janet as a marvel able to solve any difficulty.

She was considerate in many ways. There were always fresh flowers in Mrs. Curtis' room just as there were in Mrs. Curtis'. When the car wasn't needed for any other purpose and Janet had an engagement Mrs. Curtis urged her to call Frederick and have him drive her where she wished to go. She took Janet with her to a luncheon at the Three Arts Club at which a well-known novelist spoke.

At first Janet tried to make her plans systematic. She found it was impossible. If nothing else upset her plans Mrs. Curtis herself was sure to do it. She would decide at the last minute that she wouldn't go to have the fitting at the dressmaker's. Or instead of having six guests at dinner she would decide to invite 10. Mrs. Curtis gratefully shifted responsibility for such changes to her secretary's shoulders.

And yet Janet liked her work. It was so entirely different from anything she had ever done. It took her to new places and among the people of a different world. It was interesting to know how they lived. When Janet shopped for Mrs. Curtis she visited stores she had never entered before. It was pleasant to sit back in the velvet-upholstered limousine and give Frederick instructions through the speaking-tube. It was pleasant to meet Mrs. Curtis at the fashionable Three Arts Club.

During that first week Janet worked longer hours than she had ever worked before. It had been agreed that she was to have one afternoon to be off each week and the evenings when Mrs. Curtis had engagements. Somehow the time slipped by and Janet was busy every afternoon.

She was sitting at her desk in the little room off the library Friday morning when a messenger delivered a package. It was a box from Ballard's, the jewellers, and the boy was quite certain that Mrs. Curtis had ordered it.

Janet untied the wrappings and drew out a handsome silver picture frame. Inside was a carbon slip indicating that the frame had been left for repair.

"It's all right," she told the boy who mumbled something and departed. Half an hour later Mrs. Curtis entered the room and Janet showed her the frame. "Oh, yes!" she said. "It's for my daughter's picture. The glass broke and I left it to have them put in a new one. I'll just get the photograph."

Her voice trailed off as she hurried from the room. A moment later she was back. "Here it is," she said. "Don't you think she's attractive?"

Janet took the photograph. It was Betty Kendall!

CINEMA NEWS

NOTES FROM THE THEATRES

A new type of screen juvenile is Tom Beck, who, within the past six months, has demonstrated his ability to shift from the handsome hero classification to the vile villain group and back to a hero role in Fox Film's latest thriller, "Charlie Chan in Egypt," which has Warner Oland in the leading role and comes on Wednesday to the King's Theatre. Absolutely convincing in both kinds of parts, Tom Beck reveals histrionic skill carefully cultivated during his studies at Johns Hopkins University and his varied stage experience. Beck participated in Little Theatre activities in Baltimore and his work was seen by Vladimir Rossin, a New York director, who put him in his start with occasional small parts in Broadway shows and summer stock in Massachusetts. As the juvenile lead in Alice Brady's "Mademoiselle," Beck won the attention of Hollywood and was signed to a long term contract by Fox Film. "Charlie Chan in Egypt" was produced by Edward T. Lowe and directed by Louis King. The cast includes such favourites as "Pat" Paterson, Rita Casiano and Stepin Fetchit.

"Black Moon"

Jungle drums beating... voodoo crazed blacks in an orgy of blood sacrifices... he gazed, horror-stricken at the scene and any fall of that, but don't get the idea that it is a cheap thriller. It's one of the best entertainment pictures presented in a long time. Lavishly produced, expertly directed, perfectly cast, and adapted from one of last year's best novellas, "Black Moon" is a picture that spells grand entertainment. Fay Wray and Dorothy Burgess are the two popular feminine players. Miss Wray is seen as the sympathetic girl in love with Wray Burgess' husband, the role in which Hail is starred.

"Roberta" Among their other achievements the talking pictures can list recording the sensational dancing of Fred Astaire, who is in "Roberta," the musical romance which stars Astaire, Irene Dunne and Ginger Rogers. "The best of Astaire's dancing could not have been photographed in the silent picture days," ace cameraman Eddie Croninger explains. "His footwork has been lost a bit because the cameras could not cope with his speed. In silent pictures, we used to shoot 60 feet of film to the minute. To-day, we shoot 90 feet to the minute. That extra 30 feet is just enough to enable us to record clearly Astaire's whirlwind steps. Astaire and Miss Dunne introduce several new dances in "Roberta," now at the Star Theatre, which are said to be more sensational than those which they did in "The Gay Divorcee." Miss Dunne's golden voice, heard in Jerome Kern hits, is a stellar highlight of the production. Another feature is a spectacular fashion show.

"Fury of the Jungle"

Eight of Hollywood's most talented players are featured in the Columbia production, "Fury of the Jungle," which closes to-day at the Queen's Theatre. Donald Cook, handsome leading man, and Peggy Shannon, Auburn-haired actress, supply the romantic interest, with more than adequate menace supplied by Alan Dinehart and Harold Huber. Others in the cast are Toshia Mori, Dudley Digges, Clarence Muse and Fredrik Vogedling. Roy William Neill directed "Fury of the Jungle," which is based on an original story by Horace McCoy.

Perhaps the most striking feature about Henry Hull, sensational dramatic actor of the stage whom the screen has finally anured, is his distinctive individuality. As a rule an actor is usually likened to some animal, "cat," "dog," "lion," "tiger," "fox" or "she's another so-and-so," are catchlines frequently employed in the theatrical profession. But not with Henry Hull, who is an original as Adam. "If like Hollywood," was the first thing Hull said upon his initial interview. "If like it for its panoramic vista of characters, for its pulsating life and energy. I have not found any of the lethargy with which legend has endowed the motion picture industry here. Of course there is a difference between the stage and the screen for an actor.

There is bound to be. Perhaps the most important thing for a stage actor to remember when acting for the screen is that every audience of his is sitting in the first row. There is no gallery for the screen. Careful interpretation of the role being portrayed is most essential to the screen actor. Far more important is this phase of acting than on the stage, where an actor might, at his change his facial expressions and still get away with it as he sticks to his lines." Asked whether he encountered any difficulty with the camera in his first picture, "Great Expectations" by Charles Dickens, Hull frankly admitted that the cold steel eye had him scared for a while. "It's only natural," he said, "for a novice to be a bit bewildered at first to find himself without an audience. This struck me forcibly, because I could always feel my audience in the theatre and react accordingly. The mark of acting is not really acting, but reacting to the part. It is, of course, difficult to judge the exact character of the story unless consulting with the author and where the latter is inaccessible, it is left entirely to the actor's judgment and imagination to fill the role as closely as the author's intention. To say that he will prove as eminently successful on the screen as he has on the stage is a forgoe conclusion. His vividness of imagination and intensity of interpretation sets him off in a class by himself a class of distinction. "In Great Expectations," his first screen role, Hull definitely has lifted himself to the topmost rung of screen luminaries. The Dickens classic is being presented at the King's Theatre. With Hull are featured Jane Warrat, Phillips Holmes, and Florence Reed under Stuart Walker's direction.

an interval of ten days.... This morning, the second period for withdrawal was due, and it is believed that the Bank was unable to meet further demands.

The Board of Directors held a meeting at 7 o'clock last night which lasted till two o'clock this morning when it was decided to suspend payments pending re-organisation.

It is understood that over half of the capital of the Bank, about eight lakhs, were withdrawn during the past week, and the other half being comprised of frozen assets, the Bank was thus unable to have any cash in hand. There were also outstanding debts amounting to over four million dollars.

FIRM'S HISTORY

The Bank was started about twelve or thirteen years ago by a number of well-known business men. Mr. Ma Ying-biu, of the Sincere Company was the first managing director until 1931 when Mr. Wong Kwok-shuen took over his position. The Bank has branches in Tientsin and Shanghai and has an office in Yunnan, opposite the Majestic Theatre. All these, it is understood, have followed the step of the head office here.

The building in which the Bank now situated was built in 1932 by the institution itself at the cost of about eight lakhs, but shortly after its opening was mortgaged to Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation.

It is understood that a winding-up petition will soon be made, at the Supreme Court.

The directors of the Bank are: Messrs. Choy Hing (chairman), Ma Ying-biu, Philip Gockehin, Mo Joo-yung, Hong Sing, R. C. H. Lim, Lai Yau Do-ming, Wong Kwok-shuen, Ma Wing-chun, Choy Chong, D. Jackman, H. Hong Sing, W. N. Thomas Tam, Tong Ya-chu, and Ma Man-fai.

PROLIFIC WRITER

He was a very prolific writer—almost as prolific as his brother Joseph—and by 1928 he had published about fifty novels, many of which became best-sellers. He had travelled widely on the Continent and in the United States, Canada, Algeria and Egypt, and was thus able to provide local colour from personal observation. He thoroughly disliked the modern sex-novel.

Among his many books are "Caleb Cartwright", "Dick's Fairy", "His Father", "For Light and Liberty", "A Son of Reuben", "The Heart of Man", "God's Recompense", "The Strange Adventures of Israel Pendray", "The Awakening of Anthony Weir", "Smoking Flax", "A Modern Pharaoh", "Who shall judge?", "In Self-Defence", "The Beautiful Alien", "His Own Accuser", "Nancy", "Watchers in the Dawn", "The Greater Good" and "My Book of Memory".—Reuter.

He concluded his declaration by saying that the American answer to the Bremen incident in New York harbour, where the swastika flag had been torn down and insulted by a mob of Communists, was satisfactory.

He added that the Jewish anti-German boycott had been restarted and that the German Jews were again active, and he gave warning that if such actions were not ended further laws would have to be promulgated to settle things. Following Herr Hitler's speech, General Herman Goerring, the Prussian Minister of Prussia and Air Minister for the Reich, read the new laws of the nation, one of which makes the swastika flag the national flag of Germany.—Reuter.

LEAGUE EFFORTS

Geneva, Sept. 15.

The sub-committee of the Committee of Five has been working upon its report during the week-end and has practically finished its task. The report is expected to be ready to-morrow night or Tuesday morning and falls into two parts.

The first part deals with the Italian memorandum, and possibly with the Ethiopian reply.

The second part makes a detailed recommendation based on the Paris proposals for compromise, originally offered by Britain and France, filling in detail to the Paris suggestions and amplifying various points, including the question of collective economic assistance to Ethiopia.

COUNCIL TO DECIDE

If this report is not accepted by either side, the League Council will have to decide whether to adopt the report under Article XV of the League Covenant. If this is done, the juridical position will be that according to Article XII of the Covenant, in which both sides are pledged not to resort to war within a period of three months.

Should Ethiopia accept the report within that period and if Italy makes war upon Ethiopia, she will be acting in defiance of and without respect for her obligations under the Covenant of the League.—Reuter.

WEEK-END TRAGEDIES

CRIME PASSIONEL IN LOCAL BOARDING HOUSE

A crime passionel was enacted in a room on the third floor of the Luk Hoi Tung Boarding House, 150 Connaught Road Central, in the early hours of Saturday morning, when a young Chinese man and woman were found lying dead on the floor embracing in each other's arms. Circumstances point to murder and suicide.

Both had stab wounds. It is surmised that the man stabbed the woman twice in the stomach and twice in the left breast, one wound piercing the heart. He then stabbed himself in the abdomen and throat.

The man is Wong Fuk-shing, aged 27, of Tai Shan district, and the woman's name is given as Lai Sze, 20, of Kung Chau district.

A police report states they booked a room together at the Luk Hoi Tung Boarding House on Friday night. At about 4.30 on Saturday morning the woman was heard to scream. Foks rushed to the room and on forcing open the door found the couple lying on the floor. Both were dead. Police arrived on the scene and found a letter in the woman's jacket pocket. A dagger was also picked up.

The history of the man and the woman has not yet been discovered. The bodies were removed to the Victorian Public Mortuary.

It is understood the couple registered as coming from Canton.

Police investigations are in the hands of Detective-Inspector A. H. Elston.

Another Murder Suspected. The body of a Chinese woman, aged about 30, was found lying on a road in King's Park yesterday morning with a cord tied around the neck. Murder is suspected.

According to a police report from Yumtuli, the discovery was made by a coolie, Wong Fuk, who found the body on a road leading to the revolver range in King's Park. Death had probably occurred about three hours previously.

The deceased was dressed in black cotton clothing with a white and pink striped under jacket. She wore rubber tyre sandals.

The identity of the woman is unknown at present.
